Do Your Feet Increase Your Income?

No, that isn't a far-fetched question. There is an intimate relation between your feet and your pocket-book.

Ask hundreds of workers in every field who have found that comfortable Cantilever Shoes increase their efficiency. Increased efficiency means greater earning power—the capacity to add the third dimension to your pocket-book—that of "lay-by," where heretofore there may have been only the two dimensions of "income" and "outgo."

Recreation, too, plays a large part in your earning power. If you are too tired from your day's work to do anything but drop into a chair or crawl into bed and sleep, you miss the pleasures that re-create you—that build strength, reserve energy and the contagious enthusiasm necessary for success in any line of work. The Increases your earning ability by taking your mind off your feet and allowing you to work at hand. Feet that hurt slow down the worker's efficiency.

The arch of the foot supports the body when standing and acts as a lever to lever and propel it when walking. Cantilever Shoes are made with an arch that conforms to the shape of the foot and fully exercises the muscles and ligaments and keeps them strong—just as nature intended they should always be. The most rounded toe gives sufficient room for comfort, yet is stylish, while the medium or low heel correctly places the body's weight.

JACK O'JUDGMENT

By Edgar Wallace

WHO'S WHO IN THIS STORY

COLONEL DAN BOUNDARY, fat, red-headed, but unaccountably clever, leader of a gang of crooks after capture of receipt of a huge of clubs, engaged "Jack O' Judgment" to find the law a penalty. He tries to disarm suspicion by authorizing around him by conspiring to

STAFFORD KING, of the London Criminal Intelligence force

PINTO SILVA, a sleek man about town, forces his attentions on an actress, who rebuffs him

MAIRIE WHITE, daughter of Ratty White, one of the gang who wishes to retire. Ratty is the greatest of the black-wedding gang

LOLLIE MARSH, a doll-faced but clever girl, who acts as "comp" of the black-wedding gang

"SWELL" CREWE, once a gentleman, now a crook.

So There Is No Money
"HAVEN'T they cashed it?" asked the colonel with a frown.

"They can't cash it," said Pinto in a hollow voice; "there's no money there."

"The colonel picked up the check." "So there's no money there to meet it," he said softly. "And why is there no money there to meet it?"

"Because it was drawn out three days ago, I thought," said Pinto incoherently.

"I saw Ferguson and he told me that a check for the full amount came through from the Bank of England."

"In whose favor was it drawn?" Pinto cleared his throat.

"In favor of the chancellor of the exchequer," he said. "That's why Ferguson passed it without question. He said that otherwise he would have sent a note to you."

"The chancellor of the exchequer?" asked the colonel. "What does it mean?"

"Look here! Ferguson showed it to me himself," he said. "He took a copy of the Times from his pocket and laid it on the table, pointing out the paragraph with trembling fingers."

"It was in the advertisement column and it was brief: 'The chancellor of the exchequer desires to acknowledge the receipt of eighty-one thousand pounds conscience money from Colonel D. B.'"

"Conscience money!"

"The colonel sat back in his chair and laughed softly. He was genuinely amused.

"Of course we can get this back," he said at last. "We can explain to the chancellor of the exchequer the trick that has been played upon us, but that means delay, and at the moment delay is really dangerous. I suppose both you fellows have money of your own. I know Pinto has. How do you stand Crewe?"

"I have a little," said Crewe, "but honestly I was depending upon my share of the gang."

"What about you, colonel?" asked Pinto meaningfully. "If I may suggest it we should pool our money and divide."

The colonel smiled.

"Don't be silly," he said tersely. "I doubt whether my balance at the bank is more than a couple of thousand pounds."

"But what about your private safe-deposit box?" persisted Pinto. "Aha! You didn't know I knew that, did you? As a matter of fact, Ferguson told me that—"

"What the devil does Ferguson mean by discussing my business?" said the colonel wrathfully. "What did he tell you?"

"He told me that the package was received and that he had put it with the other in your safe."

"Package? The colonel's voice was quiet, almost inaudible. The package was received? When was the package received?"

"Yesterday," said Pinto. "He said it came and he put it with the other. Now what have you got in—"

But the colonel was walking toward his bedroom with rapid strides. Presently he reappeared with his hat and coat on.

