

NEW DRUG RAID MAYOR'S REPLY TO RAP BY HALL

Forty-eight Addicts Taken by Police in Sudden Renewal of Campaign

MOORE REFUSES ANSWER TO "FOOL STATEMENTS"

Judge Finletter Reduces Annie Miller's Bail From $15,000 to $1000

As if in reply to an attack made by Councilman Hall on Mayor Moore in Council yesterday, the police conducted a wholesale raid in all sections of the city last night and arrested forty-eight drug addicts, including five women.

Patrols from a dozen police stations were used in the round-up and all prisoners were taken to City Hall.

The raid was evidently planned quickly. During a session of Council yesterday Mr. Hall declared the existence of the drug ring in the Mayor and failure of the Administration to clean the city of such characters. He also said that a report on vice conditions had been suppressed.

"Fool Statement," Says Moore

"Please do not ask the Mayor of Philadelphia to answer fool statements by individuals and disgruntled politicians," was Mayor Moore's reply to a question as to whether he had any answer to Hall's assertions.

The response was ironically made last night during a meeting of the Anti-Drug Association in the City Hall.

The Mayor said he had no answer to Hall's assertions. He said that he was working for the public and not for himself.

Director Corleson denied today that a report on vice conditions had been suppressed.

The Mayor disclosed the report at a meeting of citizens in his office. He said that he was not disclosing the report at this time to time by the police department's action.

The Mayor sent a telegram last night declaring that many arrests had been made of drug addicts and the co-operation of the police made Judge Monaghan's campaign successful.

Some surprise was caused at City Hall today when Judge Finletter, in the bail of Annie Miller, alleged dope seller, from $15,000 to $1000. She was taken before the court on a writ of habeas corpus.

District Attorney Gordon protested vigorously. He said the woman was a big factor in the case with traffic and was bonded by the court. Reduction of the bail, he contended, might lead to her getting out of jurisdiction of the court.

Mr. Finletter, an attorney, testified that the height of the woman and in some instances paid $22 a bottle. Judge Finletter, after hearing the testimony, said it did not warrant the amount of bail in which the woman was held.

Gives Orders for Action

Although no information was given regarding the plans of the drug round-up last night, it is believed Mayor Moore got in touch with the Department of Public Safety and the co-operation of the police action immediately.

More than a hundred plain-clothes men were assembled in station houses in the central part of the city and given instructions by Captain Van Horn and Lieutenant Lee, of the vice squad.

While these plans were being made, interested districts in the city were ordered to have patrols and extra men in readiness.

The plans worked without a hitch, although a few of the men sought in the round-up escaped through the net. The raiding squads reached their objectives about the same time. The police assigned to the downtown drug center, arrived there about the same moment that the other raiders arrived at English and Vine streets.

Patrols from the various districts contacted each other and thus spoiling the results.

The patrols used in the Christian street round-up were kept a few blocks away to avoid detection. The raiding squads dropped into the neighborhood two at a time and after distributing themselves at various points along Christian street, between Seventh and Eighth, entered each house almost at the same time.

When the raiding started crowds of interested spectators gathered in the streets quickly assembled. They were quickly handled, however, by police of the district, who co-operated with the raiders after the attack got under way.

Similar scenes were enacted on Darnest, Broadwood and Vine streets, where the other squads worked.

Police Surgeon Bricker was kept busy during the night administering to the needs of the victims.

An ordinance appropriating $15,000 to enable Judge Monaghan to continue his drug crusade was unanimously passed by Council yesterday. That same Judge Monaghan was backing the round-up of drug peddlers from the city.

In the case of Anna Miller, alias "Annie Miller," the young woman held by Magistrate Renshaw in violation of a charge with illegal possession and sale of drugs, Judge Finletter today reduced the bail to $1000. Counsel for the woman said that the bail was excessive and not commensurate with the charge.

Assistant District Attorney Gordon protested against the decreasing of the bail. He said that moneyed drug interests were backing the woman. She has not yet obtained the $1000 bail.

Fire in Broad Street Station

Committees were delayed last night by a fire at the western end of the Broad Street station. The blaze started from locomotive sparks landing on the dry wooden tracks. The station's fire brigade extinguished the blaze. The damage was slight.

MUST DIG 106 FEET FOR ENTOMBED MEN

Official Predicts Argonaut Miners Will Be Found Alive

Jackson, Calif., Sept. 15.—(By A. P.)—Only twenty-nine feet of muck-filled drift separates the rescue crew in the 3000-foot level of the Kennecott mine from the final drive through seventy-seven feet of rock to the Argonaut mine, where forty-seven men have been entombed for eight days, according to an official bulletin issued last night.

Dr. L. H. Duschak, consulting chemical engineer of the California Industrial Accident Commission, today issued a signed statement in which he predicted that the forty-seven miners entombed for eighteen days in the Argonaut mine would be found alive.

