Episcopalians Consider Revisions at National Convention

DEFINE HEALING WOULD

Portland, Ore., Sept. 9. — Prayer book revision was the order of business in the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church to-day. Each house assembled separately, following a joint session yesterday, and each had before it a revision of the prayer book. The House of Bishops took up those sections of the prayer book which had been revised at the last triennial convention and which are up for final ac-tion. These include a substitute prayer for the President of the United States and minor changes in several sections. The House of Deputies already has taken action on these.

Invitation

E CORDIALLY invite you to view our dahlia farms, which are now in full bloom, and never so beautiful as this year. The exhibit presents a perfect riot of wonderful colorings, from the most delicate shades to the gorgeous, vivid hucs.

Lovers of flowers should not miss this extraordinary exhibition. Our main farms are located at Williamstown Junction, on the Atlantic City branch of the Reading R. R., Ferry foot of Chestnut Street, Philadelphia; one mile south of the famous White Horse Pike from Philadelphia to Atlantic City; also 214 miles by direct road from Berlin. If you cannot be with us to enjoy this rare exhibition, send for a catalogue describing the new and standard varieties of the world's best dahlias.
