"Other writers have delved into the seas, have projected their thoughts into the vastness of space and visited distant planets, but Mr. Burroughs has made an original adventure which eclipses the Verne sea journeys and the Wells unveiling of the life on Mars."

So says the Philadelphia Record. Have you read this astounding book by the author of "Tarzan"?

Something startling from
Gilbert K. Chesterton
Mr. Chesterton recently completed a lecture tour of the United States. What he saw and what he thinks about it, he tells in his characteristically brilliant, witty and unusual style. The pointedness, the humor and the extreme interest of the book place it among the most notable volumes of "impressions" of European visitors to the United States.
