I donned my best bib and tucker and bled me out to watch the Australians

However, in spite of the "warmness" I donned my best bib and tucker and hied me out to watch the Australians and "Alonso" do their best to win the Davis Cup.

It's an awful thing to say I know, but the fact remains—frocks of the early spring and summer are old style. And why, because we just naturally would not believe the long skirts were actually coming back, and that people would wear them. But everywhere I go now, I find the gowns longer and longer. At Irene Hunter Derbyshire's wedding on Wednesday I saw one gown worn by a New York woman, which was actually just three inches from the ground in front and back, and draped up to about six inches on the sides. Yesterday at Manheim nearly all the frocks were longer. And how much more becoming they are to the tall slender women than the short skirts were! I admit they were pretty for young girls, but, too many of the girls of an older growth insisted on shortwere! I admit they were pretty for young girls, but, too many of the girls of an older growth insisted on shortming theirs as much as their daughters and that really was 'not so good.'

TENNIS is the thing up at Newport TENNIS is the thing up at Newport this week, too, you know, and if you feel you would be cooler up there than here, because it is further north and on the sea, you are mistaken, for be it known I have had a letter from the friend who is anonding this mouth. friend who is spending this month

One of the prettiest was worn by Mrs. Craig Biddle. It was of creamy lace and chiffon and was about three inches from the ground. Her hat was inches from the ground. Her hat was a nodel of cream georgette trimmed with a large water lily. Young Laura Biddle wore a lovely girlish dress of hand-drawn white volle and a hat of the same material trimmed with a simple stiff bow at the side.

On Thursday Mrs. Biddle was in light blue, the sleeves and girdle of the gown being elaborately embroidered in small red and black squares. Mrs. George D. Widener, another woman, wore a lovely frock made in one piece, of pale laven-der crepe, and her hat was a pale, pale trimmed with pink grapes. Strange to say, she carried a brilliant red parasol with this costume. But the pink and red did not quarrel a bit,

Northcliffe fiddled on the heart strings of the world

-and Both Hemispheres "Listened In"

The life-story of the late Lord Northcliffe is paralleled only by the life studies of historic heroes in that immortal class with Napoleon. Northcliffe is the one man who has out-Carlyled Carlyleand who has out-Kiplinged Kipling.

The real truth about Northcliffe and his life's faults, resources, errors and triumphs is so startling that it reads like the most sensational fiction.

You will find a most interesting article on the man, Northcliffe, written by a man who has known him for the great character he has been. This is the front-page feature in tomorrow's Sunday Public Ledger.

Magazine Section SUNDAY, AUGUST 20th

Even more interesting than ever you will find the coming week's Magazine Section. Following the feature on Lord Northcliffe, there is an article by Will R. Hammond, in which he points out the possibility that some day, foods will replace medicines for every human ill.

"Over the Shell-pits Again With a Doughboy"-"Uncle Sam as Guest of Honor at Brazil's Biggest Birthday Party" -"Are We On the Edge of One of God's Secrets?"-an article of science on "Solving the Mystery of the Planet Mars"-and two fine short pieces of fiction.

These, together with fun that is funnier than ever in Louis Hanlon's "Follies of the Passing Show," sketches and humorous articles by Homer Balmy and Ring W. Lardner, will give you some very pleasant Sunday reading.

The complete Magazine Section, beautiful sepiatone Rotogravure Section and six-page all-star Comic Section are in addition to the comprehensive News Section of tomorrow's Sunday Public Ledger.
