

ness and generosity gradually undermine her resolution never to trust 6 man. The time comes when Steele's from will breaks and the two are swept irresistibly together. But Anne's clusive personality baffles him. ind even in the midat of their love he does not feel sure of her. On the steamer returning home, a man by the name of Norris tries to firt with Anne, and for the first time Steele begins to wonder about the secret in her past.

An Unworthy Attack

IN HIS stateroom after they had left the Norrises, Steele sat down on the window seat beneath the open porthole and lighted a cigar. The even

WHAT'S WHAT

By Helen Decie

The Woman's Exchange Caring for Instrument

dolin.

To the Editor of Woman's Page: To the Editor of Women's Page: Dear Madam—I play the banjo-man-dolin and the brackets which are on the instrument are rusty. I haven't the least idea how to remove the rust. The locks on my case are also be-ginning to rust. Kindly advise me what to do to remove the rust from these objects. MISS M.

then add remaining pint of cream which

Tomorrow-How to Mix Salads, by Ida M. Tarbell

Convright, 1922, by Public Ledger Compa

has been whipped. Freeze all hard.

FOREIGN or Domestic at RIGHT Prices Bass. Benchsa. Chair Seats. Footstools etc. With Working Materials. THE ANSORTMENT IN UNEQUALLED STAMPED LANDSCAPE CANADIAN HOMESPUN BAGS

GIFTS-BEADS-WOOL Germantown Novelty Shop

Take 5 Months To Pau

advancing on him.

Give Your Draperies a New Touch Even if you do not care to change our draperies entirely you can give rhythmic chug of the engines and the swish of the water as the boat cut through it were soothing, but Steele's brain was in a turmoil and he could not seem to get a grip on himself.

Beneath the jealousy that seethed in him burned the flame of his love for Anne, even and steady, but his jealousy obsessed him, made him see things in (carbonic acid gas) rising from some a wrong light, made him inclined to blame her, even when his reason told him he was wrong.

the next room, and a sudden desire his experiment put it into a bulb consessed him to have things out with nected with a tube filled with mercury. her, to demand as his right that she tell him everything concerned with her tell him everything concerned with her past. But he throttled the impulse and remained where he was, until suddenly he realized that she was there in the room. She had come to him. He knew it without turning his head. The subtle

Instantly he was on his feet, he was looking at her with unseeing eyes, his which would not burn, he found that a face impassive. she came up close to him. "John, lighted candle placed in it burned much more brightly; that red-hot charcoal what has happened, are you angry about something? His dark eyes blazed down into hers.

"Anne, I want you to tell me some- fore, and that when he breathed, it into thing. I must know the truth. Was his lungs he became exhilarated. While he really did not understand there a man in your past before you came to me? Answer me, I have a right just what he had discovered he was to know!"

She shrank away from him, and into oxygen to be the chief agent in her eyes there crept that look of fear that had been absent from them for so long.

She drew a long breath and when she oxide into pure mercury and gas spoke there was a strange quality in her voisier thought that if he could make voice. It should have warned him, mercuric oxide by heating mercury in but he was too blinded with jealousy the air and then afterward separate it again into mercury and gas, it would prove that the gas came out of the air. to notice it. "Why do you ask me that-now?"

"Because of Norris-the way he looks As he was successful, the discovery of at you. There's something about you oxygen in the air was accomplished. that draws men. Oh, I don't say it's your fault, but it makes me think things, Tomorrow-What Causes Snoring?

it drives me mad!' "I'm sorry you should feel that way -very sorry." Her voice was like ice. But still he blundered on.

"Can't you appreciate my feelings?" Oh, Anne, I love you so much that the thought of another man in your life is agony to me." "There is no other man in my life but you.

'I know there isn't now, but was there before you knew me? Is that why you hestitated to give me your trust, was there some one else?" was there some one els

By R. J. and A. W. Bodmer Who Discovered Oxygen Gas The discovery of oxygen is credited to Joseph Priestley, a writer on re-ligious subjects, who spent his leisure in conducting chemical experiments New Struck you first, he would not have a case, it would seem, but Cynthia cannot give you a legal opinion. Why not consult the Legal Ald at City Hall? Cynthia hardly thinks the man would carry the matter to court, as he would not like the ridicule which publicity You conducting chemical experiments. you His interest in such things began by Girls Ought to Be More Cordial watching the bubbles of "fixed air" beer vats in a brewery near his home. One day in 1774 he happened to take here if they were in my class, as you know the saying "no one loves a fat man," but honest. I am never lonely. I suppose it is my good nature (pardon me for patting myself on the back). I should think that if those lonely He could hear her moving about in a red powder (mercuric oxide) and for the other end of the tube leading into a > of today and why some are lonely. Well, if a girl has been introduced to a young man at a party and this said young man takes a liking to this girl and asks her if he can call on her some evening, she tells him. "Oh, no, I hardly ever go out or have any one call on me." The reason for her telling this young man this is because he is not good looking enough. Now, readers, don't you think it best if the girl would ac-cept this invitation, and in time she would perhaps be introduced to some one she would be more interested in? YOUNG FAT MAN. burst into flame and burned furiously; that a mouse placed in it became more lively than a mouse ever had been be-

YOUNG FAT MAN.

