

McGraw Outsmarts Huggins in Juggling Pitchers, and Giants Take First of World Series

HUGGINS WAITED TOO LONG TO REMOVE BUSH

"Bullet Joe" Pathetic Figure as He Leaves Mound in Eventful Eighth; Strategy of McGraw in Benching Nehf Proves Effective

RYAN IS REAL HERO

BY JOSEPH T. LABRUM New York, Oct. 4. NEW figures in baseball history were as pathetic during their careers as was Joseph Bush, resident of the Polo Grounds, and the ace of the Yankees pitching staff, yesterday afternoon.

Acclaimed by thousands lining the sidewalks after he left the mound, Bush walked off the hill in the eighth inning head hung low. It was a sorry ending for the man who alone carried the Yankees to the American League pennant by the might of his strong right arm. Bush walked to the Yankees bench without a single fan giving him a handclasp to ease the pain of failure. Bush was charged with the Yankees 3-2 defeat.

To the winner belongs all the spoils and to the loser none in anything else, except in baseball as in anything else. The Yankee fans turned to cheering the Giants and forgot the man they previously accorded tremendous ovations.

Bush pitched a beautiful game of ball the first seven innings. He was in many a tight spot, but his marvelous skill, combined with that confidence which he is noted, pulled him through unscathed.

Loss Confidence HUGGINS wasn't any wroxy on the face of it. Bush when Hancock opened the eighth with a single. Nor did he seem perturbed much by Groh's single that night. His real trouble came when Groh shot a one-base bouncer into the outfield that filled the bases.

Bush was losing his confidence. There was little doubt of that. Instead of mixing up his pitchers, he used the same old ball, and the result was that the Yankees had a corps of hurlers warming up in the bullpen, but he hesitated just that long to get his star and to cost him the victory.

The strategists thought that Bush should have been withdrawn after the third inning with the bases filled and none out. Huggins evidently had confidence in the man who enabled him to win the championship, and that confidence, combined with his aforementioned hesitation, proved the deciding factors in the eighth inning.

It is easy to do up what should have been done after the fact. But, from our point of view, it does not seem to have a thing in the world that gave the National League series their three-run and game. His hesitation to pull Bush out of the game, and his failure to get his star out of the bullpen, proved the deciding factors in the eighth inning.

When the outsterness of John Joseph McGraw was brought to the attention of the public.

Ryan Real Hero IN ADDITION, the little Napoleon of baseball used keen judgment in benching Groh when he did. Of course, Smith failed to have the ball when the opportunity was given him, but Nehf was getting hit hard and often by the Yanks in the sixth and seventh innings. Only three hits were made off the southpaw during those two innings, but the other smashes that were not registered as hits were killed off by Smith's pitching.

Bill Ryan, the youthful star from Holy Cross, who is credited with the hit that surprised the multitude by his exceptional handwork. It was totally unexpected that this rookie strapping, who never hurled in a series before, would fan Witt and Ruth, as he did in the eighth inning. And it was also unexpected that he would force Menck to hit into a double play in the ninth inning, when the Yanks seemed to be on their way to a rally.

The game was a spectacular one from start to finish. Pearly's doubling jotted up during the entire contest. Scion in the history of baseball has a play been staged such as Hancock's homer in the first inning, the third inning of Joe Bush's fly out, beyond shortstop. Back to the plate, racing at full speed, Hanny reached over his shoulder and killed off a certain hit.

Other fielding gems abounded during the game, many going unnoticed because of the high speed the infielders were working under. It was a beautiful sight after watching the Phillies and Athletics all season to see how real team play.

When selecting leaves, Huggins must not be left out in the cold. The distinctive third baseman of the Giants was a king in hitting. He had a pair of singles and a long triple, in addition worked Bush for his only pass of the game, a perfect average for the day.

Ruth and Witt Shine ON THE Yankees' side, Babe Ruth and Whittey Witt were the stars. The bustin' "person" struck out twice but his one hit was the blow that gave the Yanks one of their previous two markers. Witt did his part in the eighth, the sixth, after having tripped down the left field foul line.

Coming back to Bush, it must be said that his teammates accepted him in good faith and supported him in his innings and prosperity. In the seventh inning the clouds of defeat were getting dark and heavy over the Yankees' sparkling fielding error for Bush when one man was out when Kelly, Stengel and Snyder singled in the eighth. Earl Smith was sent in to bat and he shot a grounder down toward short that had all the earmarks of a hit. The long distance shortstop championed the smash properly, but he muffed it down and tossed to Snyder for a force-out of Snyder, by the providential eyelash. Ward was quick on the trigger and had the ball in Kelly's hand before Smith was a yard from the initial sack.

The Giants erred in the field three times, Young perpetrating two in the sixth and the seventh. The other two in the seventh were bunched. Ned Egan, who was in the box, wearing his fire-branded fireman's cap. The ball hit the ground and the Yankees were on their feet.

