Despite Defeat Tommy Loughran Shows Grit and Rallies Before Finish of Bout With Tunney

WEIGHT HANDICAP DEFEATS LOUGHRAN

Dropped for "Nine" in First Round by Gene Tunney, Tommy Flares Later and Finishes in Great Rally Before 22,000

10 POUNDS LIGHTER

By LOUIS H. JAFFE

GIVING away something like ten pounds or more proved too much of a handicap for Tommy Loughran, really a middleweight, and the South Philadelphia nineteen-year-old today feels that he stepped out of his class in meeting Gene Tunney, former light-heavyweight champion of America, the latter winning in eight rounds at the Phillies ball park last night. Tunney's weight was announced as 173 and Loughran ten pounds less.

Knocked down and almost out, being on the floor for the count of nine a minute and forty seconds after the opening bell sounded, Loughran gamely went through the contest and finished in such a rally in the last three minutes that he had the 22,000 fans up on their feet rooting hard for the local entry.

Tunney was entirely too strong for Loughran. He crowded Tommy most of the time, roughing him on the ropes and several times Referee "Billy" Recap had to caution the New Yorker for unnecessary jostling.

IN THAT first round Loughran's remarkable recuperative powers saved him from being put to sleep. A terrific right-hander, flush on the chin, dropped Tommy with a bang to his knees. The youth tried to get up at the count of three, just about got to his feet near the ropes, and then went down again, staying there until "nine."

WHEN he regained his equilibrium Loughran was shaky; but he made Tunney miss another right-hander, fell into a clinch and, by reason of his defensive work, as well as holding tactics, T. Patrick succeeded in lasting out the rather stormy canto.

Tunney Staggered

Having entered the ring with a damaged lower lip, Tunney's mouth started to show blood with the very first jab landed by Loughran, and when he came out for the second session Gene still was bleeding. Throughout that period Loughran was careful, most of the time on the defensive, and he took no chances.

The third round was entirely different. As soon as they reached the center of the ring Loughran side-stepped a hefty right cross by Tunney and, with the latter going by, Tommy clipped him behind the ear with a star-board sock. The blow shook up Gene, and Loughran was on him, driving both hands to the head.

Loughran showed a lot of speed and cleverness, making Tunney miss often, while he uncorked a flock of left jabs that earned him this round, so that at the finish of the three minutes it was two to one in Gene's favor.

Tunney came out for the fourth shooting right after right at Tom's chin. He landed one or two, but Loughran succeeded in keeping himself out of the zone of most of the New Yorker's hefty wallops. Then Gene switched and began leading with his left, following with a right, in one - two fashion. Again Thomas was able to keep his foe missing.

LOUGHRAN flared after about a minute and a half of the fourth and he finished strongly and in a brilliant rally. He jabbed Tunney stiffly and often, also driving hard rights to the body, and at the finish Tommy was entitled to a 50-50 split for the period.

DURING the interval between the fourth and fifth rounds, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, in his heyday a leading middleweight, suddenly made his appearance in Loughran's corner. He encouraged the Philadelphian with advice to keep stepping, to feint and to make Tunney miss.

Falls After Miss

That's exactly what Loughran did at the start of the fifth. In his anxiety to get over his vicious right, Tunney missed Tom's chin by inches as the latter sidestepped and Gene fell flat on his face, almost through the ropes. There were some spectators who thought Loughran had knocked down Gene, but no punch was landed.

Tunney was the aggressor throughout that fifth and kept Loughran on the defensive, so that while little damage was done, the Gotham gloveman's forcing tactics entitled him to a shade for the round.

Loughran boxed well at the start of the sixth. He stepped around nicely and seemed refreshed. A right cross clipped the Philadelphian on the chin and his knees sagged a bit, then stepping in, Tunney hooked a left to the body and seemed to weaken Tom. The close of the period found Loughran rather fatigued and he appeared to be shaky as he strode to his corner.

The opening of the seventh found Loughran leaving his corner still a bit tired. He backed away, with Tunney rushing and crowding the downtowner, trying his utmost to get over a right-hander. After Gene had piled up a safe lead for the round, Loughran suddenly stood his ground, seemed to have regained a lot of his lost strength and forced Tunney back with a series of punches to head and body.

