

DEFENDS ACTRESS WHO TRIED SUICIDE

Donnie Harrison's Mother Assails Ill Health Unbalanced Her Mind

SHUBERT VOICES SYMPATHY

Detroit, Sept. 6.—"If only I could go to her this instant and bring her home I don't think I'd ever let her go away from me again."

Thus spoke Mrs. Harrison when informed that her actress daughter, Donnie, had attempted suicide in New York yesterday.

Tears flooded the mother's eyes for an instant, but flicking away the tears she tried hard to smile. She went on: "The only motive for this terrible thing is that Donnie was temporarily unbalanced from ill health. I am certain there was no man mixed up in this."

New York, Sept. 6.—"Maddened" by the thought that she could not make a good wife and repentant when she ceased using drugs, she was fighting against Donnie Harrison, nineteen-year-old chorus girl, narrated in notes the struggle she had made against the temptations in the night world of New York and swallowed poison in her mad attempt. Then she lit a cigarette and lay on a bed to die.

The cigarette ignited the bedclothes, and when smoke poured into the hall she was brought out and taken to Bellevue Hospital in a serious condition from poison and smoke. The flames did not touch her. She was unconscious last night, but the doctors said she had a chance of recovering.

Good-by Note for Mother

She is a slim brunette with bobbed hair and light brown eyes. She is known as Donnie Harrison on Broadway. One letter, penciled to her mother, Mrs. Marie Harrison, of Detroit, was apparently written before she took the overdose of drug. It was an endearing good-by, but revealed the tortures of her desperate mind. Exaggerated stationery bore the monogram "D. H."

Another, unaddressed and uninitialled, appeared to have been written after she had taken the drug. It was in underworld verbiage and the story of her life here.

Shubert's Heart Touched

When Leo Shubert read the latter note he said he had a "kind of catch at his heart." "There is no act or theatrical manager of standing in the city who would fall to help a good girl if she were without work and came to him in the proper spirit," Mr. Shubert said.

"It ought to be known by girls in New York out of work and aspiring to go upon the stage that there never is a necessity for resorting to liquor or resort to liquor and drugs. I do not know of a manager who would not have directed Donnie Harrison toward relief had he known her position in the city. Miss Bunny Dorel, an actress, went to the hospital in the afternoon and said that she had known Donnie since she was a child in Oklahoma City. The Harrisons moved to Detroit and Donnie ran away from home. The two girls met again in the chorus of 'The Love Birds.'
