MILLIONS FOR CITY SEEN IN 1926 FAIR

San Francisco Received $50,000,000 Worth of Advertising Through Exposition in 1915

CHICAGO'S BIG BOOM

D'Olier May Name Fair Engineers Next Week

Colonel D'Olier will meet members of the Sesqui-Centennial Committee of the Engineers' Club at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in the Bellevue-Stratford to discuss the employment of engineers and architects for the association. The fair directors yesterday authorized Colonel D'Olier to engage the services of such men and guaranteed the salaries for them.

The architects and engineers may be engaged within a week. It will be decided at the meeting whether there are to be one or more architects and engineers selected. In the San Francisco exposition there was an advisory board of three architects, each receiving a salary of $5000.

Plans for the Sesqui-Centennial in 1926 are rapidly rounding into concrete form. Colonel Franklin D'Olier, president of the fair body, confidently expects the fair to be the greatest of all time and looks optimistically toward the financial success of the project.

As yet, however, he will make no predictions regarding expenditures that will be needed or profits that may result.

Considering the success of other similar expositions and the likelihood of more stable conditions by the time the fair opens, it is believed certain that untold benefits, both financially and morally, will result to the city and its citizens.

Colonel D'Olier expects big returns. If he didn't it is not probable he would have accepted responsibility for the fair's success in the first place. But he still confines himself to his own idea of "action rather than words."

"Don't ask me what expenditures will be made or how much money we are going to earn, because it is impossible to estimate such things at this time," the colonel says. "That will come later. Right now a whole lot of action is needed.

Many Fairs Made Money

Since King Solomon reigned, fairs have been held. All of them, of course, were not successful. Many resulted in failures. Still others proved money-makers.

Concessionaires at the Crystal Palace Exposition in London, in 1851, the first international fair of any size, reaped a magnificent harvest for those days.

More than 6,000,000 persons attended that world's fair, an average of 42,000 a day. The receipts were $2,500,000.

Philadelphia had the distinction in 1876 of holding America's first international exposition, when the Nation celebrated the centennial of its independence. During the six months of its existence the Centennial Exposition had a total attendance of 9,911,000. There were 21,480 foreign exhibitors, among whom were distributed 5364 awards.

Perhaps the two best comparisons for the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition are San Francisco and Chicago. Even though figures concerning these two fairs have no bearing on what will happen here in 1926, a general idea of the various items involved may be had.

Approximately $70,000,000 was spent by the 18,876,438 tourists attending the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915 at San Francisco. During that fair $4,715,523.05 was taken in gate receipts and $7,197,022.45 was spent with the concessionaires. It is estimated that the City of San Francisco received $50,000,000 worth of advertising through the publicity given the fair.

Realty Sales Helped

Real estate sales increased by more than a million dollars in 1915, and the increased activity was reflected more strongly the next year when real estate sales increased $13,000,000 more.

From $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 was spent by visitors with retail merchants, increasing the business of these merchants 20 per cent for the year, though the fair lasted only ten months.

Of the $70,000,000 spent in San Francisco, as estimated by Robert L. Webb, executive secretary of the San Francisco Convention and Tourist League, approximately $15,000,000 was spent in the hotels and a similar amount in restaurants.

Nearly 500,000 persons attended the many conventions held in the city during the progress of the fair. And San Francisco gained an enviable reputation as a convention city because of its excellent hotel accommodations.

The bank clearings in 1915 amounted to $177,684,122 over the previous year, and the following year $786,174,543.

The division of exploitation of the exposition figured that illustrated articles on the exposition appeared in more than 32,000 editions of newspapers in the United States, as well as the leading trade publications and magazines. More than 3000 special editions of magazines and newspapers were printed and all the important illustrated papers in the world featured the exposition pictorially.

The bureau received clippings of more than 300,000 columns of matter on the exposition from various sources. That was only about one-half the total amount actually printed.

Publicity Worth Millions?

A nationally known advertising expert estimated this publicity was worth not less than $50,000,000, or more than the cost of construction, operation and dismantling of the exposition.

