HAYS TO TALK ON MOVIES

The Philadelphia Forum nevt week will begin its second season with a comprehensive program of civic, litterary and musical events, which the Board of Governors of the organization is confident will surpass in general interest and appeal the series offered last winter.

The opening meeting will be October 9, when a "Radio Evening" will be given and the Academy of Music will be tran formed into an elaborately equipped wireless-telephone receiving station, while the foremost experts in the radio field will explain the wonders of transmitting messages through space. of transmitting messages through space.

A statement issued by the Forum's Board of Governors has the following to say in regard to the manner in which the next season's events will be con-

the next season's events will be conducted:

"The Forum events will be given in the main auditorium of the Academy of Music, and none in the Foyer.

"Instead of participating in events, by buying blocks of tickets for its membership, as during the first season, the Philadelphia Forum, this season, will have its own exclusive events. Hence, instead of participating in the concerts of the Philadelphia Orchestra, it will have its own special orchestra concert. Instead of participating in the William Lyon Phelps series, the Forum will have its own evening series of Prof. Phelps' successful talks on books. And the famous Bach Choir, of Bethlehem, this season will come to Philadelphia under the Forum's own auspices.

"The majority of Forum events will be given in the evening."

Series of Balls Planned

Series of Balls Planned

"The board has arranged a series of Forum dances, which this senson will assume the proportions and brilliance of gala balls, and which will be given on the dance floor in the main auditorium of the Academy of Music.

"The Philadelphia Forum strives to present a series of events which run the range of an interesting and well-ordered life. Thus it will be no matter of surprise to those who know the Forum's policy to learn, for instance, that there will be an evening with Houdini, the "handenff king," as well as a talk by Sir Anekland Geddes, the British Ambassador: a performance by the San Carlo Opera Comformance by the San Carlo Opera Com-pany, as well as an address by Will H. Hays on his stewardship of the motion-picture industry; a piano remotion-picture industry, a plane re-cital by Josef Hofmann, as well as a talk on "Trapping Wild Animals for Circus and Zoo." by Charles Mayer, the celebrated animal collector and dealer.

"The Philadelphia award will be con-ferred under the auspices of the Forum: there will be an evening devoted to a discussion of the purpose and scope of the Sesqui-Centennial Exhibition; men of the type of Senator George Wharton Pepper and Mark Sullivan, the experienced journalist, will interpret current events, each in a monthly series of talks, and Brigadier General Amos A. Fries, U. S. A., chief of the Chemical Warfare Section, will picture What the Next War Will Be Like.

Noted Men Will Speak "In a series of Birthday Observ-inces' such men as Gifford Pinchot, the Rev. Dr. Russell II. Conwell and Rev. Dr. Russell II. Conwell and Thomas Nelson Page will strike the patriotic note in paying tribute to the memory of the Nation's leaders, in-cading Washington, Lincoln and Prosecult. There will be recitals by losef Hofmann and by Olga Samaroff. the latter making her reappearanupon the concert stage under Forum auspices after an absence of nearly two seasons. The evening will be given over to dramatics; the Plays and Players giving a program of three one act plays and the Forum, in addition, staging a prize competition for college dramatics. James M. Beck will deliver an address; Sinclair Lewis, author of 'Main Street,' will tell of his literary work; Pref. Edward Howard Griggs, whose talks on Dante were an emphatic success last season, will give a course of lectures on Shakespeare; Marguerite Harrison and George Farte Rauguel will bring first-hand news, respectively, from Siberia and Russia and from the Etro-pean Continent. E. M. Newman will motion-picture travel-talk on Africa, and William Beebe, the celebrated essayist and explorer, upon his return from British Guiana, will tell Forum members What It Really Means to Live in the Jungle."
