PRINCE OF WALES' CHUM BRINGS HIS BRIDE TO AMERICA FOR "DEMOCRATIC HONEYMOON"

Lord Mountbatten, Cousin of King of England, and Wife Here on "Kids' Frolic" favorite indoor sport, even though they are wealthy beyond all casual are her long suits, for didn't she take a domestic science course at Links? Lord Mountbatten believes in work, too, "and when we get home again," says he, "I am going to my work, and Edwina will do the house-second honeymoon," as Lord Louis himself puts it.

They will tour America for three months. They will be the guests of Cornelius Vanderbilt, and then they will leave for overseas again.

One must reconstruct all precon-

If one expects Lord Louis and his Lady to be aloof, stiff, formal, lege, Cambridge."

In 1920, on the Renown, Lord

Lord and Lady Mountbatten perhaps call naval aide to the Prince," he said. "And we toured India and walked down the Majestic gangplank to Pier No. 59 looking like any two rather well-to-do happy and very young lovers.

Rather excited, rather flushed, they worried a little about their baggage. On board, he in his yachting up and she in a sports dress of erange, they had been great favorites. "They danced like two children," fellow passengers said. "They strolled the decks together, they stood out under the full moon as any other sweethearts in the world would aboard ship. They were charming. So democratic!" "Democratic" seems to be the most frequent word America uses to qualify those alien folks who are natural, unaffected, amiable. And "democratic" fits the twentyone-year-old Lord and his twentyyear-old bride like a glove on a slim, white hand. Servitors at the Hotel Their Only Formality

At their temporary apartment in a whienable New York hotel, the only of formalities about them are the hotel erritors, whose noses can't help tilting slittle higher and whose manners grow more and more cavalier on the advent

Lady Mountbatten sat on a divan in the attractive apartment, her legs curied | girlishly under her. Before the divan was a round table spread with a light

She is a fairly tall young woman.

with pink checks and brown hair. Lord Mountbatten looks a bit like the Prince of Wales, whose aide he was furing that gay young future King's tour to the four or five corners of the world. He wore a dark, well-fitting mit. His cheeks are as pink as his bride's. He is much taller: like his father, Prince of Battenberg, at one time First Lord of the King's navy. be stretches into the six-foot level. He reached out a long arm and fastened a firm grip over the hand of his visitor. Should one bow to the Lady? One hadn't a chance to. Lady Mountbatten held forward her hand. Was one to kiss it? Or shake it? One wondered, but finally one shook it, and it seemed to be what was expected. Lady Mountbatten remained on the fivan. And it might have been the most proper way for the visitor to greet anybody on any occasion. At any rate, It was a most charming, unaffected way. So unaffected were they that at least Japan. And in India, at Delhi, I met ere of them-the head of the household Edwina Ashley. ucited, wearied a little by their trip their romance. Others insist that Make them diffident.

"Let us go over in this corner and well not disturb Lady Mountbatten."

It is go over in this corner and the young man paused for a moment he set on a chair. But not for long. Not only to answer calls on the phone, not only to open the apartment door when

Inforcement did he get up at inter"als from that chair: but he got up

Inforcement did he get up at inter
Inforcement did he get up at inter
Inforcement did he get up at inter
was dreaming, but were netually only

was dreaming, but were netually only

beginning the first lap of a three-month

was dreaming.

We were married, you know, on

We were married, you know, on

Originally it was Buttenberg, but duras the war all the German names of glishmen were changed. You know, course, that most of the English—

He's a Great-Grandson of Queen Victoria

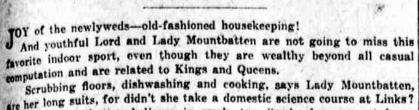

Windsor, on June 25, 1900, Queen Victoria was my great-grandmother."

And Lord Louis Francis Albert Victory Wedding Second Only to That of Princess Mary Nicholas Mountbatten has other

Grand Fleet. In command? dining room, will accommodate 100 pulse at that time, for my leave will have expired."

The newly made man and wife then

By this time Lady Mountbatten had

They reached New York this week on the liner Majestic, "for our ceptions one cherishes about royalty leave and I toured the Western front. and blue blood after meeting Lord Next they put me second in command Mountbatten and his bride, who was cort flotilla. During that period I estawing Ashley, England's wealthiest corted many American troops across girl, whose fortune is estimated at the Channel to France, and fine fellows afty millions of dollars. they were his Lady to be aloot, still, I and the late of the lat

On the golf links at home

-seemed a trifle shy. They were both Some say that was the beginning of both anticipatory of their three months in a new and exciting south.

and they both were newly married. ough, certainly, to excite them, even at Delhi. From there she went home.

only to answer calls on the phone, not only to open the apartment door when other side of the room on the divan, as other came, did he get up at inter-so said. and I must tell you about that name. It isn't really mine. July 18, of this year, at St. Margaret's. close by Westminster. The Wales was our best man.

