"If Rod Marries Mrs. Wakefield I'll Have to Keep Them Both," Parent Says

WIFE LAUGHED AT FEARS

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 25.—"If Red marries Mrs. Wakefield, I'll have them both to keep. They are both irrespon-sible. Neither of them has ever

The speaker was Mrs. Rodney Ken-drick, Sr., mother of the man for whose drick, Sr., mother of the man for whose love two women are waging a battle.

One, Mrs. Nellie Kendrick, has legal claim to the man. He is her husband, father of her fourteen-month-old child. The other, Mrs. Edith Huntington Spreckels Wakefield, holds that her claim is the greater. "Rod loves me and I love him," is her announcement. The mother, Mrs. Kendrick, Sr., told this story:

"I have pleaded with and stormed at these children for the last two months, but all to no avail. Nothing could end their mad ifffatuation. Rod wouldn't listen. Edith laughed my fears to scorn and Nellie assured me I was a fool—that everything was all right.

"I pleaded with Nellie not to go to the Wakefield home at Sausalito, but she would go. She called me silly for protesting. She said the affection between Edith and Rod was the most protesting. She said the affection between Edith and Rod was the most beautiful thing in the world—pure and clean, above the sordidness of life. So they went.

"But I knew different. I knew that throwing Rod and Edith together in such close quarters was like setting a match to dynamite.

"I went to the Wakefield home and the section of again. pleaded again and again.

Laughed to Scorn

"Nellie grew worse. Rod sent her sanitarium. He rented an o'd back of the Heel Oakland and fitted up a studio, where he lived. Every cent that boy made went to take care of Nellie in the sanitarium at Mrs. Kendrick has hundreds of can-celed checks for money which she paid out for her son's wife. She turned them over slowly as she continued the virtues. Great wealth has been her

"If Edith Wakefield had to earn her own living she would have made a won-derful interior decorator. She can take a shack and make it a bower of loveliness. It is this talent that attracted my son. He and Edith had so much in common. That is why I was fearful. But they would not listen to me."

Mrs. Kendrick paused and gazed Mrs. Kendrick paused and gazed about the little cottage which she is remodeling for Nellie and the baby.

She murmured:
"I hope Nellie will come back and bring the baby here. Here is where she belongs. She's a poor, sick girl, and I have nothing but plty and love in my heart for her and the baby—it is such a darling. After all, she is Rod's wife, and Rod—well, Rod has done wrong, but he is just a mere boy and has never grown up.

"What do you think he said to me the other day when I threatened to thrush him, beat him to a pulp? He thrash him, beat him to a pulp? He told me to make it raisin pulp and he'd get 150 gallons out of it.

'You see how irresponsible he is.
Edith is the same way. What she wants she goes after, and I'll have them wants she goes after, and I'll have them both to keep.

"As long as Nellie and the baby live, I'll be here waiting for them whenever they need me."

Mrs. Ken-Irick, Jr., has planned to file suit tomorrow for $25,000 for alleged alienation of affections. But there were reports yesterday of a possible settlement outside court. John D. Spreckels, Sr., capitalist, grandfather of Mrs. Wakefield's three children, was in San Francisco, but would not discuss the case.

BOBS HAIR: HUBBY LEAVES Young Wife Asks Police to Solve Her Dilemma

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Aug. 25.—
(By A. P.)—The question of "to bob or not to bob," as applied to women's hair, came up today at police head-quarters when Sergeant Wrenn was appealed to by an attractive young to the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of Tuckahoe, for a guard to accept the property of the property matron of Tuckahoe, for a guard to ac-company her home while she packed her

"My husband has left me because bobbed my hair," she said. "Will you help me? I'm afraid to go back for my clothes without an escort, because I fear my husband may come in and beat me. e Hwas awfully mad over my having my hair bobbed." Sergeant Wrenn, after getting the long and short of the situation, told the young woman to go to the Tuckahoe police station. Instead she vanished into the night.

The performer previously notes the top card of the pack. When the pack is cut he takes the bottom heap and, looking at the upmost card, names the card which he knows is at the top of the upper pile. When he squares up the pack he places his heap on top, and able to repeat the trick exactly as

WIDOW OF STEINWAY AGAIN LED TO ALTAR

Bride of War Veteran Was Wife of Late Plano Maker

Los Angeles, Aug. 25 .- (By A. P.) Mrs. Marie C. Steinway, widow of Charles H. Steinway, New York plano manufacturer, and Captain F. L. Lefevre, World War veteran, were married at Santa Barbara, Calif., a week ago today, according to a story pub-lished by the Los Angeles Examiner. Their marriage, which was performed in the Santa Barbara Mission with the old Jesuit ritual, was said to have fol-lowed a romance of several years. The bride came to California for her heatth

"The disparity in our ages is a thing that neither of us has thought of. Mentally and sentimentally, we are the same age. Love is as old as the world and as young as the morning dew. We love each other; we are very happy."

GIRL. PICKING FILM ACTOR, FAVORS FAT HUSBANDS

That's the advice offered by Miss That's the advice offered by Miss Adah MacWilliams, nineteen-year-old Syracuse helress, daughter of Charles MacWilliams, shoe manufacturer. Just to refute the philosopher's adage, "no one loves a fat man." she has announced her betrothal to Walter Hiers, screen heavyweight comedian. "Peaches," as the Syracuse bud is familiarly known, last night for the familiarly known, last night for the first time told all about her romance, which will culminate in December with a fashionable wedding. And Hiers, who is here to visit his fiancee, says Miss MacWilliams has nancee, says Miss MacWilliams has the right idea.

"You see," he said, "they can't fight and they can't run; they just have to be good-natured. And good nature spells happiness."

"To pick out an average-size man is easy." said Miss MacWilliams. "Any
