FLIERS ARE SAVED BY BOAT BELIEVED TO BE RUM-RUNNER

Crew and Passenger of Missing Ambassador II Landed at Long Beach

IDENTITY OF RESCUE CRAFT NOW MYSTERY

Only Hardship Experienced by Three Men Was in Being Transferred at Sea

New York, Aug. 22.—The three men who were lost forty-three hours in a crippled seaplane on the ocean landed early today in a fishing smack at Long Beach, rushed into the city and then immediately left for different parts of the country.

A statement outlining their experiences was issued after they had gone by Major B. L. Smith, operating head of the company owning the lost seaplane. The rescued men were V. S. Robinson, of Pittsburgh, the passenger; W. T. Miller, pilot, and Harold Thompson, mechanic. Robinson went to Atlantic City, Miller and Thompson went to Saratoga. They were reported to have left in one of the company's planes.

Rum-Runner, He Says

The statement said that the seaplane fell into the water about two miles off Long Beach Sunday morning during a heavy fog when the engine went dead. The passenger and crew finally were rescued by the fishing smack.

This morning no trace could be picked up at Long Beach of the unnamed schooner credited with rescuing the airplane. When Major Smith later was asked the name of the two-sticker, he said: "The name was not given Miller, nor was her destination or the time she expected to reach the port. I presume, therefore, she was a rum-running schooner."

Believed Chasing Her

Major Smith said he understood the seaplane was chased by a schooner which joined warships, tugs, speed-boats and planes in the search for the lost Ambassador II now was looking for the schooner. Coast officials here, however, said she had received no such orders.

Rum runners frequently have been reported lying off the Long Beach coast.

The statement issued by Major Smith said that the passenger of the seaplane, flying about 11 miles off Long Beach Sunday afternoon, were landed at Long Beach last evening by a small fishing schooner. Captain Miller reported that the flying boat, reports that on a light-sounding flight along the Long Island shore he circled southward in the direction of Far Rockaway and started in the direction of Far Rockaway when, at an altitude of about 1200 feet, he saw a schooner.

"This was about 9:15 A. M., Sunday. He was forced to land about two miles off of Long Beach.

"The seaplane came alongside, but due to the extreme heavy weather it required about two hours to maneuver into a position permitting the crew and passenger to change from the seaplane to the schooner.

Major Miller reports that on final inspection of his motor he found that one of the driving gears of the motor had broken, crippling the ignition system, which caused the motor to stop.

Plane May Be Saved

"Captain Miller states that when last seen the plane was drifting easily, and is still believed to be intact, and will be located and picked up by some passing vessel.

"Captain Miller reports that no hardships were suffered except the incident of transferring from one boat to another on the high seas. The passenger, V. S. Robinson, of Pittsburgh, stated that he and a party of friends were motoring and stopped at Atlantic City during the hot spell, and he seized the opportunity for an early morning flight before proceeding on their trip to the White Mountains.

"Mr. Robinson stated that at no time did he or his companions experience any sense of alarm except at the moment of transferring from the flying boat to the fishing schooner. He spoke enthusiastically of Captain Miller and Mechanician Thompson.

U. S. STEEL BOOSTS WAGES 20 PER CENT

Day Laborers to Receive 36 Cents an Hour After September 1

New York, Aug. 22.—(By A. P.)—The United States Steel Corporation today announced that the wages of day labor at all its manufacturing plants would be increased 20 per cent September 1 and that other rates would be equitably adjusted.

At the offices of the corporation it was said that about 150,000 men would be affected by the new scale and that they would receive thirty-six cents an hour under the advanced wages.

The corporation has about 230,000 men on its payroll, but 64,000 are in the mining and transportation departments, it was said.

The increase is the first since February, 1920, when the men were boosted 10 per cent and received forty-seven cents an hour. On May 16, 1921, the wages were cut 20 per cent and on June 10 of the same year overtime was cut out for the workers. The final cut came August 19, 1921, when wages were reduced to thirty cents an hour.

Officers of the Crucible Steel Corporation said that no action on increased wages had yet been taken by their board. At the Bethlehem Steel Corporation offices it was said that no action had been taken.

Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 22.—(By A. P.)—James A. Campbell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, largest independent steel company in the Youngstown district, said his concern would lead the lead of the United States Steel Corporation in increasing wages for day labor, 20 per cent, with equitable adjustment for other classes of employees.

