Phillies Fly-Chaser, With a Hundred Home Runs to His Credit, Gives This City Its Third Century Four-Ply Batter-Walker and Cravath Also Performed Feat

THIRTY-THREE-YEAR-OLD FRED C. WILLIAMS, otherwise known as Cy. has brought fame to himself and the city. The brilliant outer-pardener of the Phillies checked in with his hundredth home run of his major league career off Sherdel in the recent St. Louis series, according to the figger experis.

The century mark for circuit smashes has been made by but five players in the history of the major leagues and Philadelphia boasts of two of them. Tillie Walker, the Limestone eltizen, who, by the same token, has the same number of years facked after his name as Williams, not long ago cracked out his hundredth homer.

A third of the circuit kings, Gaver Cravath, once toiled for the Phillies. to that gives this fair city the record of having nurtured three of the modern kings of swat

Honns Wagner, the Pittsburgh king-pin of seven years ago, and Babe Ruth, the king of all of the present, are the others in the select class, Over a stretch of eleven years Williams has failed to hit one or more homers in only two years. In 1012, when he broke into major lengue baseball, Williams went without hitting a round-tripper. Two years later he dupli-cated. His second year he had 4; his fourth, 13; fifth, 12; sixth, 5; seventh. 6; eighth, 9; atmin, 15; tenth, 18, and eleventh, 18,

Williams this year should break o'll his previous home-run records by a great number. He already has equaled his best previous mark made last year, when he banged out eighteen. With seven more weeks to play Williams should reach the quarter century mumber in Leners.

The only hundred hame-roy hitter in the minor leagues in the last twenty years was Frank Huelsman, who saw some action with a half dozen of the Class AA, C and D ceams. He once had a troout with Cleveland, but could not keep hitting in the fast set.

The face who assert that the so-called rabbit hall has something to with the record number of home runs being hit have something on their alde. Pitchers and weak hitters are daily getting round-trippers who never dreamed of minking one before the advent of the lively ball, •

BUNNY BRIEF, who was in the big show for some time and scho is note informing in the minors, under more home cuns last year than he did in secon prace in the majors and minors previous to that time. In seven years before last year Brief had twenty-seven homers. and last pravile made forty-field.

Williams Is a Credit to Baseball

TYRUS RAYMOND COER, who is now in the threes of a batting duel with ▲ George Sister, of the Browns, will probably be the next major leaguer to get into the select class of century homescum hitters. The Detroit manager has eighty-six to his credit, with the prospect of reaching ninety this year and getting into the hundred class next season,

Getting back to Williams, if every player in the majors had the same cornestness of play and the same desire to give the fans their money's worth when they work as does Williams, the play in both leagues would be of such a high order that the magnites could never complain of crowds,

Since joining the Phillies in 1918, Williams has performed on a lastplace team, yet he has played with all the spirit and entitiesinsm that a member of championship contender in the dash down the stretch is supposed to exhibit.

His hitting and fielding with the Phillies this year has been one of the few redeeming features of an otherwise coloriess season. He stands second to Hornsby in home runs and is batting well over the .300 mark. Not only that, but he is covering all kinds of territory in the outer gardens.

Previous to 1920 Williams was never noted as a slugger. In his thirtyfirst year he started pounding the ball, turning in a mark of .325. Last year he hit the pellet for .320 and this senson he should be well above the .300 mark when the curtain is rung down,

Williams is a home-loving athlete. The bright lights of the hig towns fail to intrigue him as they do most players. His training campaign keeps him in excellent shape both winter and summer. During the off-season Cy looks after his farm in Indiana, where he lives with his family,

URT WALKER, who came to the Phils in the trade with the C Giants last season that sent Meusel to New York, is another athlete of the same type of Williams. His cornestness and hard work this season with the Phillics have stamped his as one of the real stars of the game. He, like Williams, is a real scatter. To date he has nine home runs to his credit and is leading the Phillies at bat.

HAS TWO LEGS ON CUP

The Philadelphia Cricket Club has rung down the curtain on one of the nost successful caddy tournaments ever held in this burg-or, any other one, if your fancy runs to ground covering. More than a hundred youngsters entered in the three classes, and battled right down to the finish for the prizes of ash and clubs, as well as the honor of having his name inscribed on the Mc-Farland Cup.

Soling this Swanson you would not griess that you were looking at a cork-ing good goffer in space of his imma-ture secondary term-and a probable ture seventeen years—and a probable "great" in the making. Women's Dress League Standings New York's Joke

By THE OBSERVER

THE number of women participating in sports in America is increasing almost L daily, and it is pleasing to see a popular movement toward common-see

In swimming more than in any other sport women dress with the idea a gaining freedom of motion. The California one-plece suit with the short skir attached is within the limits of modesty and yet does not weigh down th swimmer.

In golf, knickers are the rage, and some women tennis players are wearin them on the courts.

In track and field, however, the contestants have not learned their lesso from kindred sports. Most of the women athletes on the cinder path wear full bloomers and blouses. These are caught in the wind and retard the speed to a amazing degree.

In Europe the women are garbed similar to the men. Short trunks and athletic jerseys are used universally.

From the Old World also comes the best dress for tennis. An appeal American women for common-sense clothing was made in an article writter recently by Sam Hardy, captain of the United States Davis Cup team in 1920. "The modern game," he wrote, "will never be a possibility while our wome continue to burden themselves with their present unathletic tennis costume.

