Nancy Wynne Talks of the Tennis at Manheim. The Frederick Koons' to Give Ball on September 29 at Merion Cricket Club

WELL, things social started in in earnest yesterday, with the opening of the tennis at Manheim. And by 3 o'clock the great stands on either side and at the end of the courts were well filled. There is never so great a crowd on the first day, for the very good on the first day, for

WHILE on the subject of 'debutante affairs, I hear the Sam Boyles have decided not to give a tea for Marguerite after all, and her official coming out will be at the dance which her uncle and aunt. Mr. and Mrs. Walter of M. Jeffords, will give on December 18 at the Ritz-Carlton. There are just so many parties and things going on that few teas will be given this year it seems. They are very trying affairs always, I think. It really is fierce to stand all afternoon just shaking hands and shaking hands for all you are worth. Your face gets in a set smile, and your arm is just about finished before the afternoon is over.

Back in the dark ages when I was a deb, you simply had to have a tea or you were not out, and the girls who slipped out never received as many invitations as those who had teas. But the fatigue of that time! I'll never forget it. In the last few years the custom is growing less and less and it would not surprise me if in five years' time there would be an end of the introductory tea.

On the other hand, unless a debutante's parents give a large ball to tante's parents give a large ball to tante's parents give a large ball to tante's parents give a large ball to the edge of the own age, so it's all a problem, is it today (there have been so many on which the rain has fallen, if they have to be given of the large of Mrs. C. And it's going to be a beautiful wedding, of that there's no doubt, for not only will the bride be pretty, but she has chosen so many fascinating bridesmaids and their frocks are to be the sweetest, Frenchiest things I have heard about for some time. But I won't tell you about them till after the wedding, as it's so apt to spoil the effect if you know what to expect. One thing I will tell you and that is Helen is going to have her mother's mother's veil of Venetian lace draped on over her tulle veil and it is a most exquisite bit of lace. But that's all I'll tell you about it.
