King With 12 Toes Apparently Has Abdicated for Second Time

FATHER WAS ASSASSINATED

Constantine I of Greece, now fifty-feur years old, has had an unhappy reign. He succeeded his father, King George, after the latter had been as-sassinated March 18, 1913. Three years of Constantine's life

Constantine's eldest son, George, also pre-German, was excluded from succession by the allied terms, which compelled his father's abdication in 1917. George was born July 19, 1890, and married Princess Elizabeth of Rumania in the spring of 1921. He is still regarded as the heir apparent, but whether he will succeed Constantine is problematical. The only other son of the king is Prince Paul, born Decem-

Constantine was born at Athens, Au-rust 2, 1868. His mother was before her marriage the Russian Grand Duchess Olga. King George was a Lutheran, Queen Olga of the Orthodox Greek faith, and Constantine diplo-matically embraced the latter creed, which was that of his people.

Emphasis is placed on the city's great need for a better water supply, and the impossibility of using the Schuylkill River to furnish the city's drinking water if the exposition is located on its banks.

The committee makes the point also, that, as it would be necessary to bor-row money for improvements, any great expenditure beyond the money that must be spent on them would re-sult in an increase in the tax rate.

Would Increase Rents The committee sees in the fair project the increase in rents, a fictitious value given to real estate, and an in-crease in living costs generally. The committee points out that building operations are just being revived after their long wartime suspension, and the enlistment of labor for the sesqui-Centennial project would drain these enterprises of man power and bring the present building revival to Hotel accommodations also are inndequate, it is pointed our, with only sufficient new hotels projected to take care of the normal growth in transient population. Under such conditions the committee believes the fair would bring danger to the health of the people. The location of the fair site in the built-up section also is condemned on the score that there will be 25,000 automobiles to care for every day probably and only 100 cars can be parked on an acre.

You can, if you will, have your letterheads engraved on real bond paper-that is, on the very paper that is used for bonds. That is what Crane's paper actually means.

All papers used for business stationery are called bond papers, but Crane's paper is the paper used in making bonds.

The delicate engraving necessary makes unusual demands on the paper. Crane's Bond answers these demands perfectly. For that reason among others it is chosen for the production of securities of the highest character. And for that reason it makes a very desirable paper for business stationery.
