Constantinople, Sept. 18 .- The entire British Atlantic Fleet is being sent to re-enforce the Mediterranean squadron for the protection of Constantinople and the straits of Dardanelles.

This undoubtedly will create the most formidable armada of warships ever assembled in an area of like size, embracing the most modern dreadnoughts, battle cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aircraft carriers. British officials here feel confident that if the allied land forces are not sufficient to check an attack on the Dardanelles by the Turkish Nationalists the combined fleet, together with French and Italian war vessels, will be more than adequate.

There is an increased feeling of security among the population of Constantinople as a result of Great Britain's energetic measures. The highest military authorities declare the Turks will not commit the folly of opposing such overwhelming forces.

The allies commanders here are meetg today under the presidency of Brigadier General Sir Charles Harington. to discuss measures for the defense of the capital and the straits. The meeting is expected to bring out the complete unity of the British. French and Italian forces.

It is now ascertained that only 20,000 Greek soldiers remain under arms out of the army of 250,000. These are in Thrace, retention of which territory by Greece is seriously doubted here. General M. C. J. Pelle, French High Commissioner, started for Smyrna last night to confer with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, at the latter's special request. It is assumed the Nationalist leader desires to ascertain the extent to which France intends to fulfill the obligations undertaken by her treaty with the Angora Government.

The Angora Government has informed the Allies that if the remainder of the Greek army in Asia Minor attempts to retreat across, the Dardanelles the Kemalists will disregard the neutrality of the straits and pursue the Greeks in international territory. Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Company