"There is reason for assuming that the men underground were not overcome by the poisonous gases from the fire which originated in the mine now passing through the parts of the mine in which the miners sought refuge," Dr. Duschak said.

AINEY AND SPENCER TAKE UP FUEL RISE

State Commission Head Hurries to Washington After Conference Here Deadlocks

OWNERS WANT $1 MORE

W. D. B. Ainey, chairman of the Pennsylvania Fuel Commission, is in Washington today conferring with Fuel Distributor Spencer on the demand of fuel-oil operators that they be allowed to charge $1 a ton more for coal.

Furthermore, it is understood, the big operators have challenged the right of fuel-oil operators to regulate the prices. All this will be laid before Mr. Spencer.

Commissioner Ainey and other members of the Fuel Commission are said to be unalterably opposed to allowing the operators to saddle the cost of the strike on the public.

If the big operators get their $1 increase, they say the independent fuel demand $2 a ton more. This rebellion, it is indicated, would mean most retailers would take $2 a ton on the cost of all coal they sold, wherever bought.

A conference between the Fuel Commission and some of the biggest operators, in the Bellevue-Stratford, broke up after five hours argument last night.

Commissioner Ainey announced last night that the price could not be more than the prevailing price last spring for domestic fuels of coal, but retailers got about during the conference last night that the operators made it known very quickly after getting together with the Fuel Commission that they proposed to fix a higher price than the limit set by the commission.

MAGISTRATE RENSHAW IS UPHELD IN FINING SOLDIERS

Judge Finletter Dismisses Habeas Writ and Remands Prisoners

The action of Magistrate Renshaw in fining two soldiers for reckless driving and disorderly conduct was upheld today by Judge Finletter in Quarter Sessions Court.

Edward B. Kabitz and John Karaski, of Fort Du Pont, had a lawyer obtain a writ of habeas corpus. They were arrested last Sunday after their motor car skidded onto the City Hall plaza.

A guard testified today that he found two quarts of liquor in the machine. The soldiers' lawyer contended they were illegally arraigned, but the judge dismissed the writ and remanded the men until the fines are paid. Kabitz had been fined $12.50 and the other $25.

EXPECT FAIR DIRECTORS TO TAKE REAL ACTION

Board to Meet Today and Hear Reports on Scope and Finances

Definite steps toward the building and finance programs of the Sesqui-Centennial are expected to be taken today at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the fair in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

This will be the first board meeting since the election of Colonel Franklin D'Olier as president.

Recommendations will be made to the board by two special unofficial committees.

Twenty directors are expected to attend the meeting, papers permitting. Mrs. Scullion is already in the city today are those on Plans and Scope and Grounds and Buildings, headed by W. W. Atterbury, and on Finances, with John H. Mason, as chairman.

WOMAN TO BE EXTRADITED

Mrs. Rose Scullion to Be Brought From Camden on Embezzling Charge

Mrs. Rose Scullion, under arrest in Camden, will be brought to Philadelphia to answer a charge of having embezzled War Risk Insurance Bureau checks, payable to Thomas Kane, of this city.

Governor Edwards today signed requisition papers permitting Mrs. Scullion to be brought to this city. The checks she is alleged to have converted to her own use were for $57,500, monthly compensation for the life of Thomas Kane, of Kimberlin. He was killed in 1920, and January and June of 1921.

3 SECRET FUNDS IN SNYDER REGIME, ACCOUNTANTS SAY

Audit Discloses "Revolving" Accounts Were in Force Until Last May

$25,895 SHORTAGE MADE UP BY KEPHART FINALLY

But Former Treasurer Took Four Months After Quitting Office to Square Affairs

Two "revolving funds" were operated in the State Treasury Department since Charles A. Snyder became State Treasurer, Auditor General Lewis disclosed today in making public the report of Main & Co., expert accountants, on the conduct of the Treasury by Snyder.

There is nothing in the report to indicate that Mr. Snyder knew of the existence of the "revolving funds."

The cash shortage of $25,895.38 which apparently existed at the close of the term of former Treasurer Harmon M. Kephart on April 30, 1921, was not wiped out until August 14, 1921, the report shows.

But two other "revolving funds," much smaller in amounts and of later dates, were discovered.

These funds were referred to by the accountants as the practice of persons in charge of the treasury records of depositing certain checks to the credit of the Commonwealth, but delaying entries in the records of their official receipt until a subsequent date.

The second "revolving fund" was created September 6, 1921, when it was made up of $555 at the start and never reached more than $900. It disappeared October 19, 1921.

The third "revolving fund" was started October 16, 1921, with $690.50 and during January and February would take $2 a ton on the cost of all coal they sold, wherever bought.

A conference between the Fuel Commission and some of the biggest operators, in the Bellevue-Stratford, broke up after five hours argument last night.