The young man paused again here to add modestly and apologetically the Anglo-Saxon—stock is of German wouldn't tell you all that, but I know what newspapers like to print."

He didn't, you see, want any one to imagine he was putting on "side." He is a very likable young man. And my nieces, the little Princesses

That of Princess Mary As a matter of fact, the wedding was relatives quite as interesting as that ald motherly Queen. His cousin is the present King George, and so is the King the Princess Mary and Viscount Laster of Spain.

As a matter of fact, the wedding was second only in importance to that of the Princess Mary and Viscount Laster of Spain. ockers Park and then entered the reception was held at Brook House, the Bit I went to Dartmonth Royal Naval Academy, and in July, 1916. I went to Bride's inheritance from her grand-Academy, and in July, 1916, I went to father. Sir Ernest Cassel. This house a in the H. M. S. Lioh. I was a is an immense five story palace, for midshipman, be pronounced it which 800 tons of marble were brought mitchman, under Admiral Beauty mitchman under Admiral Beatty from Italy. It was built about fifteen 1917 I transferred to the Queen years ago by Sir Edward, and all Lou-Later I was on Submarine K-6, of Grand Fleet. In command to the Conce of it. One room in it, the Roman I must return to my post on the Re-

in Nevada, to interest.

Lady Mountbatten

King Alfonso, and on September 27 sailed for America. "We leave immediately for Ningara

I didn't know that, but now that I do, there seems to be all the more reason

From Niagara Falls they will go

West to Chicago and then to Humboldt,

Lady Mountbatten holds a controlling

Canyon, then return to Florida, where the young husband hopes to get in a couple of days of tarpon fishing. Their last week will be spent with Cornelius

"We've arranged our trip so that we'll return home before Christmas, in the world for going there.

Vanderbilt in New York.

ioned in Spain, as guests of resumed the Lord. "That's the Mecca for honeymooners, isn't it?

inspect mines in which

Royal Navy and Not Politics Is Chief Interest of Young Nobleman, Who Was Companion of Future Ruler on Tours

Mountbatten, for they now faced each other, looked at him inscrutably for a moment, but said nothing. She is not yet old enough, anyhow, to be really sensitive about her age. "She was born then," continued the husband, "and she went to school, and she got married and that seems to be about all of her life history so far. And Lord Mountbatten, smiling, took a step sideways, and one to the rear, and came forward again, swinging his arms. It wasn't calisthenics. nerely an unconscious expression of how good to him life was and how inviting the prospect of this long honey-

Interested in Politics? No; He's in the Navy

"I went to school at Links, East ish blo Bourne, and then at Albrine. I took a course in domestic science. Oh, yes," she laughed. "scrubbing the floors. washing dishes, cooking and everything. Did I like it? No. I hated it then. But one has to learn those things. She beamed at the young boy who is her husband, and he beamed back. "Are you interested in politics, Lady Mountbatten?"

Before she had a moment to do more than laugh at that Lord Mountbatten man Emperor brightly interrupted:

It explained everything emphatically, Lady Mountbatten, if you please, is not walked to her nusband's side. She a lieutenant—pronounced "leftenant" batten" is the name of the little headleaned over the chair. He looked up —is very much interested in what he at her and said:

| Compared the little head| Compared the little head

"My wife was born on November 20, 1901. She is twenty-one years old."
Lord Mountbatten let go the secret with the frankness of a child. Lady

On their transcontinental tour they on the crowning of King Edward signalized the occasion by but we only touched California then.
On their transcontinental tour they will be the guests of Colonel Robert M. Thompson, of New York, who was a friend of Lord Mountbatten's father.
Battenberg, which was the name the present Lord's father used up until, under King's warrant, it was Anglicized, is a German principality of recized, is a German principality of recized, is a German principality of recized.

turn married Princess Victoria, daugh-ter of the Grand Duke of Hesse and favorite granddaughter of Queen Vic-toria of England. There is little, therefore, if any Brit-admixture of Russian Jew.

Battenberg a Second Cousin of Former Kaiser

Under the patronage of Queen Viccousin once removed to the former Gerightly interrupted:

fully. He left his native home in Ausin that house, and her ladyship certria for England, to be naturalized there tainly won't have the opportunity of interested in politics. She is profound- fore his promotion to a captainty, ance of newlyweds; they have the same ly interested in the navy and in her Finally, however, his ability was rec-

Indeed, Lord Mountbatten, who is was German were broadcast,

"Now you ought to say something about your life."

He turned to his visitor.

"My wife's name used to be." he began, "Edwing Ashley. E-D-" he hesitated. "How do you spell your name, Edwing? With two d's?"

And he is a chip of the old block

"Now you ought to say something "I don't care two hoots," says he. "what you call me." He speaks so of his title. "I am an officer in the royal navy. I'm too busy most of the time to worry about whether I'm a Lordon, Sir Edward Cassel. He was the son of a Cologne banker, Jacob Cassel, and went to England when he esitated. 'How do you spell your Lord or a Commoner.'
ame, Edwina? With two d's?'
"No, with one," she replied.
They both were on their feet now.