Rich Mrs. Wakefield to Buy Husband for $100 a Month

Everybody Said to Be Agreeable to Former Mrs. Spreckel's Taking Mate of Sick Woman After Divorce

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—An offer by Mrs. Edith Huntington Spreckels Wakefield, first wife of the late "Jack" Spreckels, California millionaire, and her prominent in San Francisco, to "buy" another woman's husband from her for $100 a month for the rest of her life, came to light here today and is admitted by all persons involved.

The husband whom Mrs. Wakefield is credited with having offered to "buy" is Rodney Kendrick, newspaper artist. The wife, who is ill and admits she is "considering" the offer, said she already had given her wedding ring to Mrs. Wakefield. Mrs. Wakefield said she, too, planned a divorce.

A statement from Mrs. Wakefield said: "It was a long time ago I told Mrs. Kendrick that I loved her husband and wanted to marry him. I promised her she would have a home with Rodney and myself as long as she lived. She is a very sick girl and I took care of her for weeks. A hundred times she told me how grateful she was to me in the presence of her husband and his mother and sister. When we left her I put $500 in the bank for her to draw on."

Wife Doesn't Object

The wife said: "Mrs. Wakefield wrote me a letter five or six weeks ago, when I was in a sanitarium, asking me to come to her home in San Francisco, to live with her a year ago and I thought her motive was one of kindness and friendship. Soon after I arrived she told me that she was in love with my husband, and that she was in love with her. She said she would give me $100 a month for life, and would see that my baby thing was taken care of if I would divorce her. She said she would marry me as soon as she secured a divorce from Mr. Wakefield. Ten days ago she and my husband both told me that it would be better for all if we were divorced. I was in love with her. I was in love with her. I was in love with her."

Mr. and Mrs. Wakefield were married in Honolulu seven years ago for five minutes after she and "Jack" Spreckels had been divorced. Word came from the divorce court that she was free to marry. She had been divorced from Mr. Wakefield. Ten days ago she and my husband both told me that it would be better for all if we were divorced. I was in love with her. I was in love with her. I was in love with her.

HARDING INSISTS ON NEUTRAL PROBE OF COAL INDUSTRY

Borah and Winslow Bills Are Before Senate and House Respectively

BOTH GRANT SWEEPING POWERS TO COMMISSION

Illinois Chiefs and Miners Come to Terms—Near Agreement in Other States

Washington, Aug. 22.—While the Senate Labor Committee was taking the first formal action toward creation of the coal committee recommended by President Harding, the President let it be known today that he was disposed to insist that the investigating body be made up exclusively of impartial representatives of the public without special representation for either mine operators or employees.

A bill for a commission on which the President would be free to choose representatives of the operators, miners or the House as he saw fit was favorably reported by the Senate committee. At the House the House Interstate Commerce Committee, working independently, refused to strike from its tentative bill a provision which would expressly prohibit membership on the commission of any person having any interest in or connection with the coal industry.

The House committee's bill also was favorably reported after a number of changes were made from the form in which it officially was drafted by Chairman Winslow. As perfected, it provides for a commission of nine members, while the measure now before the Senate committee specified that the membership shall be five. In each bill the commission is provided sweeping powers of investigation.

Miners Have Own Probe

The President's desire that no representative of the industry sit on the commission was said at the White House to be based on the fact that the bituminous operators in the union fields and the miners' union had agreed to set up a commission of their own for the purpose of securing general facts about the industry.

In addition, it was said the complexity of the coal industry, when the varied conditions of the anthracite field are also taken into the study, would require the larger and unwieldy body in the opinion of the President, if any attempt were made to put upon it partisan representatives of employers and employees.

The bill reported from the Senate Labor Committee was drafted by the committee chairman, Senator Borah, who said he expected to call it up in the Senate tomorrow. In its original form it had proposed that representatives of the operators, miners and House be given places on the commission, but Mr. Borah eliminated this stipulation at the request of the President.

In the House committee an effort to strike out the specific provision against partisan representation was made by Representative Denison, who comes from the Herrin district. After rejection of his motion, Mr. Denison announced that he would take his fight to the floor of the House, where he hoped to bring up the Winslow bill within a day or two.

Earlier in the day Representative Bland, whose fact-finding commission bill is now in committee, also announced that he would make an effort to acceptance of his measure, which gives representation to miners and operators. Provides Five Members.
