Nancy Wynne Speaks of the Many Debutante Affairs This Week-She Tells of Two Teas and Dance Scheduled for Today

Beed Morgan. Sarah's sister-in-law,

a great many parties given for them.
Sarah will be the guest of homor at a dance which her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Louis Ketterlinus, will and Mrs. J. Louis Ketterlinus, will five at Green Hill Farms on October 28, and her father will give a dance for her some time in December. I hear, The tea this afternoon is not, prop-erly speaking. Libby Morgan's official erly speaking. Libby Morgan's official coming out, as her parents will give another ten for her on November 9. They have taken the Bayard Bowies' bouse in Chestnut Hill for two years (the Bowies, who have just come back they desired a work to be in the second to be from abroad, expect to be in town for the winter), and the tea will be given there. It's a very attractive place, as those of us will remember who went to the garden party last spring which the Bowies gave for Mr. and Mrs. Bayard

THE second ten today will be to intreduce Nancy Knowles, Mr. and rs. 'Natty' Knowles' debutante caughter. The Knowles live on Semipole avenue, in Chestnut Hill, so it should not be hard to take in both parties, since the Wardens' tea is in Germantown. Nancy will have about Germantown. Nancy will have about twenty debs receiving with her. A receiving party always makes a tea interesting and attractive, I think. Nancy herself is pretty, with dark brown hair and eyes. She and her parents spent the summer in Europe, as many of the other buils did, and so, of source she will have a French dress. course, she will have a French dress to appear in.
Mr. and Mrs. Knowles will give a dinner for her before the First Assem-bly and a dance the beginning of Febmary, so she will not want for parties,

THERE is a dance almost every night this week and two on Friday. To-night Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Cadvalader will give one for Bunny Geary at their country place at Fort Washington. It seems there's been some Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Toegood, of confusion about the place for the party, and Mrs. and Mrs. Ernest T. Toegood, of the same than the Britz. It wouldn't be so bad to think it was at the Ritz and to find it at the Bellevue, but to make such a mistake when it's to be out in the country would be almost futal.

As I said before, though Mr. and Mrs. Geary have called off their daughters tea, which was to have been given.

Mrs. and Mrs. Ernest T. Toegood, of their family have removed to Twelfth and Spruce streets, where they have taken apartments for the winter. The engagement of Miss Margah Cassard Toogood and Mr. T. Bromley Flood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Flood, of Wayne avenue and Hortter street, Germantown, has been announced. Miss Toogood is now a student at Vassar.

There will be several interesting din-

There will be several interesting dinners before the dance. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer will give one for the ever-popular Hope Montgomery, and Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Lee will entertain for their daughter Dorothy.

SHE was a tall, good-looking woman with white hair, handsomely dressed in black, and as Nancy sat waiting for he one in charge of the hair-dressing parlor and remarked: "I want a facial treatment." THROUGH the marriage of Eleanor of Provence to Henry III. Spanish decorative ideas were introduced into the Anglo-Norman England of the 13th Cen-

The wardrobe and furniture of the Spanish Princess filled three ships. With her, Eleanor brought Moorish carpets, decorated leather from Aragon, brass hanging lamps, Sevillian pottery and other Spanish decorative household effects that came into popular use throughout England.

Formerly the development of decorative arts depended upon foreign marriages, conquests, political alliances or other events of national importance. Today a universal interest in interior decorations sweeps it along without the aid of such assisting influences.

The House of Valiant, which specializes in furniture, draperies and decoration. affords you an opportunity to furnish your home distinctively and in perfect harmony at moderate cost.