What Experts Report

Of these funds the report of the accountants says:

"The receipts in question consisted of cash it would have been possible with this practice to use for private purposes funds belonging to the State. For example, $555 withheld on September 6, 1921, and $37.67 on September 14, 1921, were not deposited until September 26, 1921, and October 19, 1921.

Some irregularities such as marked the former administration of the treasury were found in the audit of the books for the period Mr. Snyder has been in office, but nothing serious was developed.

"Practices disclosed," said the Auditor General, "can be corrected through the administrative functions of the Treasury Department without resort to the Legislature."

"For this purpose," said Mr. Lewis, "I will take up with State Treasurer Snyder such matters as are contained in the report with respect to the accounting and internal check of the Treasury Department, with a view to removing entirely or at least minimizing the possibility of a recurrence of these practices."

Legal Limit is Included

The section of the report which deals with State deposits shows the legal limit of $4,000,000 for State active depositaries was exceeded, reaching the maximum on Sunday, when more than $13,000,000 was deposited in the active depositaries.

Sworn statements of the banks differ from the treasury statements, but the report today, asked officers, which large sums in transit and to considerable increases in deposits because of recent State bond issues.

"Lost" Interest Recovered

A total of $22,391.12 is computed to have been due the State as "additions" on Sunday, when more than $13,000,000 was deposited in the active depositaries.

Practical members of Council reminded their fellow-workers that the borough had only two policemen, so it was agreed that a third be added. He is now on the job.

Latest Report That Capital of Half Billion is Involved

Chicago, Sept. 15.—(By A. P.)—A merger of meat-packing companies, involving two and possibly four of the "big-five" packers, is being considered, according to a story printed by the Chicago Herald and Examiner. The companies mentioned in this connection were Armour & Co., Wilson & Co., Morris & Co., and the Cudahy Packing Corporation.

If all of the four concerns were merged, it was said, the deal would involve the creation of a new corporation, a $500,000,000 concern.

It was said, however, as to whether Morris & Co. would join.

P. R. R. IS THREATENED WITH STRIKE BY CLERKS

Conferences Held in Washington to Avert Walkout Over 150 Grievances

The Department of Labor held a hurried conference in Washington today with the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks, Freight Handlers and Related Societies to avert a strike on the Pennsylvania system. Officials of the railroad here declared they were not disturbed by the situation.

"Our men have no serious trouble with the organization for some time," said one of the railroad officials, "but we are not worrying. Most of the men doing this work are conscientious and have a working agreement, entered into by representatives elected in free and open elections. We do not expect any serious trouble."

Dispatches from Washington said Acting Secretary of Labor Hoag and Hugh L. Kirwin, chief of the Bureau of Conciliation, had been in conference with union officers at morning listening to nearly 150 grievances they presented.

The Government officials said they were surprised to learn that the clerks wanted to strike. "The general chairman of the Brotherhood announced that the officials of the entire division of the organization would hold a meeting this evening at Newark, N. J., to decide whether to send out a general strike call. Acting Secretary Hoag said during the course of the Washington conference that he hoped to be able to induce the leaders to defer the call to strike."

COLLIE KEEPS VIGIL AT JAIL AS MASTER SERVES TIME

"Prince" on Hand Each Day at Lock-Up Awaiting Release of Owner

A collie named "Prince" is keeping vigil at the jail at Woodbury, N. J., waiting for the release of its master, William Shute, who is serving a fifteen-day sentence for disorderly conduct.

Shute was locked up Saturday. The dog followed him to the jail and sat whining on the steps when the jail door closed. Every day since the animal arrives about 7 o'clock and waits until Shute is released.

Shute and other prisoners are allowed in the corridor after 9 o'clock. He immediately goes to a side window and whines until he sees his master's back and wags his tail with delight.

Last night the warden, Charles Tompkins, took "Prince" to Shute's cell and let him together for an hour. The dog made no protest when the hour was up but seemed contented with the visit.

"This morning 'Prince' was back on the jail steps."

Hooded Captors Assert They Avenged Mistreatment of Aged Mother

Chambersburg, Pa., Sept. 15.—William Hollingsworth, a laborer, of Waynesboro, seventeen miles from here, who was taken out Wednesday night and mistreated by masked men, is expected to leave today.

The police had been gathering evidence for several weeks.

Among the first batch of prisoners taken to City Hall was Morris Swartz, 1070 Diamond street, William Szymowski, 1192 Chestnut street. They were sent to jail in default of $500 bail each.

Other Prisoners Captured

The list of prisoners included: Walter Lehman, 1041 Louis street; Theodore Tillman, 1041 Louis street.

Their identity is buried deep in secrecy, but there remains no doubt of their identification with the Klan in view of the "K" brands on their victims' faces and the fact that they were all garbed in long, white flowing robes and hoods and masks.