Assuming that the city contained half a million inhabitants at that time, the attendance during the period of 288 days was more than twenty-six times the population. The daily average paid admissions was 45,580.

Chicago's World Fair in 1893 was attended by 27,529,161 persons. The expenses were $18,000,000 and the profits amounted to $1,850,000. One of the lasting benefits of the fair is the Field Museum, which was started by a subscription of $1,000,000 by Marshall Field.

The City Plan Beautiful Commission, the Michigan Boulevard link, the Lake Beautification project and other undertakings are said to have grown out of the fair.

Many Shopmen Won't Return

More than half of the shopmen whom the Pennsylvania Railroad has been years training have accepted other positions and will not return to work in the railroad's shops, according to statements given out yesterday by Clinton S. Golden, business representative for the strikers. There are 1708 men registered on their strike lists, Mr. Golden said, and 950 of these have secured other employment elsewhere.

MEXICAN COLORS PRESENTED TO CITY

Warburton Accepts Flag in Absence of Mayor—It Is Unfurled at Independence Hall

A Mexican flag, made by Senora Obregon, wife of the president of that republic, was unfurled at Independence Hall this morning, a part of a local celebration of Mexico's Independence Day.

In the absence from the city of Mayor Moore, Director Warburton presided at the celebration and formally accepted the flag on behalf of the city. It was presented by Mrs. John B. Roberts, president of the New Century Club, and by direction of Mayor Moore, will be on exhibition at Independence Hall throughout the day.

Regret was expressed by Director Warburton in his speech of acceptance that the diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico are not sufficiently advanced to permit the event to have been an official presentation from the Mexican Government to the American Government.

"The next best thing the Mayor thought possible," he said, "was that he could show the sentiment of good will for a fellow republic by receiving the national emblem of Mexico, made by direction of the president's wife. It will be placed as a souvenir in this famous Independence Hall, where all will be able to feel it is a recognition of something all the people of America would like to see some day."

A letter from Mayor Moore expressing regret that he could not be present to personally receive the flag was read by Director Warburton.

Senor G. de la Concha, a resident of Philadelphia, made a short address in Spanish, the English interpretation being read by Mrs. Rudolph Blankenburg.

"I sincerely hope," he said, "that the echo of this homage, organized and paid by the women of North America, will resound with all its strength in my country and that it will deliver there a message of good will, making it known that there is here a longing for mutual understanding."

Following the presentation, the national anthems of Mexico and the United States were played by the Municipal Band.

CAMDEN POLICE CONTINUE RUM RAIDS ON HOMES

Aliens Sporting Diamonds and Autos Led to Clean-Up

Aliens sporting diamonds and flashy motorcars and investing heavily in real estate incirectly led to the wholesale raids on illicit stills that the Camden police continued today.

"Many foreigners engaged in making whisky in South Camden have become prosperous," said Chief of Police Hyde. "Some have big automobiles and are sinking money in real estate."

Eighty-six men and three women had been gathered in by the police up to a late hour last night, after twelve hours of raiding private houses and small stores principally in the district known as "Moonshine Meadow." Less than fifteen of the prisoners had been naturalized.

All but seven of the defendants furnished the $500 bail which was set in all cases. The arrests were made on warrants charging violation of the State prohibition law, known as the Hobart act. The cases will come up September 26, before the Grand Jury.

WEAR WIGS? NEVER! SAYS JUDGE ROGERS

Jurist Describes Court Scenes in France and England. Saw No Poverty

BUT MUCH EXTRAVAGANCE

Judge Joseph P. Rogers does not like wigs. He never wore one and he never expects to wear one. He would not even wear one in the presence of England's most august courts.

Judge Rogers today described his experiences in France and England, where he studied the procedure of the law courts. In England he sat on the right hand of Lord Wile, on the bench at Old Bailey. Everybody wore wigs. But not the Judge. Incidentally, he saw no poverty or suffering; only extravagance.

"No wigs for me; they didn't get a wig on my head, not by a jugful. I sat in plain American clothes," he laughed. "It was the opening day of the court, which is the busiest in England. There must have been 150 wigs in court that day. I sat on the right hand of Lord Wile, both in the Criminal Court and before the Grand Jury.

