Patroiman Forbids Mrs. Barton to Distribute Registration Cards on Chestnut St.

LITTERED UP PAVEMENT

Mrs. C. E. Barton, a Republican worker, was stopped by a mounted po-Heeman while she was distributing regletration cards in Chestnut street between Thirteenth and Broad yesterday. "I'm sorry, but you'll have to stop giving out those little cards to the people on this street. They're throw-ing them everywhere and littering the pavement," said Mounted Patrolman Fisher politely. Mrs. Barton did not protest, but ceased her work. When a representative of the Re-publican Women of Pennsylvania asked Patrolman Fisher the reason for his action, the patrolman said:

"I didn't know the cards were registration cards until after she left. 1 am sorry it happened." Fisher said he thought the woman worker was Mrs. Rudolph Blankenburg. Mrs. Blankenburg said, however, that she had not appeared on Chestnut street nor any other street, as she understood she was not to work until

Had Received Permits

The women had expected no trouble, since they had received a distribution permit from Mayor Moore. Mrs. Ludwig, a West Philadelphia worker, was ordered from the front of a motion-picture house at Nineteenth and Market streets. Even when she left the front of the theatre, Mrs. Lud-wig was told to cease giving out the cards. She reported the affair to head-quarters and then obtained the name