Taking the game as a whole, the general opinion is that McGraw outsmarts Huggins in juggling pitchers. McGraw is quick to make a change, and his quick work yesterday afternoon proved effective. Huggins chose to wait out therein lies the story of the Yanks' defeat.

George "Possum" Whitted, former Phil idol, who was given a one-way ticket to Toledo because he aired his grievances against the organization, brooded in before game time.

"Possum" was stalking Irvin S. Cobb to present it with a bird dog. Cobb was mourning for one of his pups which passed away recently.

A press article of a local ice factory made a bid for the Bush's coal stove in the eighth inning. He withdrew it in the sixth.

When Earl Smith was sent up as a pinch hitter in the seventh inning he must have seen a cross eyed woman in the stands and a pair of cross eyes in the greatest jinx in the world's history. There is one antidote for it, according to baseball superstition. Spit—Mr. McCraw's would say—expectorate in your hat.

No "Old" Yank of his own and did that little thing. To no avail, for he hit into a double play.

Prof. A. J. there was another jinx lurking around that he didn't know anything about.

The Yankee management made an effort before the series began, and all soft drinks included in soft bottles to protect Whittey Witt.

Figures of Initial World Series Game

Table with columns: Standing of the Clubs, W, L, P.C., Giants, Yankees, Record of Series (First Game), R, H, E., Receipts and Attendance.

unexpected that this rookie strapping, who never hurled in a series before, would fan Witt and Ruth, as he did in the eighth inning. And it was also unexpected that he would force Menck to hit into a double play in the ninth inning, when the Yanks seemed to be on their way to a rally.

The game was a spectacular one from start to finish. Pearly's doubling jotted up during the entire contest. Scion in the history of baseball has a play been staged such as Hancock's homer in the first inning, the third inning of Joe Bush's fly out, beyond shortstop.

When selecting leaves, Huggins must not be left out in the cold. The distinctive third baseman of the Giants was a king in hitting. He had a pair of singles and a long triple, in addition worked Bush for his only pass of the game, a perfect average for the day.

Ruth and Witt Shine ON THE Yankees' side, Babe Ruth and Whittey Witt were the stars. The bustin' "person" struck out twice but his one hit was the blow that gave the Yanks one of their previous two markers.

Taking the game as a whole, the general opinion is that McGraw outsmarts Huggins in juggling pitchers. McGraw is quick to make a change, and his quick work yesterday afternoon proved effective.

The Yankee management made an effort before the series began, and all soft drinks included in soft bottles to protect Whittey Witt.

Receipts of First Game Shattered All Records

The 36,514 persons who witnessed the first game of the World Series at the Polo Grounds yesterday made $110,000 for their pleasure, the largest amount ever taken in for a single World Series game.

CAUGHT BY CAMERA AT FIRST WORLD SERIES GAME

BETTING IS 4 TO 5 IN GIANTS FAVOR

Winning of First Game Changes Odds—Even Money, Says One Commissioner

MANY WAGERS ARE LAID

New York, Oct. 5.—When the Giants routed the Yankees yesterday the McGrawmen also changed the speculation on the World Series. The result of the opening skirmish further served as an encouraging stimulant to those of a speculative turn of mind who liked the Giants' chances of victory.

John Doyle, who is one of the biggest local commissioners, quoted the above odds last night. He added that the odds placed at these figures. The betting on the second game of the series was reported at 9 to 10 and take your pick. Doyle reported placing one wager of $200 against $100 on the Giants to win.

"I'm STRICTLY NEUTRAL," DECLARES FRANK CHANCE Admits, However, He Placed Sentimental Bet on Giants

New York, Oct. 5.—"I'm strictly neutral," said Frank Chance, former pitcher in the halcyon days of the Chicago Cubs, when asked for his opinion on the Yankees' victory yesterday.

Bluenose Off for Halifax Lafayette Harriers Report

Hugh Jennings is whoopin' 'er up as Davy Bancroft is crossing the plate with the first giant run in yesterday's game. From left to right in the photograph the figures are Empire Klem, Jennings, George Kelly, Wally Schang, Bancroft, scoring; Eddie Bennett, mascot, and Ross Young. Bancroft scored on Meusel's single, which also brought in Groh with the tying run.

200 TEE OFF IN LINWOOD TOURNEY

Many Philadelphia Golfers Compete in Qualifying Round of Event at Shore

MATCH PLAY TOMORROW

Atlantic City, Oct. 5.—Close to 200 players from the Philadelphia district tied in the first amateur open golf tournament of the Linwood Country Club, which began this morning over the new Linwood course.

Finishes Second in First Race in Year at Laurel

Laurel, Oct. 5.—Playfellow, the brother to Man o' War, which has gained almost as much notoriety as the wonder horse gained fame, made his first appearance under colors in more than a year yesterday and finished second to Nedra in the Pocomoke purse at one mile.

White Sox Win Defeat Cubs in First Game of the Series, 6 to 2

Chicago, Oct. 5.—Eddie Muligan's heavy batting put the American League representative of the White Sox in front of the National League rivals in the first game to decide the city championship. The White Sox winning, 6 to 2. It was the thirteenth consecutive victory for the American League over their rivals.