"Every French woman of note and several of the younger British player have begun to "Lenglenize" their apparel, and, while their scant costume is the object of pronounced sniffs from some of the older, more conservative element the resulting greater freedom is so obvious that it is only a question of time when a standard athletic costume for women will be looked upon as a matter

'The fast game of tennis absolutely demands freedom of movement untrammeled by clinging skirts and long sleeves, and the sooner this is recognized the sooner will our women be able to advance their standard of tennis." . .

TF THERE were only more ball players with names like Ketchum, the new Mackman, the life of a paragrapher would not be so dull and drab.

The Division of Baseball Talent

BASEBALL talent in the cities that comprise the two major leagues is far from being evenly distributed.

There's a phenomenal feature attached to the standings of the clubs today that probably never has occurred outside of this season. St. Louis, for instance, has to be content with two leading clubs. New York has a pair of second-place teams, and so it goes all down the line. Clubs In the same town or corresponding cities hold the same position in their respecti leagues.

. Take a look at Pittsburgh and Detroit. Both in third place. The White Sox and the Cubs are both at the tail end of the first division.

At the head of the second division are Cleveland and Cincinnati. Brooklyn and Washington are in sixth place.

Philadelphia can boast of clubs in seventh position and both Boston teams are holding down the bottom of the leagues.

Fans in major-league cities have good, medium or bad baseball. There is no combination.

IN THE whirl of blcycle racing at Point Breeze, it is marvelous that there are so few spills and injuries. The other night there were as many as thirty and never less than fifteen riders on the track at the same time for almost three hours. And there was not one upset.

CCARCELY a day goes by without a long list of accidents occurring.

Hubbell Wins Despite Lebourveau

WILLIAMS played a conspicuous part in the first victory scored by Wilhelm's hirelings in a week. The lanky outfielder had a double and a pair of singles, and drove in a run. In addition, he had four good catches in the outfield and made one of his very few errors.

Walker was impotent with the stick, but the remainder of his mates made up for his lack of hitting. All told, the Phils garnered fourteen safe drives. about their average number a game. Only difference yesterday was the fact that they were meeting a team that looked worse and that Wilbur Hubbell pitched a fair article of ball.

It was the first game in some six weeks that the husky former Giant was able to finish. Out in the West he had trouble getting by and since his return home he has been belted from the mound on four occasions. His support was not of the best against the Braves, but with men on bases in the later innings he proved an enigma.

If Hubbell can get back into the form that characterized him early in the senson and the other pitchers get the soreness out of their salary wings the Phils may yet keep out of the collar. The Braves are a much worse-looking combination by far and there is no reason why Wilhelm shouldn't guide his team for the rest of the senson in seventh place, something that a number of other managers, too mimerous to mention, have been unable to do in the last five seasons.

The game was a listless affair until Lobouryeau kacked a perfect field goal in the fifth inning. Bevo must have thought be was playing with Heinle Miller and his pals when he made a same effort to retrieve Powell's smash to the wall in the fifth. Instead of meting according to the rules, which call for picking up the pellet with the hands, lieve used to use his feet and the last seen of the horsehide came when a suntish pushed it into his back pocket. Bevo had booted a perfect home run for Powell, .

T^{HE} Phillies are now three and a half names ahead of the Braves. Chances for getting any higher are negligible eleven and a half games separating the Phils from the Induces, in sight place. A long sucing around the circuit faces the locals and it the pitchers fail to show a reversal of form some changes are expected.

Ketchum's Wildness Hurts A's

TOE BUSH hurled one of his good games and the Mackmen lost another to the Yanks. The A's gave the bullet person a sfiff struggle from start to finish and had it not been for wildness on the part of Ketchum, the Texas recruit, the result might have been different.

Sir Joseph allowed but four lats during the fraces, for his seventh successive victory and his eighteenth of the second. One of the quarter of the bingles was Welch's homer in the eighth, which counted Hauser ahead of him and knotted the figures.

Up until the eighth, when Rommel was exasted for a pinch hitter, the game was a titanic pitching duel. For three innings not a man reached first on Handsome Eddle. In the fourth Dugan had a single. A pair of doubles counted one in the fifth and unother in the sixth when Bush arched a triple and counted when Galloway made a low throw to first on Dugan's bounder.

The A's could do little with Bush until Welch's round-tripper in the eight. Three more hits, a double and a single by Galloway and Perkins' onebase blow, was the total damage.

Ketchum's vildness in the night, when he walked a pair, and Bush's single spelled doom for the Muchlets

In the other American League game Walter Johnson did a lot of good burling and hitting and heat the Red Sox, thus preventing the Athletics from losing a game in their struggle to keep out of last place. Johnson drove across three runs with a pair of singles and held the Beancaters to eight hits, most of which were nude in the eighth, when the Sox scored a quartet of tallies,

The Sox made a triple play in the minth inning, too late to do any good. It was the second three-ply killing of the season. Over in the National the Picates continued their fast pace by beating the Reds for their twelfth straight victory. This ties the season's record, held by Cleveland, for consecutive triumplis,

Cooper hurled a brilliant article of ball, allowing but two hits up to the ninth, when the Reds banched three for their only run. Reb Russell, making his first appearance before the home crowd, poled out a four-baser with Carey on base. The victory gave the Bucs a half-game gain on the leading Cards. . . .

THE Giants broke their losing streak at the expense of the Dodgers. Sherry Smith allowed only six hits, but four of them, including a homer by Frank Frisch, spelled disaster for him. Jess Barnes scattered the right bingles made by the Indgers. He was aided by
