A Short Travel Story of a Man and His Wife

A Philadelphia manufacturer was called to Pittsburgh on business recently. His wife, who accompanied him, wanted to stop at Washington over night. They took the Baltimore & Ohio Chicago Limited at 10:10 A. M. (standard time), arrived at Washington at 1:10 in the afternoon and made the stopover.

The next day they again boarded the Chicago Limited and continued on to Pittsburgh, passing the beautiful and historic Harper's Ferry, a hundred miles along the Potomac and through the heart of the picturesque Alleghenies—all in daylight.

They arrived in Pittsburgh at 9:30, in time for a comfortable night's sleep at the hotel.

This same train carries through sleeping car, arriving at Detroit at 7:15 A. M.