"Come with me, Crewe, we'll go down to the bank," he said. "You stay here, Pinto, and report anything that happens here to me."

When they were on their way he confided to the other:

"I have a little money put aside and I'm willing to finance you. You haven't been a bad fellow, Crewe. The only rotten turn you ever did us was introducing that fellow, Snow Gregory, and you didn't even do that, for I had met him before and brought him from Monte—Which reminds me. Have you found anything about him?"

"I have a letter here from Oxford," said Crewe, but he didn't open it in his pocket. "I hadn't opened my letters when Pinto came. You'll find all the news there, if there is any news."

"He hadn't been a little bit other, and the colonel transferred it to his pocket."

"That'll keep," he said. "What was I talking about?" asked Snow Gregory. The whole of this business has come about through Gregory. Gregory made Jack O' Judgment and Jack O' Judgment has ruined us."

He sprang from the taxi at the door of the bank with an agile step and went straight to the manager's office. Without any preliminary he began to talk to that man as if he were a fellow-crook.

"What is this package that came for me yesterday, Ferguson?"

The manager looked surprised.

"It was an ordinary package, similar to that which you put in the safe the other day. It was sealed and wrapped, and had your name on it. I rather wonder you hadn't brought it to your safe; but you put your safe in the presence of two clerks."

"I'd like to see it," said the colonel.

Ferguson led the way down the stairs to the vault and snatched the lock of the box by the handle.

"I'll smell something," said the colonel suspiciously.

He reached his hand into the box and pulled open the long drawer, and as he did so a cloud of sickly smelling vapor rose from it. The greater part of the first-time Crewe heard bounding groan. He pulled the drawer out under the light and looked in. "There was nothing but a black mass of pulp, out of which glistened and gleamed a dozen pin points of light."

With a howl of rage the colonel turned the light upon the stone floor of the vault and raked it over with the end of his walking stick. The diamonds were intact, and they at least were something; but the greater part of the hundred thousand dollars was indistinguishable from any other kind of paper that had been treated with one of the most destructive acids known to chemical science.

The Aviator
The colonel wiped his burned and discolored hands after he had dropped the last diamond into a medicine bottle which the bank manager happened to have in the room.

"That's something saved from the wreck at all," he said.

He had gone suddenly old and his mouth trembled, as many a younger mouth had trembled in despair as that Colonel Boundary might become a rich man.

"Something saved from the wreck," he repeated sadly.

The manager's grave eyes were fixed on him.

"I'm not blaming you, Ferguson," said the colonel. "It was a plot to ruin me, and it succeeded."

"What do you think happened?" asked the manager of Ferguson.

"The second package was a box filled with a very strong acid," said the colonel. "Probably the box was made of

"You haven't been a bad fellow, Crewe. The only rotten turn you ever did to us was introducing that fellow, Snow Gregory."

He shrugged his shoulders and left the room without another word.

"This is five years' work that represents, Crewe," he said as they were driving back to the flat; "thirty-five years of risk and thought and organization, and ended in pulp that burns your fingers when you touch it."

"Jack O' Judgment?" he went on wonderingly. "Jack O' Judgment! Well, he's had his judgment, all right, and I'm going to have mine. You needn't tell Pinto what happened this morning. Leave him guessing. He's got a pretty thick back roll, and I'll agree to that grand scheme of his for shaming you, got, Pinto?"

"The thought seemed to cheer him, and by the time they reached the flat he was almost jovial.

"Well, what's the news?" asked Pinto eagerly.

"Fine," said the colonel. "Everything is as it should be." "Stop fooling," replied the other.

"What's the news?"

"The news," said the colonel, "is that I've decided to agree to your unselfish suggestion."

"What's that?" said the unsuspecting Pinto.

"That we should pool and divide," said "Jack O' Judgment" got your money, too," said Pinto, who cherished no illusions about the colonel's generosity.

"How well he knows me!" said Boundary. "Now come, Pinto; I've laid out in this, sink or swim. I told Crewe going down that I intended dividing; did I lie, Crewe?"

"You said something like that," said Crewe cautiously.