"The English procedure is very much like ours. Our common law, you see, is based on the English common law. Of course, over there they have this difference. Lawyers are divided into two classes—solicitors and barristers. Barristers can appear in court, solicitors cannot. A solicitor never leaves his office. If he has a case to go to court he must employ one of the 'King's counsel.'

"Everybody else over there seems to have received some sort of decoration or another, and they all wear them. I had a most interesting experience, too, when I met the youngest son of Charles Dickens and the sole surviving member of his family. He is a Criminal Court Judge and is seventy-two or seventy-three years old.

"In Paris I also visited the law courts, but I do not understand French very well, so could gain but a glimmer of what was going on. Their procedure differs from ours, mainly, in that there is no presumption of innocence. In their criminal procedure the criminal is judged guilty until he himself manages to prove his innocence.

"I enjoyed the experience of flying from Paris to London, a trip of about three and one-half hours, and a most pleasant and interesting one.

"You ask me about the terrible suffering over there, and the serious economic situation. Well, so far as I could see, there is prosperity there. I saw lots of money in evidence in France, and lots in England, and both countries will take all of yours they can take.

"This business of yelling poverty-stricken Europe is all nonsense. All I saw was wild extravagance, and other Americans all said the same thing. Remember, there are lots of poor people here in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, too.

"Fertile fields, money and foolish extravagance, that is what we saw on all sides. This talk about suffering is propaganda. They get enough money from foolish Americans, in all conscience, to pay their national debts."

G. O. P. WOMEN BURY HATCHET

Harmon-Lorimer Factions Declare Armistice in Fight for Pinchot

RECEPTION OCTOBER 1

The Republican women leaders of the city have decided to sign an armistice and march with a united front against the Democratic forces this fall. This became evident today following a meeting of the Women's Republican Club when they unanimously decided to invite the Republican Women of Pennsylvania to their reception on or about October 1.

During the primary fight the Women's Republican Club, headed by Mrs. A. R. Harmon, vigorously upheld the candidacy of Attorney General Alter, while the Republican Women of Pennsylvania, led by Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, fought for Gifford Pinchot. The former organization has now indorsed Mr. Pinchot and its members have been instructed to work for the entire Republican ticket with as much zeal as if Mr. Alter had been nominated.

The reception in October will mark the opening of the new home of the Women's Republican Club at 316 South Tenth street. Heretofore they have met in the City Committee rooms at Eleventh and Chestnut streets.

The initial cabinet meeting of the fall was attended by two hundred women from all sections of the city who heard the plans for the campaign outlined by their president, Mrs. Harmon. Each cabinet member was requested to assist in getting the full club membership of three thousand women registered and to instruct them, as well as other women who are not club members, to vote the straight Republican ticket.

The following committee chairmen were named: Executive, Mrs. Harmon; House, Mrs. Helen Gaul, Nineteenth Ward; Speakers, Mrs. Jeanette Heyl, Forty-seventh Ward; Entertainment, Mrs. Minnie Greniger, Thirty-fourth Ward; anti-smoke, Mrs. Wilamina Kern, Thirteenth Ward; anti-noise, Mrs. M. E. Seitz, Forty-seventh Ward; Bad Air, Anna Dale Bates, Twenty-Sixth Ward; membership, Mrs. Anna Walker, Eighteenth Ward; Legislative, Mrs. Harmon. The Anti-Smoke Committee will report to the club any instance where factory smoke is detrimental to a community.

During the cabinet meeting Mrs. Sara Wilhelm, of the Fifteenth Ward Club, delivered an address. It was decided to engage thirty chairs for the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters meeting October 17, when Pinchot and McSparran will speak.

MABEL NORMAND'S GEMS ATTACHED BY SHERIFF

Film Star's Publicity Agent Sues to Get $2940

New York, Sept. 16.—(By A. P.)—All of Mabel Normand's trunks with the dazzling wardrobe she brought from France a few days ago, including jewelry which she had placed in the safe of the Hotel Ambassador, where she is staying, were attached by an unsympathetic deputy sheriff yesterday.