Rattenberg, admitted he was infinitely of the financial powers in England, with They both were on their feet now, taking a turn about the room. One might even go so far as to suggest that they frolicked mildly about the room, like youngsters possessed, and on their first picnic.

Battenberg, admitted he was innuited in the was innuited in the second of the mancial powers in room, interests extending over the entire world. After his friend, the Prince of Wales, became Edward VII, King of the first picnic.

"This, you know, isn't exactly my their first picnic."

This, you know, isn't exactly my their first picnic.

cized, is a German principality of re-cent origin. The title was first granted to the issue of the marriage of Lord Mountbatten's grandfather, Prince Al-His only child married Wilfrid Ashley, exauder of Hesse, in Prussia, and a a grandnephew of Lord Palmerton, beautiful Russo-German Jewish girl. It has been rumored that Sir Edwa It has been rumored that Sir Edward. Julia von Hauke, lady-in-waiting to the former Czarina of Russia.

Lord Mountbatten's father was the third child of this marriage, and he in third child of Princess Victoria daughter to royalty. In his will, although he had bequeathed the famous Parkland street palace, Brook House, to his sister, he stipulated that in the event it should be required for royal residence she should surrender it. And she has surrendered it.

And they may be going back to take strangely enough, his young wife also up housekeeping, but there are grave is partly of Jewish descent.

And they may be going back to take up housekeeping, but there are grave doubts. No doubts at all that they are going back to live there, but doubts whether it is possible to do light or any sort of bousekeeping in a home palatial proportions.

It will require a retinue-an arms servants to keep the place tidy. developed most success. There will be no usual spring cleaning with politics. I am in the navy, and in 1868, when he was only fourteen dusting even the smallest corner of it she's my wife!"

His progress was at first slow. He And the thought leads one to ruming. was twenty-three years in the navy be- tion. This couple have all the appearhusband, but not in politics. Fact of the matter is she doubtless likes scrubbing floors better than politics, and what more could any husband wish of his wife?

"When I get back to England I'm going to work and my wife will keep house!" At which they both laughed lightly, but democratically.

In the matter is she doubtless likes scrubbing floors better than politics, and what more could any husband wish of his wife?

"When I get back to England I'm going to work and my wife will keep house!" At which they both laughed lightly, but democratically.

Indeed, Lord Mountbatten, who is ham and eggs in the morning and then

Louis Mountbatten and Lady Mountbatten, the Prince of Wales and Princess Theodosia; seated, Miss Mary Ashley, Miss Joan Pakenham, Lady Mary Ashley-Cooper and Princess Cecilia; seated in front, Princess Sophia It was admitted that the Prince was enjoy his pleasure over them with the the "soul of henor," but that his re- lutriguing consciousness that he is est-adopted country. Prince sent the following resignation the cut out.

painful conclusion that at this juncture great house servants will come to do her my birth and parentage have the effect of impairing in some respects my useof impairing in some respects my usefulness on the Beard of the Admiralty. In these circumstances I feel it to be my duty as a loyal subject of His the complexity of human nature, envy Majesty to resign my office of First them a little.

Sea Lord, hoping thereby to facilitate the task of the administration of the all their joys away from them. my life and to case the burden laid on His Majesty's ministers.

The resignation was immediately actually anothing remarkably signifi-

of German origin and titles were doing looking homebodies.

It. King George persuaded Prince One finds ones Louis to drop his Battenberg titles dreaming about them as one does about and take the name of Mounthatten, any other garden-variety bride and with the rank and titles of Viscount bridegroom—dreaming about them and Alderney. Earl of Medina and Mar- yet wondering, too, what compensation quis of Milford Haven. The victim the good gods give to newlyweds whom of "spy manta" and unfortunate the world and its curiosity won't let prejudice was in this manner admitted alone, whose leve-nest is no isolated to the British peerage. He died last cabin, but a palace with servants and autumn. It is of interest that 'Mount- servants and servants.

lationship with the Prussian royal fam- ing what her own hands helped fry. by rendered him subject to gossip and She'll never darn his socks o' nights unfounded suspicions and limited the while he reads the evening paper at his possible service he might do for his study lamp. She'll never have the supreme jor of ordering him down the In October, 1914, therefore, the reliar to bank the furnace fire or put to Winston Churchill:

No, she'll press buttons. And from there have lately been driven to the a thousand and one corners of their No. she'll press buttons. And from cepted, but with regret. He was then can't about that, excepting that her enappointed a member of the Prive thusiasm suggested that she liked rid-Council by King George. ing better than the drawing room, and The title which the present Lord that's a hopeful sign. At bottom, Lord Mountbatten holds is one for cour- and Lady Mountbatten are homebodies, tesy. In 1917, when all the perage They are two, pink-cheeked, boylab-

One finds oneself sentimentally

The newly weds on their arrival in the United States