"Now we'll pool our money," said the colonel, "and divide it three ways. I'll make a fair proposition. We'll divide it into four, and the man who puts in the most shall take two shares. Is it a bet?"

"I suppose so," said Pinto reluctantly. "What's the truth about your money? Did Jack O' Judgment get it?"

"I hadn't any money," said the colonel bluntly.

"I've about a thousand pounds hidden away in this room; that is all—if Jack hasn't been in."

He unlocked the safe and made an inspection.

"Yes, a little over a thousand, if anything. How much have you, Crewe?"

"Three thousand," said Crewe.

"That makes four thousand. Now what have you got, Pinto?"

"I've about five thousand," said Pinto, trying to appear unconcerned.

The colonel made a little whistling noise through his teeth.

"Bringing fifty," said "I'm dead serious, Pinto. Bring fifty."

"But how can I get it?" demanded the other frantically.

"Get it," said the colonel. "It is highly probable that it will be no use to any of us. Let us at least have the illusion of being well off."

After-Dinner Tricks

No. 255—The Nameless Cigarette
A cigarette is shown on both sides with no trade-mark stamped upon it. It is given a slight wave in the air and the name instantly appears on one side.

The cigarette really has a name on it all the time, but it is held as in Figure 1, with the stamped side downward. The cigarette is then turned up to the position shown in Figure 2, to exhibit the other side, but the thumb is drawn back slightly and the cigarette given a half turn to the right. Thus the trade-mark is still away from the spectators' view. To make the mark appear, merely wave the cigarette, and at the same instant push the thumb forward slightly, which gives the cigarette a half turn back to the left and brings the trade-mark into view. Women's Slip-Over Cotton Crepe Negligees, $3.85

The slip-over negligee deserves its popularity, when it is made of daintily colored cotton crepe and hand-embroidery across the front in soft contrasting shades. A tie sash slips through buttonholed openings. Light blue, Copenhagen, pink, rose and orchid. Sizes 36 to 44. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Women's Extra-Size Underclothes Moderately Priced $1 to $2

Roominess without bulkiness seems to be the plan of new underthings for large women.

- $1.25 for pink crepe bloomers, with narrow hemstitched ruffle at knee.
- $1 for plain white cotton night-gowns with hemstitched round neck and short sleeves.
- $2 for pink crepe gowns with shirred front and hemstitched round neck and short sleeves.

Cuticura Heals Rashes
Bathe with plenty of Cuticura Soap and hot water to cleanse and purify. Dry lightly and apply Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Wanamaker's Down Stairs Store

Not horribly "cheap," not unpleasantly crowded into narrow aisles, not stifling with poor air—rather a Store of Moderate Prices different from any other—Wanamaker Originated—a store for those to whom full stocks of new, satisfactory merchandise at low prices appeal—this is Wanamaker's Down Stairs Store.

Unexpected Dress Fortune! Sale of Thirty-six Styles Early Autumn Silk Frocks Very Specially Priced $11.50

Three hundred new dresses of the sort that one does not even expect to find at any such price. The maker planned them to sell for a great deal more—some of them in the natural course of merchandising events would have been double. But they are one, two, three and four of a kind frocks and so he turned the whole lot over at very little prices.

Satin-back crepe, Canton crepe, Georgette crepe and heavy crepe de chine are the fashionable silks included in the collection. Plenty of brown as well as navy and black.

Delightfully simple styles as well as many others with more trimming—with fagoting; pleating, points, longer sleeves, embroidery, metal medallions, braid, a touch of lace and so on.

Not all sizes in any one style, but sizes 16 to 44 in the group.

Autumn Coat Sale for Women and Young Women $18 to $78.50

September writes the warning that Summer is over, that hot weather will not stay forever and that Autumn coats are the next thing to consider.

Wanamaker's Down Stairs Store is specializing some remarkable qualities in low-cost winter coats. Seven hundred NEW coats were shown for the first time this morning. All "specially purchased"—meaning that they were bought from the makers at certain discounts which we in turn pass on to our customers.

Nearly a hundred different styles at these new low prices.
Sports coats, $18, $20, $22.50, $27.50, $38.50.
Fur-trimmed coats, $32.50, $38.50, $48.50, $58.50, $78.50.