Her publicity agent, Perry M. Charles, was the source of the movie star's embarrassment, having brought suit in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to recover $2940 for salary and services rendered in America and Europe.

In his complaint the press agent reproduced honeyed messages from Miss Normand sent to him from Los Angeles while he was in Canada, some of the phrases quoted being "Anything you say goes about salary." "If you need money, wire me." "Wonderful if you are in England when I arrive to meet me. Would be lost without you."

In London, Mr. Charles said, he prepared the way for Miss Normand only as an accomplished press agent could, introducing her on her arrival to dramatic editors and hosts of other people. Then she sent him back to New York to continue the good work, in which he was enthusiastic.

All he got for this, aside from the loving messages, he declared, was $1100 for expenses, which actually totaled $1340, and with his salary of $150 a week upward, he figures he has $2940 coming to him.

Veteran fishermen say that this is a record-breaking catch for hook and line.

T. H. SWINT IS 87

Twelfth Street and City Line Man Will Celebrate Today

Thomas H. Swint, who lives at the northwest corner of Twelfth street and City line, is today celebrating his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary.

Mr. Swint doesn't really pass the eighty-seventh milestone until tomorrow, but he is having his celebration today because he is a believer in strict observance of the Sabbath.

"I am a member of the Fourth Baptist Church," he explained, "and don't want any celebration at my house on a Sunday."

Five children, eleven grandchildren and two great grandchildren are helping Mr. Swint to make today a memorable one in his career.

Until six weeks ago he was actively employed as a hatter in the factory of the Frank Schoeble Company, at Tenth and Oxford streets. Then he decided to spend the remainder of his life as a gentleman of leisure and resigned. He is unusually active for a man of his years and has not yet found it necessary to use eyeglasses when he reads.

'GIRL BANDIT' SUSPECT NABBED IN EDDYSTONE

Anna Leech and Man Held for Highway Robbery

ANNA LEECH

Anna Leech, alleged "girl bandit," wanted on a charge of conspiracy and highway robbery, was arrested in Eddystone at 1 o'clock this morning in company with John Gill, one of the men declared to have used her as a lure.

About two months ago the girl and her sister, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, of Wallace street near Tenth, went automobiling with Robert Arthin, of Wyalusing avenue above Fifty-first street, and Stanley Moore, of Frankford avenue.

At the Girard avenue bridge three men ran from the bushes and attacked the men. Arthin was shot through the thumb as he leaped from the car after having been robbed of $26 and his watch.

Mary Mitchell was given two and a half years in the County Prison. Her brother, Emil Brandley, and Frank Sestito, received six to eight years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

Anna Leech and Gill were living in Eddystone as "Mr. and Mrs. John Burns." Magistrate Renshaw held them without bail for a further hearing.

BEAUTY CONTEST TO MARK CURTIS FOLK FAIR TODAY

There Also Will Be a Baby Show With Other Interesting Events

A beauty contest and a baby show are the particularly interesting events scheduled on today's program at the annual fair of the Curtis Country Club at Lawndale. The fair opened yesterday. The beauty contest is expected to bring out all the talent of the Curtis organization.

The judges in the contest which will decide who is to pose for the next Saturday Evening Post cover will be Miss Neysa McMein, the artist; Jay E. House and Frederick Brunner.

A midway lined with booths formed the center of attraction. Articles of every description were on sale. Side-shows featuring snake charmers, wild men from Borneo, sword swallowers and bee trainers encouraged the visitors to part with the small entrance fee. On every side a canvas-covered sprinkler was to be found. Clowns and a miniature circus kept the merriment at a high pitch, while the crowds swayed back and forth from one end of the long stretch of booths to the other.

The Sing-Sing show is an original exhibition with bars and stripes playing a leading part. While other attractions emphasize the novel in gymnastics, balancing and juggling, the familiar tossing of rings on gold-headed canes keeps the background true to form.

GENERAL O'RYAN REPLIES TO KIPLING ATTACK ON U. S.