THEN came the eighth. With Tunney out in front, four rounds in his favor, two even and one belonging to Loughran, Tommy made his usual last-round finish, virtually smothering the visitor with punches. The South Philadelphian was all over Tunney like a cloak. He landed blow after blow and hardly stopped for a second in his attack. In the meantime Gene floundered around without being permitted to get set.

That great finish of Loughran fascinated the big gathering. Tommy showed, despite the big handicap in weight and also Tunney's advantage in experience, he did not lack grit, and there was no doubt in the minds of a majority of fans that a different story would have been written had the poundage been anywhere near equal.

Brown Trims Moran

The Loughran-Tunney match was put on following the third bout, that between Harry Kid Brown and Pal Moran, after it had been curtailed to six rounds because a slight drizzle had started during the fourth frame of the latter contest. For the half dozen rounds in which they faced each other Brown had the better of three, two were even and Moran earned only one.

This victory by Brown against the New Orleans Italian came as a big surprise and probably beat Moran out of a date with Lew Tendler here. For two rounds they boxed at an even clip. Then Brown went ahead in the third, Moran raking the fourth and the next two were Brown's.

BROWN took the sixth by a wide margin, shaking up Pal several times.

JOE TIPLITZ, while he won almost every round from Willie Herman, substituting for Joe Benjamin, found himself in a tough tussle. The closeness of the contest can not be taken by the number of rounds won.

Tip Scores Knockdown

While Tiplitz poked Herman with sufficient punches in the body to sink a less hardy fistman, Herman retaliated with a flock of punches to Tippie's face that had his features pretty well mussed up at the end.

Tiplitz scored a nine-second knockdown with the first punch of the bout, a left hook to the jaw, seven seconds after the opening gong. Tiplitz was floored in the fourth round.

Earl Baird went off into a lead against Eddie Kid Wagner in the opener, but the latter came back so strongly and with such flashes in the seventh and eighth that he was entitled to a draw. It was a hard bout.

Fans Contribute $762.29 to Bob Maxwell Memorial

Boxing fans of this city responded generously to the appeal for contributions to the Robert W. Maxwell Memorial Fund and a total of $762.29 was collected. By the permission of Promoters Gunnis and Taylor, announcement of the collection was made by Joe Griffo and girls from the Girls' Service League under the direction of Miss Rose Ostrow passed down the aisles and received the subscriptions.

WEIGHT TOO MUCH, SAYS LOUGHRAN

Tom Put Up 'Real Man's Fight,' Declares Father Joseph A. Kelly

"THE weight was too much for me. I did not put up the bout of which I am capable, but I have no alibies."

This is what Tommy Loughran, South Philadelphia pride, had to say today following his bout last night at the Phillies' Ball Park with Gene Tunney.

"After being knocked down in the first round I just couldn't get started. It really was not until near the end of the seventh that I found I was myself."

More than 500 neighbors of the Loughrans awaited the return of Thomas Patrick, riding in an automobile with Father Joseph A. Kelly at the head of a score or more other machines, the St. Monica's Naval Battalion Band, led by Al McGlynn, trailing and blaring behind the car which carried their "hero."

When he reached his home at 1634 Ritner street, just as the midnight chimes were sounding, Loughran immediately entered the house amid rabid cheering and shouts for a speech. But Tom was not in the humor for talking. Within his abode the youth was in tears.

"I know I didn't put up my best fight. I can box a lot better," he said, sobbing, to his relatives and several close friends.

Outside, on the doorstep, Father Kelly was talking. He told the gathering that came from blocks around that "Tommy put up a real man's fight. He showed me and every one there that he possesses the qualifications of a champion, and it won't be long before you all will be cheering a title-holder right here at this doorstep.

"Tonight Tommy faced the real champion, not the supposed-to-be champion, and the boy did remarkably well.

"Tunney himself paid Tommy his biggest tribute when he told me that he had just been given the hardest battle of his career."

New York, Aug. 25.—The St. Louis Browns increased their lead in the American League race by a full game, winning in a great battle from the Yankees here this afternoon in the first fracas of a twin bill. The final score was 3 to 1.