Just-New Autumn Frocks for School Girls

Each day brings here its share of new and interesting school girl fashions! Each dress is selected with care and with regard to the sometimes-at-variance notions of the girls and their mothers as to what is fitting, serviceable and becoming. We are pretty certain both will approve these new fashions, and the mothers will find much to commend in the qualities and the good workmanship and finish. Certainly the prices are pleasingly low.

- $15; strikingly good-looking frocks combining duvetyn with Poiret twill in such interesting color schemes as cherry red with dark blue, Chinese blue with dark blue, and tan with brown. Doubly belted, trimmed with fetching metal ornaments on either hip and a suggestion of silk stitchery at neck and sleeves. Sizes 15 and 17 years.
- $16.50; charming navy blue Poiret twill frocks in a specially "nice" looking model. Loose panels are lined with jade or scarlet silk, and the color shows under the silk fagoting embroidery on the blouse and sleeves. Sizes 15 and 17 years.
- $18.50; a wool jersey knicker-dress for the athletic girl. The dress is made with an abbreviated skirt cut shorter on the sides and bound with braid; the blouse is a variation of the favorite Peter Pan idea and has white linene collar and cuffs. Full-cut knickers which cuff below the knee complete the costume. Blue or tan. Sizes 15 and 17 years.

Net Vestees and Guimpes With Real Lace, $1.50

It's quite a windfall when one can get such very pretty guimpes and vestees for so little. And they're really good—made of creamy, fine mesh net and combined with real Irish and filet lace insertion and filet edging. A more "tailored" model equally attractive is of all-over creamy embroidery with narrow imitation Valenciennes edging on a net foundation at $1.50.

Peter Pan, square and pointed neck styles. (Central Aisle)

New Hand-Crocheted, Beaded Bags, $10 to $16.50

The newest Autumn ideas in beaded bags of the distinctly nicer kinds. They have quite an "air," and if you are conversant with the value of this sort of imported hand-work, you will recognize that these prices are unusually moderate!

Hand-crocheted of pure silk, in plain or novelty weaves. Black or navy blue backgrounds off-set admirably the tiny beads of cut steel or jet which are woven in intriguing patterns or all-over effects. Some particularly lovely ones are crocheted entirely of dull navy blue beads. Pouch styles with draw string tops, some plain and some with valances. Silk lined and tasseled trimmed. Various sizes, and the prices are $10, $12, $15 and $16.50. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Men's Silk Shirting Specially Priced $1.35 Yard

Any man would be glad to have a couple of new shirts of good weight all-silk jersey-weave shirting. The colors are attractive—blue, tan, green and lavender stripes, and the texture "just about right." Women like the material for sports blouses. 32 inches wide. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Cotton Outing Flannels, 15c and 25c Yard

"Oh look, the outings are here!" was a customer's pleased discovery this morning. So here is the news for others who have been waiting the announcement of their arrival. Very nice ones, too, with a nap that will survive many tubbings. Pink, blue, tan and white stripes, plaids and checks for underclothes and sleeping things, and plain white for uses innumerable. 27 inches wide, 15c yard; 36 inches wide, 25c yard. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Men's and Women's Union Taffeta Umbrellas, $3.50 and $4.50

Good-looking enough in their all-silk cases to carry anywhere, and when it rains, one knows there is no chance of a raindrop creeping through the firm, closely woven silk-and-cotton cover to spot one's new hat. Made on specially good steel frames. Men's have crook handles; women's have bakelite rings, leather straps or wristcoats and plain ferrules at $3.50, and white or amber tips and ferrules at $4.50. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Cotton Umbrellas, $1

It is easily worth a dollar to have an extra umbrella at the office, especially if it is made of firm cotton on a strong steel frame. Men's have crook handles; women's have bakelite ring or wristcoat and plain tips and ferrules. (Down Stairs Store, Central)

Durable Wool and Fiber Rugs Are Inexpensive

Unusually heavy, reversible rugs, sturdily woven of wool and fiber. Desirable, well-covered patterns in good dark colors give these rugs the appearance of more expensive kinds. And they're certainly durable!