Talk With Her About It All

Dear Cynthia-I am a young man Tomorrow-"Arrangement of Flowers" wenty-five years of age and, after a org wait. I have finally met a girl four ears my junior whom I sincerely love. wenty-five vears my junior whom I sincerely love. In fact, I am convinced that I could never be content with any girl other han this one. But the difficulty is that I am in a predicament that will not per-mit me to marry for at least two or three years to come. For, although I have a good position now and a good outlook for the future. I have been so tied down by what I consider to be family obligations that I cannot con-sider marriage right now, and, besides. I have been able to save absolutely nothing.

Under these circumstances, since I Under these circumstances, since I love this girl whole-heartedly, should I ask her to wait this length of time for me? In a prolonged engagement such as this does real love remain constant, as this does real love remain constant, and survive, or does it tend to become less intense? If the girl does signify her willingness to wait should I give her an engagement ring now or wait a while? Thanking you for an early reply.

<text><text><text><text><text><text><text>

less lace for milady's chaise longue. One thing only is important: if a cushion is for comfort, it should not be elaborately trimmed. For the formal drawing room long. round cushions of velvet and brocade.

with heavy and beautifully planned tas-sels, are best. Square pillows of old Chinese brocades or even of embroid-eries that may have had an ecclesiastical Dear Cynthia—I have been reading your column daily for the past month or so, and I can't understand young men and women being lonely as they say. Now there would be an excuse for origin, boxed and very carefully made; taffeta pillows of every shape and color; black satin or velvet pillows-all have a wonderful effect in adding to the luxurious air of a room.

Many persons prefer to use floss cushions because they hold their shape more readily than down, but for sheer luxury there is nothing like down. One of the French shops in New York is showing great fireside cushions for the floor and an arrangement of square flat cushions held together by the cov-ering material and capable of being remained where he was, until suburning glass and soon a gas arose room. She had come to him. He knew it without turning his head. The subtle delicacy of the perfume she used floated to him, but stubbornly he did not move until she spoke his name.

One black cushion among several made of colors brings out their full value in color. It is to be remembered that a soft black cushion makes a marvelous background for auburn or blond hair.

Cushions should never be over-trimmed. Fussy frills or embroidery are out of place on an object originally designed as a support.

The decorative value should be in the material, shape and finish, not in applied trimming.

It's Such a Bother

To think up decorations and games for a party even when you're specially interested in giving it. Don't let that stop you from giving a Halloween party, though, for all you have to do is send a selfaddressed stamped envelope to the editor of the woman's page, to get some suggestions for a very unusual affair. And everything is arranged for you, too. You don't have to do anything about the plans except carry them out.

1312 Walnut Street

Rub the rusty parts with a soft cloth which has been moistened with oil. This will bring the shine back to your man-Color Ran To the Editor of Woman's Page:

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam—I have a very pretty pongee silk dress, which is trimmed in a certain bright orange material. The second time this dress was washed, the coloy ran all over it. I would appreciate it very much if you would tell me a way to remove this color from the pongee. ARLYNNE.

ARLYNNE. Sometimes this can be done by soak-ing it for a while in cold water, and then washing in cold water. Soaking in a solution of sodium salicylate crystals will take the orange color out of the pongee, but is liable to have the er-tect of removing the color from the ma-terial, too. So, before trying this, test an extra piece of the pongee.

Adventures With a Purse

MARSHA, that pretty new bride friend of mine, came to me and said, "Whatever can I do; we are going away and I would like to give a dinner. but simply couldn't manage everybody in that small apartment of mine!" I told her of a shop where she could give a dinner, a delightful little tea shop, where just she and her friends could be without any one else to interfere. The flicker of candles, the mystery of quaint, old-fashioned furniture; the quaint, old-fashioned furniture; the very charm of the atmosphere are delightful for six or more people. The nice lady in charge serves a platter din-ner for $1.50. Awfully good, well and attractively cooked food, and a dinner which includes most everything from soup to nuts. For names of shops address Woman's Pare Pditor or phone Wainut 3000 or Main 1601 between the hours of 9 and 5.