Despite threatening skies and a strong east wind, moist with rain, the crowd swarmed to the park early, and the sale of grandstand seats was stopped before the first game started.

Urban Shocker, the St. Louis ace, warmed up for the first game. Waite Hoyt, Yankees' youthful pitching star, was called upon to pitch by Huggins.

A drizzle began to fall in the second inning. By that time the entire stadium was crowded, with the exception of a small space in the centerfield bleachers.

St. Louis scored one run in the second. Jacobson opened with a single, advanced to second on McManus' out and scored on Severeid's triple to right. Gerber and Shocker left Severeid, going out on easy flies.

St. Louis got to Hoyt in the sixth inning and put over two runs. Foster and Sisler led off with singles and Foster advanced to third after Williams drove a long fly to Witt. A pass to Jacobson filled the bases. McManus lined the first pitch to left for a single, scoring Foster and Sisler. Severeid hit a long fly to Ruth, while Gerber was tossed out at first by Ward.

A spectacular double play prevented St. Louis from scoring in the ninth, after Murray went to pitch for New York. Gerber led off with a single, but Shocker's attempted sacrifice was converted into a double play, Pipp to Scott to Ward. Tobin doubled but Scott tossed out Foster at first.

New York's rally in the ninth flickered out after one run scored, St. Louis winning.

Dugan opened with a single to right and Ruth singled through McManus, his first hit in four games. Foster made a great running catch of Pipp's foul. Schang fanned on three pitched balls, Meusel singled to center, Dugan scoring. Ruth taking third. Ward ended the game with a pop-fly to Foster.

Shocker held the Yanks to seven hits. His record against the Yankees this season is now four victories and five defeats.

Chaney's Left Batters France to Floor in Second

When Earl France's seconds leaped into the ring while he was on the floor in the second round of last night's bout at the Phils Park, George Chaney automatically became the winner. Referee Joe Griffo had counted five up until that time. It was the second knockdown of the round and a left to the jaw did the trick. France was floored by a left for the count of nine a minute and thirty-three seconds after the start of the second session, falling face downward with his throat resting on the lower rope. He got to his feet, still groggy, and ten seconds later was dropped with another southpaw sock, this time falling backward with legs bent under him. When helped to his feet France became indignant because the bout had been stopped, crying: "No, no—you shouldn't have done it."

FRENCH TENNIS STAR LONGWOOD SENSATION

Jean Borotra Could Be One of World's Greatest Players, Says Tilden—Caused Upset of Williams and Washburn in National Doubles

By WILLIAM T. TILDEN, 2D
National Tennis Champion

Boston, Aug. 25.

"LITTLE BILL" JOHNSTON and Wallace Johnson, Nathaniel W. Niles and Jean Borotra entered the semi-final round of the national doubles tennis championship at the Chestnut Hill court of the Longwood Cricket Club here yesterday afternoon.

The eliminated: Kinsey brothers, of San Francisco, and R. N. Williams, of Boston, and Watson Washburn, of New York.

Both matches went the limit, Niles and Borotra winning, 6-3, 7-5, 3-6, 2-6, 6-2, while Johnston and Johnson won, 10-8, 8-6, 5-7, 4-6, 6-3.

Undoubtedly, the feature of the day was the upset of Williams and Washburn, the 1921 Davis Cup defenders, by the scratch Franco-American combination. Seldom has a finer exhibition of doubles play been seen than that of Borotra.

Receiving no more than average support from his partner, he carried the first two sets by the most remarkable court covering and volleying that I have ever seen.

If his ground shots equaled his agility and net game, Borotra would be one of the greatest tennis players in the world.

Credit to Borotra

Williams and Washburn were not at their best. How much of this was due to the surprise occasioned by the sensational playing of Borotra, and how much of it was due to an off day is hard to say. But my impression was that the Frenchman deserves much of the credit for the seemingly poor showing of the Americans in the first two sets.

Borotra tired in the early games of the third set, which resulted in a loss of accuracy in his volleying. Williams and Washburn seized their opportunity and ran through the third set with the loss of three games. The rest did not seem to materially aid Borotra, although the other three men appeared fresh when they again took the court.