While the Klansmen resorted to a subterfuge to get Hollingsworth to the lonely spot outside this city, where he was beaten and branded, the authorities charged that they were actually lured by Hollingsworth's alleged cruelty to his aged mother, who recently was found a prisoner amid filth surrounding the attic of the Hollingsworth home.

Wednesday night, according to Hollingsworth, a party of men he did not know drove up to his home at 214 East North street, where he was taken to a garage with a view to his being taken to complete the transaction with the Sheriff, and following the road toward the Maryland town, he says, a turn was made to the right and he was taken to a lonely spot, where he says he is unable to describe because of the darkness and the quickness with which the hooded men, who were armed with clubs and whips, surrounded him. He was surrounded by fifteen or twenty men, all clothed in long white flowing robes and masks typical of the Klan. He was taken to a garage where a muddy field to an open place where a convulse was held about him.

Brief Rites Performed

First, Hollingsworth says, he was forced to sit on a stump in the center of the group, while one of the Klansmen, armed with a pair of forceps, attempted to slash great furrows through his hair, which was shaved and brushed back. This over, a razor was quickly produced and one-half of his mustache was sliced off.

Hollingsworth screamed and fought his captors, he says, but he was overpowered by many strong hands and knocked almost senseless. As soon as he gained his feet he was taken to a garage where a convulse was held about him.

DAUGHERTY CHARGES TO HAVE HEARING

House Judiciary Committee Will Take Up Impeachment Action

Washington, Sept. 15.—(By A. ### Camden Homes Are Raided in Police Liquor Drive

Houses Searched and Many Prisoners Are Arrested in Sudden Descent on Suspected Area—Stills and Mash Confiscated

Nearly a hundred private homes and small stores in the southern part of Camden, chiefly in a district known as the "Household Meadow," were invaded today by police in a whirlwind raid on stills and stocks of "white male."

A dozen squads of four and five men each swept through the section with search warrants. Men and women ran about the streets in consternation as the raiding parties dashed into houses and other buildings.

Ten motorcars were assembled to haul the seized stills, mash and bootleg liquor to City Hall. In one instance the police caught a householder lowering a can of liquor down a chimney.

F. S. Agents Not Involved

Water buckets, washbottles, kettles, tin pans and other receptacles filled with mash, were carried from private houses. Police emerged with their armfuls of bottles of liquid which were labeled and tucked carefully away in the trucks.

Federal prohibition agents had no part in the raid, which was conducted on warrants issued by Recorder Shackhouse under the State prohibition act. The police had been gathering evidence for several weeks.

14 Americans Missing—English Squadron Threatens to Bombard Nationalists

London, Sept. 15.—Disolated by a conflagration which is still sweeping the city, terrified by a massacre of Christians and other outrages by the Turks, the Asia Minor report of Smyrna is today a minor horror.

News of cruelties, panic, hardships and sufferings is mingled with dispatches of military movements in the Near East fraught with the menace of grave international consequence and warfare.

From the various dispatches, some of which have not been fully verified, come the following statements:

One thousand to two thousand Christians massacred by the Turks before the fire started.

Nine hundred Armenians forced by Turks to embark on a lighter and then shot down from shore.

Hundreds of bodies lie on streets. Girl pupils of American Girls' College carried off into captivity.

European, Greek, and Armenian sections in ashes. Flames spread to Turkish area.

Countless thousands left homeless. British officials murdered.

Forty-four neutralized Americans missing.

British squadron threatens to bombard Turks if massacres are continued.

Loss from flames already reached $75,000,000.

Turkish nationalist army menaces Constantinople. Joint allied warning not to interfere to create Straits probable. Near East peace conference planned.

British and Jugo-Slav troops may fight Turks if Constantinople is attacked.

Massacre of Christians

The charge that from 1000 to 2000 Christians were massacred by the Turks before the fire started in the Armenian section of Smyrna is made in semi-official and other Greek messages from Athens received here today. The Greek belief is that the fire was set by the Turks, following the evacuation by the Greek army, to conceal the traces of their alleged misdeeds.

In the same dispatch which records the kidnapping of all the girls from the American Girls' College by the Turks, it is stated that the Turks have begun new reprisals against the Armenians at Smyrna.

An American destroyer which has arrived at Piræus, Greece, reports that the Turks entered the British consulate in Smyrna and murdered an official who was assembling the archives, says a Reuters dispatch from Athens today. Postmaster Wilkinson is also said to have been murdered, as well as other officials, including the Greek and English consuls. Sir Henry Lamb, British consul general, is believed to have escaped on a warship.

Loss to American Firms

A considerable share of the property lost from the fire, the total of which is estimated in Greek quarters at 1,000,000,000 francs, about $75,000,000 at present exchange, was the property of American firms. The Greek government, Sir Henry Lamb, British consul general, is believed to have escaped on a warship.
