Miller Huggins or John McGraw Not Confident of Success

BUSH VS. NEHF IN OPENER

New York Oct. 3 .- It's a rather pe culing World Series which will break into baseball history at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon-curtain at 2 precisely. Neither John J. Mc-Graw nor Miller J. Huggins today would go on record with a prediction of success for his club. This sets a mark for managerial shyness and conservatism which has not been approached since the memorable classic of 1914and which incidentally had some little influence on the reduction of the odds. Preliminary to the series of 1914 Connie Mack, the tall Sage of Tioga. was as talkative and as communica-tive as the old Sphinx on Egypt's sands, while George T. Stallings would commit himself no further than to claim that his Braves really were in the tussle. It will be recollected-no Huggins made it clear that while he would not be at all surprised if the Yankees won the series he did not think that there ought to be such things as odds in a scrap for the world laurels. In this he is supported by McGraw and many other old timers. Odds are very Werld series is being played on the field they very often show a sneering disregard for the way the betting went and the manner in which the advance dope on stars and teams was laid out.
