

FASCISTI CONTINUE OUTRAGES IN ITALY

Attack Socialists and Burn or Appropriate Their Property Throughout Country

POPE PLEADS FOR PEACE

Rome, Aug. 8.—Burnings and bloodshed continue in Italy. Draconic instructions have been issued to the military authorities from the Ministry of the Interior to put down civil war at all costs and to prohibit absolutely demonstrations of all kinds.

Martial law was extended last night to the Province of Brescia, where disorders are expected to break out. The Government is gratified at the results obtained in the other provinces now under martial law.

Destruction of railroad men's clubs and Socialist buildings took place in Bologna. In the sackings, Fascist invaders seized several red flags, carrying them as trophies of war through the principal streets. A notorious burning of the captured Socialist standards took place in the public square. The Fascisti say that their action was provoked when a Fascist workman was alleged to be treacherously killed by some Socialist railroad workers.

In the Fascist depredations several Socialist cooperative stores went up in flames ignited by Fascist forces. Firemen who were summoned to the scene of the various conflagrations were prevented from working by squadrons of Fascisti. When the buildings were ablaze several bombs were heard to explode from the inside.

Pope Pius has expressed his deep distress at the increasing hatred between the opposing factions which moves the people "farther away from the teaching of the Divine Master."

The only remedy, he said, is a return to religion. The ordained clergy will be instructed to "impress the faithful with the necessity to pray for the restoration of faith and piety which alone can bring peace and love among men."

Genoa, Aug. 8.—Twenty-eight were wounded in the civil turmoil prevailing here in the last twenty-four hours. A band of 200 Fascisti, armed with axes and picks, forced an entrance into the Socialist publication Lavoro and burned the building.

BRYN MAWR CLOSES

Summer School Ends With Play, "The Torch Bearers"

"The Torch Bearers," a symbolic play, was given last night in the cloisters of Bryn Mawr College by instructors and students in the Summer School for Women Workers in Industry. The students, with lanterns, filed past an altar where "Wisdom" held a lighted torch and each student in turn lighted her lantern.

Today marks the end of the summer school session and the women student workers will leave for their homes.

"Wisdom" was impersonated by Miss Helen D. Lockwood, instructor in English composition; "History" by Marion Guinnason, an instructor of shoes from Brooklyn, Mass.; "Art" by Louise Jennings, a native cutter in a woolen mill at Portland, Ore.; "Science" by Matilda Lindsay, an office secretary from Washington; "Tenderness" by Emily Doser, an electrical worker at Chester, Pa.; and Mary Fulem, a housewife of Impassades, of New York City. The play was written by Hilda W. Smith, director of the summer school.

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 234—Divining Chosen Number.

Set a watch on the table and ask one to pick a number upon it. Tell the chooser you will point at random to various numbers on the watch and he is quietly to count your strokes, counting your first stroke as one above the number he chose. When you reach twenty, he is to say "stop," and you will be pointing at the chosen number.

For example, the chooser secretly chooses the number eight. As you point at a number, he says to himself, "nine," "ten" at the next and so on. But when he counts "twenty," and says "stop," out loud, you are pointing at number eight—his chosen number!

The secret depends upon a simple rule which always works out. The number chosen by the chooser makes no difference whatever. In pointing at the numbers, point, hit or miss for the first seven—anywhere on the face of the clock. On your eighth stroke, however, point at the twelve, and continue to the left, counter-clockwise, on the following points: eleven, ten, nine, etc. If this rule is followed, you will always strike the spectator's number on his twentieth count.
