YERKES A PIKER BESIDE THIS SQUIRE

Mill Creek "Judge" Has Been Fining 250 Autoists Daily. Can't Keep Constables

THEY GET COLD FEET

D. Martin Yerkes, fining Squire of Millbourne, can't hold a candle to I. N. Faust, fining Squire of Mill Creek, Pa. And he admitted it today. At the close of his regular hearing he summoned his staff of officers, which consist of Constable Joseph Sapp, and reod a letter he had just received from the Mill Creek Squire.

"How do you keep your officers from heaving you?" ran the letter, "Since leaving you? run the letter. "Since leaving you?" run the letter. "Since leaving you?" run the letter. "Since leaving you?" run the letter. "Since leaving about last April I have been fining about you had so many of them have threatened And so many of them have threatened my men, they get cold feet and quit my men, they get cold feet and quit my men, they get cold feet and quit on me. I notice by the papers you've been able to keep your officers. How do you do it?

Squire Yerkes said that any Squire in a town of 400 souls like Mill Creek, who can earleh 250 violators a day, beels a regiment of officers, and should expect to lose a few now and then.

"I'm only a novice compared to this boy," said Squire Yerkes. "I can't give him any advice."

Physicians decided on the "water cure" as Major Forbes' only chance for life. The patient was "flooded" with water day and night. He was given all the water he could drink. Two tubes were inserted in his chest and through them flowed pure water which flushed his internal organism and gradually eliminated the poison.

The one danger which physicians constantly feared was that Major chairman of the rowing committee of Forbes' kidneys would collapse under the University of Pennsylvania.
