

DEMANDS JUSTICE FOR R. R. SHOPMEN

Counsel Accuses Daugherty of Lacking Good Faith to Expedite Case

WANTS JUDICIAL HEARING

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Appearing before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today, Donald R. Rieberg, attorney for the railway shop crafts, accused the Department of Justice of lack of good faith in the proposal to expedite final disposition of the injunction case against the rail strike leaders.

Mr. Rieberg declared that he and his associate counsel had "held a very unsatisfactory conference" with Solicitor General Beck after a futile attempt to see Attorney General Daugherty in Washington with reference to an early final hearing or a review of the injunctory injunction handed down by Judge Wilkerson on September 25.

Mr. Rieberg said he had received a letter from the Solicitor General advising the position of the Department of Justice to be as follows:

"First, If it were practicable to have three Circuit Judges hear the case, that proceeding would not expedite, but delay it."

"Second, That the department invites counsel for the defendants to consider agreeing on a statement of facts and asks counsel for the defendants to submit such a statement of facts."

"Third, If an agreed statement of facts is not practicable, then two courses are open:

"(a) A stipulation to submit the case on the affidavits to have an either party to offer additional testimony."

"(b) A trial of the case largely on depositions taken throughout the United States, except where a stipulation of facts may dispense with formal proof."

In the letter, in reply to Solicitor General Beck, Mr. Rieberg said:

"There are two matters which the defendants desire to have expedited—first, a review of the injunctory injunction, and second, a final hearing of the case. Your suggestions affect only the second matter and practically ignore the matter of probably greater importance to the defendants."

"The use of the summary equity procedure to obtain a tentative disposition of 400,000 men of criminal conspiracy upon evidence found solely on an undigested mass of reports, affidavits, and affidavits with hearsay and perjury has been made the means of depriving thousands of liberty and property so long as the injunctory injunction remains in force," the letter said.

"Safeguards protecting the widest, most notorious criminal might, notwithstanding have been denied the 400,000 industrious, law-abiding citizens and their chosen leaders."

"The Attorney General has certified that this is a case of general public importance. The defendants are entitled to a hearing before three Judges. Counsel for the defendants will, therefore, ask the Court that such notification be given to the Circuit Judges that this case may be heard in accordance with the provisions of the act of 1907."

ACTRESSES' PRESS AGENTS ARE WORKING OVERTIME

Abundance of Alleged Jewelry Robberies Reported Lately

New York, Oct. 5.—Movie actresses seem to be particularly susceptible to loss of jewelry, according to the amount of space given to such occurrences in newspapers recently. In most cases the losses are loan fide; in others they are obviously the overworked device of publicity-seeking press agents.

It was announced in newspapers yesterday that Pearl White, well known on the silver screen, had been robbed of gems valued at $25,000, taken from her apartment in this city. This morning's papers carry the news of the loss of a diamond bracelet, said to be worth $15,000, by Hone Hampton, on Tuesday, while she was attending the Astor Theatre.

Miss Hampton declared that she remembered having the bracelet on as she entered the theatre with a party of friends. They occupied Box B, on the left of the stage. On leaving the theatre she discovered the loss.

Miss Hampton was with a party of six, including her manager. A substantial reward has been offered for the return of the bracelet.

PHILADELPHIA
didn't just happen

Neither did it become the greatest manufacturing city in the world by accident. It is not by chance that the Port of Philadelphia is rapidly regaining its old-time prestige. Nor is it accidental that its ship building, textile and locomotive industries are among the greatest in the world.

Such things come from careful and constructive planning, from foresight on the part of men of broad vision.

Behind Philadelphia's present Bell service is an engineering staff whose function is planning for the future telephone needs of the city.

The Delaware Bridge, and the other plans for a greater Philadelphia, will mean increased demands for communication facilities. These engineers must meet the new problems and solve them years in advance. That they will do so is evidenced by what they have accomplished in the past.

For they are members of the Bell organization. And all Bell people have a very real interest in the community.

Their ideal is to merit the approbation of their fellow citizens whom they serve. They aim to give the best of service and to give it with courtesy, for they know that courtesy pays.
