YOUNG GOLFERS IN FRONT RANK

New Generation Holds Upper

OCEANS of talk has been spilled in recent years about the passing of the old guard. Harry Cardon, Ted Ray and Sandy Herd are the greatest veterans among the English golfers, while Jock Hutchison, Jim Barnes and Walter Hagen championship.

Here in America the younger generation has jumped into notice with more noise and acclaim than ever before. This has not only been true in regard to the professionals, but also with the amateurs.

with the amateurs.

A year ago Gene Sarazen, for example, was only known to a few folks as a rather promising youngster with a superabundance of nerve and confidence. Today Gene rates with Walter Hagen as the greatest golfer in the land. Johnny Farrell, John Golden and a whole flock party have jumped to the forestont. others have jumped to the forefront in a twinkling.

Take the matches at Oukmont, for example. The older generation was swept out of the way with small ceremony, and of the four men who stepped into the semi-final round three can be rated among the newest, Sarazen, Golden and Cruikshank. Even Emmett French, in splte of his experience, is no battle-scarred veteran like Vardon

The same story came true at Skokie. The same will in all probability come true at many tournaments, amateur and ssional, that are on the cards for the fading days of this season. The Local Newcomers

The axiom that the newer generation is taking matters into its own hands is nowhere truer than right in this vilage of ours.

Philadelphia has kept step with other sections in developing new talent, par-ticularly among the amateurs. And by "new" those who have climbed to a commanding position during the last two or three years can be considered.

The most sensational, probably, is Charley Doelp, of Lu Lu Temple, who won his biggest triumph at the Cricket Club several weeks ago, when he won the St. Marting Cup against stiff com-petition. Doelp had been an unknown quantity until that time, but now he firmly set and playing good enough golf to allow him to compete in the amateur championships at Brookline.

and that included one boundary

Had Lady Luck been smiling at him Had Lady Luck been smiling at him he would probably have broken the badly dented record, which has been smashed twice within a few weeks.

Eddie Driggs, of Merion, who has a penchant for playing the Pine Valley course, is another golfer who should go a long way at his newest love. Eddie used to be a great football player, but since stepping into the humdrum of business life he has found golf to be the game he likes best.

All the managers are hot on the trail of players. They have made numerous changes during the week, and many of the weak holes have been plugged up. New pitchers, infielders and outfielders have been signed by all of the teams, and more are to come before next Monday, the final day for securing of players.

One of the hectic clashes carded on content's havent will be decided in West game he likes best. There are several score others who deserve mention, among them Marcus Greer, Mike Tobin and Fitz Sargent, so Philadelphia needs doff the Kelly to none Philadelphia needs doff the Kelly to none in the development of amateur timber to shore up the championship throne.

Tobin is a product of the public links and Greer had his first training there, so Cobbs Creek can share with the clubs in this vicinity the honor of bringing some of the youthful stars of the period to the front.

Forty-eighth and Brown streets, and early comers will get the posts of vantage. The opposing pitchers are uncertain at this time, because the rival managers refuse to divulge their identity. Up at Senton Field Club, PhilEllena and Musgrave streets, the Mount tered on that spot over the week-end.

It is not known yet how many of the American stars will be there, but the best that Pine Valley has to offer in the golfing line will be out to compete for the George A. Crump Memorial Cup. So, no matter what happens, the playing on the Jersey course should be a classic. Even better still should be the bestball play against par on Sunday, when the four low scorers of the previous day will tune up their drives in an effort to conquer the Pine Valley figures.

Jimmy Devlin, the professional star who has charge of the golf links of the Concaldo Vanderbilt, in Porto Rico, will leave Saturday night for that balmy spot to prepare for the busy season shead of him. Jim has been in Philadelphia several months and competed in the Philadelphia open and in the quali-fying round for the Professional Golfers' Association championship.

Shanahan bunched four of their seven hits in the third round, and these, mixed in with two bases on balls, gave them five runs and enough to win the game. After this round Hayes, the center fielder of the Delawarians took the mound, but the damage had been done.

The North Phils played indifferent ball last night, and were easily defeated by the crack Baltimore Black Sox assregation at Fourth and Wingehocking streets, 7 to 1. Robertson was mauled by the colored team for thirteen hits, while the North Phils hit hard, but could only push over one run,