Declares Great Britain Officially Appreciated Work of Americans

New York, Sept. 16.—Major General John F. O'Ryan, commander of the famous Twenty-seventh (New York) Division in the World War, yesterday issued a statement in which he came to the defense of America's war efforts. His statement, called forth by the attack on America's "lateness" attributed to Rudyard Kipling, follows in part:

"How are we concerned with the personal views or animosities of Mr. Kipling? How can the British people be held responsible for the utterances of this private citizen of Great Britain, who holds no official office?

"In relation of his general dislike of America and Americans, which we are told characterizes his attitude, that appears to be the outgrowth of a row he had with his American brother-in-law. Senseless it is, of course, for him to condemn a whole people and their war effort because of his animosity toward one individual of that people.

"I know that our war effort was very highly appreciated by the officers and men of the British army in France and Belgium."

FIRE LOSS $5,000,000

New Orleans Wharves and Warehouses Swept by Flames

New Orleans, Sept. 16.—(By A. P.)—Five blocks of wharves and warehouses along the Mississippi River front were in ruins today following a fire which last night did damage estimated in excess of $5,000,000. The wharves and warehouses were erected by the Government in 1918 and 1919 at a cost of more than $5,000,000, army officers said. In addition about forty box cars loaded with merchandise were also stored.

The German freight steamer Frau Hugo Stinnes, moored to the wharf, caught fire but succeeded in putting out into the river before serious damage was done. Three Government launches moored to the wharf were destroyed.

The fire broke out in a box car loaded with burlap bagging. Twenty-two cars of burlap were destroyed.

STOLEN POLO PONY RETURNED TO STABLE

Boy Takes Mutrub to Bala and Says Man Paid Him to Do It

Mutrub, the $1000 polo pony stolen from the stables of the Philadelphia Country Club at Bala, was mysteriously returned last night by a boy and seemed none the worse for his absence.

The boy said a man whom he met accidentally at Thirty-third street and Girard avenue gave him fifty cents to take the pony to the stables.

The missing pony, which was spirited away with Senora, another polo pony, was sought all day yesterday by nearly a score of society women, who scoured the countryside in automobiles.

It is believed that the hunt became uncomfortable for the thief and he decided to get rid of the animal.

Mutrub is owned by Stephen Sanford, one of the youngest polo players and a member of the Eastcott team.

WIDENER CONTROVERTS BERLIN ART DEALER

"Descent From Cross" Now Safely Enshrined in Magnate's Gallery

"I don't think it is necessary for me to comment on the Bachstitz statement or the possible reasons for making it at this time. Needless embarrassment might be caused. But you can say that I absolutely confirm the story of the purchase as O. K., and I think that ought to be sufficient."

This is Joseph E. Widener's answer to a Berlin art dealer named Bachstitz, who was quoted yesterday in the Berlin dispatches as saying the famous religious painting "The Descent From the Cross," had not yet been actually sold to Mr. Widener, despite recent announcements to the contrary.

Mr. Widener added that he brought the picture from Europe and now has it in his art gallery at Lynnewood Hall, Elkins Park.

FARMER SHOOTS WOMAN, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Mrs. Planter's Condition Critical Following North Brook Affray

In an effort to save the life of Mrs. Elizabeth Planter, she remains at the Chester County Hospital at West Chester, are today trying to remove the bullets from her head, following the double shooting at North Brook yesterday.

Mrs. Planter was housekeeper for William Steen, tenant on the farm of William Trimble, who fired the shots wounding her during a quarrel, and then killed himself by firing a shot through his brain.

Physicians said today that one of the bullets had penetrated Mrs. Planter's brain and little hope was held for her recovery.

Mrs. Planter went to West Chester early yesterday and got Constable Keenan to assist her in obtaining her trunk from the home of Steen. Steen, who was forty-five years old, objected to the woman leaving.

Sending the constable to summon a neighbor, he shot Mrs. Planter. She was found lying on the kitchen floor by the constable when he returned.

Steen's body was found in a cornfield on the farm of Levi Lambert, half a mile distant. Mrs. Planter lived at Melvin, Delaware County, before she made her home with Steen.
