White's Knockout of Bobby Barrett Entitles Benny Leonard to Sock Charley on the Jaw Again

LEONARD AND WHITE PROBABLY WILL MEET AT N. Y. IN OCTOBER

Knockout Victory of Left-Hook Charley, Now Famous for Right-Hand Uppercut, May Mean Another Session for the Lightweight Title

THAT knockout victory of Charley White, Chicago right-uppercut artist, once famed for his left hook, over Bobby Barrett, red-headed and freckled, wins for Mr. Charles Anchowitz the right to have Mr. Benjamin Leiner. otherwise Benny Leonard, caress him on his square jaw again.

White has had only something like thirteen bouts in championship competition, including fistfests with eight different title-holders during his sixteencar career in the squared circle. But Charley isn't satisfied. Probably he believes the first thirteen cracks at a title are the hardest and might be agle to cross the dope in another titular tilt with Leonard.

Being thirty-one years of age and so long in the ring evidently has not bandleapped White to such an extent that he has to go to "the old men's pugilistically speaking. White proved that he was far from being "laged" when he permitted Barrett to uncork a flock of fists for two rounds over in the Velodrome, near Yonkers, N Y., and then decided to make short work of the Clifton Heights When White was in Philadelphia, just before the Tendler-Leonard contest at Jersey City, Charley visited Shibe Park and watched Barrett come through with a sensational seventh and eighth round rally against Joe Welling. Bob's finish was so impressive that the ringside critics were unanimous in giving the bout to the red-head "He's a cinch; I can knock that bird out in no time. And it took Tendler. six rounds, chy Well, I can do it in anieker order than that "

That's what White had to say, referring to Barrett, after watching the red-head in his eight-rounder with Welling. It sounded somewhat like a boast a threat, and Charley evidently does not believe in promises. He made good. So NOW they are chattering and gossiping in New York about the next hig world's lightweight championship bout there: Charley White, contender, vs. Benny Leanard, champion,

Looks Like Battle Between Promoters

WHILE nothing official has been announced, there is no doubt that White would answer, "Sure thing," if offered a bour with Leonard fifteen rounds to a decision in New York City, and favorable terms, of course, could be made to the title-holder. Tex Richard wouldn't hesitate to stage the contest-that's cinch-but now that Jack Curley is stepping in with the Polo Grounds as the scene for fisticuffs, an interesting fight between the promoters may be expected as a forerunner to the tilt for the title.

"Some time in October" would be a good guess for the White-Leonard meeting. That's what Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, said in New York at the ringside of the White-Barrett bout when asked when the champion would be ready to box again. 'Some time in October,' was the answer.

"Some time in October" also means something else. It means that the proposed trip to Europe is off. Benny planned a vacation for his mother, sister "Sid" and Gibson. Leonard announced yesterday that he had canceled his trip. He will do all his fighting at home this year.

IT 18 common rumov around New York that Leonard is "broke" rather was badly bent, financially, before he took on Jack Britton, Rocky Kansas, Lew Tendler and Ever Hammer in a row and all in a short time. These four matches, of course, brought in a lot of the green stuff to the Leonard coffers, so that he may not be pinched as much as he was six months ago.

Benny Is Out to Get the Money

But these are the days Benny is thinking only of adding dollars to his bankroll, rather than separating himself from the filthy lucre, How come? seems to be the question on every one's lips when it is conversed that Leonard, champion for five years and a big money getter since his skillful system of caressing the other fellow on the chin was introduced to lightweight competition, was supposed to be flat, broke, financially embarrassed or something like that

Some of the wise crackers seem to feel that "It's the bunk," and merely a publicity scheme on the champion's part.

But Leonard admits he "needed money hadly" previous to the Britton bout, and the champion evidently was not at all backward in declaring that as a business man he was a good boxer. Leonard, it would seem, can explain his circumstances better than any one, and here is what the champion has to say about his finances; "Since my bout with Britton and Tendler boxing to me has assumed an

I have always recognized as such. But I failed dismally as a business man, although I did succeed They say Leonard is a millionaire. All the money I ever made I still have, appears to be the public's version.

"If I were rich, a millionaire, do you think I would have gone through with my match last week, especially when I was suffering with a badly split eye and my mouth was sore, owing to the loss of a tooth in the Tendler bout?

66 FVE been foolish with my money. I have been good to my friends. I played Wall Street. I owned race horses.

Met Hammer Because He Needed Coin

WAS to get $20,000 for the Hammer match and I need it. If I were a millionaire and could choose between the $20,000 and the chance of injuring myself against Hammer worse than I was the day of the contest, I would have passed up that match. You can bet on that, But I needed that money and I went through with the bout, getting bumped a little more by that tough Hammer boy.

"In the future I shall fight as fast as Ghoon can procure matches. Just now I feel that I am entitled to a rest after the swift work I have done in the last two months.

"It won't be long before I will get going again, and then I want to box oftener, if Billy gets me matches. I have no home of my own and I want to provide a home for my folks before I quit the ring.

"While I have lost most of the money I have made in the ring, I have tried to be a model boxer. I have lived well and acted the part of a gentleman, so as not to bring disgrace to the game that gave me my livelihood. Another thing: The fans expect too much from a champion. My bouts with Tendler and Hammer convinced me of that more than any other match during my long career.

COTHAT is another reason why I am going to quit boxing, after I make enough money for my folks. If I had all the money I made in the ring I would quit today and pass my title to some one

On Sunday Marcus Greer, who is Lianerch's star golfer, broke the record to his home links that has long stood at the laurels of which he hoasts. But Charles F. Mathison, a New York expert, who has delved into more recent there, originally set the mark, and then, several months ago. Marcus equaled it.
