HIGH SCHOOLS OPEN, FOOTBALL IS TOPIC

Frankford Loses Many Stars, but Hopes for Another Gridiron Title

WEST PHILLIES' CHANCES

By PAUL PREP
FOOTBALL: That was the main topic of discussion when the local public high schools threw open their doors for the 1922-23 term this morning.
School boys congregated in every section of the city telling what their respective institutions were going to accomplish on the gridiron this fall. All were confident that their favorites would win the Intercholastic League championship and all said prospects looked better than in years.
But it isn't what the boys think about the teams that counts. The postulant fights this year will be decided in another manner. The school that really wins out must have to have a fighting eleven; one that battles from start to finish, never knowing when to quit and smashes its opponent on every play.
Frankford High School, winner of the Dutch Company Trophy emblem, title of the league championship last year, has an even chance to come through again this season.
Coach Elwood Geiges' team will have a lot of faces missing prominent in 1921, but it will be in their fighting just the same. Captain Paul Remmy, quarterback; Sommers, back; Jamieson, center; Scott, end; and Burchett, guard, all have been graduated.
But with Captain Weekes, fullback; Lightfoot, halfback; Harison, guard; Bennett, end; and Clausen, tackle, all returned, Geiges without a doubt will have one of the fastest teams in the circuit.

GEIGES is one of the smartest coaches in the Intercholastic League. He will have plenty of trick plays and will be sure to give the other teams more than one surprise before the 1922 grid season comes to an end.

WARREN WEILER, who coached the West Philadelphia High team into second place last season, will not be active on the grid this fall. Roy W. Delaplaine, former Swarthmore star, who is the Western physical director, has succeeded him as a mentor of the orange-and-blue eleven.

Delaplaine's First Appearance will mark Delaplaine's first appearance as a coach in the league. He is thoroughly acquainted with the game, however, having played when the late Robert W. Maxwell coached the Garnet team.

The Orange and Blue will be captained by Dick McFeeley, stalwart tackle, who rated as one of the best in the circuit last season. McFeeley is one of the most popular leaders West Philadelphia has ever had, and should get good results.

Bergman probably will play fullback, with Bill Mann and Pete Walters at the halfback posts. Wyn McLabon has a good chance to get the quarterback berth, but Woodcock will give him a battle. Tom McElwain, last year's brilliant fullback, is over age.

Raymond "Hooker" Walker and Art Walters will hold down the end posts. Walker is one of the best ends West Philadelphia has ever had, while Walters is just a little less brilliant. The other line positions are in doubt.

DELAPLAINE coached West Philadelphia's track team through to its first public high school outdoor championship. The boys are looking for him to duplicate this feat on the gridiron.

CENTRAL HIGH, once the peer of them all on the football field, has only three veterans back, and the Green and Gold is not looked upon to make a better showing than it did in 1921.

Tough for Dr. O'Brien
Dr. Matthew C. O'Brien, veteran coach, will have a tough time when he starts getting his team ready for the initial game of the season. The gray-haired mentor, however, is thoroughly acquainted with conditions at Central, and may develop a winning team—something he has done before when the outlook was none too brilliant.

Andy Schroder is the captain, and it looks as if he will play the quarterback position. Bill Fischer, center, and Mike Balin, guard, are the only other veterans back.

A flock of new candidates, however, will report to Dr. O'Brien, and he may be able to develop some real stars. Willie Lazar and Hunsinger look good to win the end posts, with Mainou and Miller having exceptionally fine chances to place in the backfield.

Dr. Ker, at Southern, will have to build an entire new team. Last season his eleven played terrible football from start to finish. It failed to win a league game.

THE students at Southern never turn out for football. Basketball is their favorite game, and they would rather spend their time in the gymnasium than on the gridiron. Hence the poor teams.
COACH FRED MILLER will make an effort to put Germantown High back in the running. The Green and White will miss Johnny Kaufman this fall, but Miller expects to have a crackerjack team.
There was a rumor this morning that "SI" Lungren, captain of the football and basketball teams, star first baseman on the champion baseball nine and shotputter on the track team, had left school. Lungren couldn't be reached, and the report could not be verified. But if "SI" has departed from Germantown, the school loses one of the best athletes in history.