Want Stanford to Cancel Game

Crowd Waits All Night by Himself

New York, Oct. 5.—The bleacher crowd began to assemble at the Polo Grounds at midnight and he was still there at 7 o'clock this morning.

P. R. T. BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP SCORE

Table showing scores for Allegheny and Richmond in the P. R. T. Baseball Championship.

AMMONIA FUMES ROUT FACTORY GIRLS

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Eighty girls, workers in a Brooklyn candy factory, were driven to the streets today when the condenser of an ammonia cooler plant in the basement was blown off.

TOKIO PRESS DENOUNCES MILITARISTS

TOKIO, Oct. 5.—Japanese militarists are denouncing vigorously and unanimously by the venacular press in connection with the disappearance of arms left in Siberia by Czechoslovak troops two years ago and made available to sources of inspiration by the Japanese evacuation of Siberia.

CONNELLSVILLE INCREASED COKE OUTPUT

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 5.—A gain of 18,350 tons in coke production last week, as compared with the previous week, was shown in a review of activities in the Connelville region today. The total output was 118,680 tons.

MRS. BARLOW LOSES IN 2D-ROUND MATCH

Is Eliminated From Berthellyn Cup Golf by Mrs. Hurd, 5 and 4

CONTEST HARD FOUGHT

Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Philadelphia women's champion, and former holder of various other golf titles, was eliminated from the Berthellyn Cup competition over the Huntingdon Valley Country Club links today by Mrs. Dorothy Hurd, of Belmont Springs, 5 and 4.

Joe Gans is Victor Italian Boxer Seives Soldier Barfield Gives Drubbing

New York, Oct. 5.—Soldier Barfield, who had been expected to win the title of world champion by defeating Italian Joe Gans, was soundly thrashed by Gans in a seven round contest at the Madison Square Garden.

S. E. ROADS OFFICIALS AND WORKERS MEET

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Officials of railroads in the southeastern section of the United States and heads of the trainmen and conductors brotherhoods began a conference here today to consider the drafting of possible contracts covering wages and working conditions.

SETS WORLD'S TROT MARK Peter Manning Goes Mile in 1:56 3/4 at Lexington

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 5.—Peter Manning, a three-year-old gelding, the property of L. H. Henson, lowered his own world's record here yesterday by trotting a mile against time in 1:56 3/4. His record of 1:57 1/4, was made at this course last year, when he trotted a mile at Columbus last week in 1:57.

Greene Wins Golf Cup

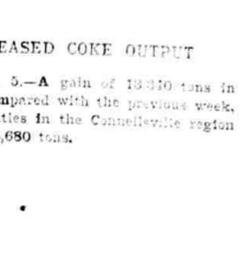

Bellingham, Mass., Oct. 5.—The Golf President of the Bellingham Golf Club, who had been expected to win the title of champion by defeating William B. Greene, was soundly thrashed by Greene in a seven round contest at the Madison Square Garden.

Joe Farrell is a Winner

Giants-Yanks Series and Season Batting

Table showing batting statistics for the Giants and Yankees during the season.

The Winning Pitcher

ROSEY RYAN He went on the mound at the beginning of the eighth inning for the Giants and is credited with the win, as the Giants scored three runs in the next inning against the Yanks. Ryan succeeded Nehf, who was yanked for a pinch hitter.

Table showing batting records for various players.

Table showing batting records for various players.

Table showing batting records for various players.

Table showing batting records for various players.

Table showing batting records for various players.

Table showing batting records for various players.

ALL AROUND THE POLO GROUNDS

Bush Cuts the Gate There's a place I know where the "Y" swings back and forth. And there's a place where the "Y" swings back and forth. Where the ball does not, and the money goes.

Like a top of pine cones a pitcher great. Whose soul is deep with yearning. Be on hand to catch, as he vents the steam. To bid not how much he's enjoying.

Think his speed's kept by with a lightning. Yet the pitcher's hand is a steady tramp. And eventually caught the shaver.

It's there he'll stay till our happier day. When a moment they'll give him. That's where he'll wait, as he thinks of the gate.

"Murderer's Row" looked like a "Sunday School of Miley" for most of the game.

Jack Dempsey muffed into the press box, and did not stir up a flicker of interest. When Christy Mathewson appeared, that was a salvo of cheers. "The Six" is a salvo of cheers. When he was winning pennants for McGraw's millions.

There was a slight fog over the Polo Grounds in the early innings, due to Bullet Bush's "smoke" ball. It cleared up about the seventh inning, though.

"Murderer's Row" looked like a "Sunday School of Miley" for most of the game.

Jack Dempsey muffed into the press box, and did not stir up a flicker of interest. When Christy Mathewson appeared, that was a salvo of cheers. "The Six" is a salvo of cheers. When he was winning pennants for McGraw's millions.

There was a slight fog over the Polo Grounds in the early innings, due to Bullet Bush's "smoke" ball. It cleared up about the seventh inning, though.