A break of Borotra's delivery in the first game of the fourth set gave the former American Davis Cup team the jump, and with this added incentive they dashed through to square the match.

Psychological breaks occurred in the second and third games of the fifth set, when Williams and Washburn passed up opportunities to break their opponents' delivery and were then broken through themselves.

Niles, who up to now had been playing his average game, lifted it above that of any man on the court, and, throughout the remainder of the match, was the dominating figure.

This, coupled with Borotra's return to his sensational form of the first two sets, carried the international team to a 6-2 victory. The outstanding features of the match were Borotra's volleying and return of service off his backhand, and Niles' magnificent play in the fifth set.

A Fatal Lapse

Johnston and Johnson justified their "seeding" over the Kinsey brothers, but only after five sets of the most bitterly contested tennis of the tournament. I felt that the Kinseys tossed away a golden opportunity in the first set when Howard dropped his service when leading 5-4.

This lapse gave the others a chance which they immediately seized and they ran out the set at 8-6, again breaking Howard's service, this time at love.

The second set was a replica of the first, with Bob Kinsey the victim of the only service break. Johnston and Johnson pressed on to what seemed a certain straight-set win when they led 5-4 and match point on Howard's service, but they lacked the necessary punch to put over the winning shot and the steadiness of the Kinseys led them into three errors in a row, tieing the score at five-all.

The Kinseys, as usual, jumped into the aggressive and by breaking Wallace's service in the twelfth game they prolonged the match.

Throughout the fourth set the Kinseys held the situation well in hand, and, although closely pressed, held their advantage to the end to carry the contest into the fifth set.

The turning point came in the second game of the final set when Rob dropped his delivery after leading at 40-love. Bill Johnston gained a 3-love lead in a series of hard-fought rallies, all of which went to the Philadelphia-San Francisco pair.

A costly decision on the baseline against the Kinseys gave Johnston and Johnson a 4-1 lead which practically settled the outcome.

Two Hard Matches

Niles and Borotra today will meet Pat Wood and Gerald Patterson, the Australian Davis Cup challengers, in one semi-final bracket, while Johnston and Johnson meet Richards and myself on the other side. Take your pick for the final round.

Arnold W. Jones, of Providence, will meet Lewis White, of Texas, for the junior title tomorrow by virtue of their respective victories over John Whitbeck, of New York, and W. W. Ingraham, of Providence.

The boys' title rests between David O'Loughlin, of Pittsburgh, and Malcolm Hill, of Longwood, who won their matches from Stuart Gaynesy, of New York, and B. H. Whitbeck, of Bronxville. The probable title winners are Jones and O'Loughlin.

The indefatigable Borotra was not satisfied with his work in the doubles, but played two matches in the national mixed doubles paired with Mrs. May Sutton Bundy.

They entered the semi-final round at the expense of the leading Spanish Davis Cup stars, Count de Gomar, who played with Mrs. Henry, of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-4, and Manuel Alonso, whose partner was Miss Walsh, of Philadelphia, 6-2, 9-7.

BRADY TOPS FIELD IN WESTERN GOLF

Detroit Golfer Has Three-Stroke Lead on Jock Hutchison for 54 Holes

LAURIE AYTON IS THIRD

Birmingham, Mich., Aug. 25.—Mike Brady, of Detroit, held a three-stroke lead in the western open golf tournament over the Oakland Hills course at the end of the morning round today with a score of 217 for fifty-four holes and eighteen to go.

Jock Hutchison was second with 220. Mike made a 76 this morning and Jock a 75.

Laurie Ayton, of Chicago, shot himself into third place with a 72—222—while the rest of the field was scattered.

Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, went out in 36 and came back in 46 which gave him 230 for fifty-four holes and virtually eliminated him from a chance at the title.

Play started with Brady, leading with 141, Hutchinson second with 143, Farrell and Dave Robertson tied for third with 148 each.

Jock cut two strokes off Mike's lead on the first hole when he sank a birdie three against Brady's five. Hutchison and Brady finished the first nine with 37 each, enabling Mike to maintain his three-stroke lead.

Poor putting kept Jock from overcoming Brady's lead, for he took six on the par four tenth and missed a short putt for a birdie on the eighteenth. Mike also putted badly. The cards:
