McSPARRAN FLAYS POLICY OF SCHOOLS

Democratic Nominee for Governor Charges Mismanagement at Mercer and Oil City

McSparran's raps at Dr. Thomas S. Finigan, Superintendent of Public Instruction, struck a responsive chord with the audience. There were a number of school directors in the crowd and they were quick to understand what the Lancaster County farmer meant when he asserted: "The directors have been made rubber stamps."

ATTACKS CENTRALIZATION

The policy of centralization in running the schools of the State and the lack of State funds for institutions of this kind were the chief points upon which John A. McSparran centered his attack in speaking before an audience of school teachers in Mercer yesterday.

There will be plenty of money to run the schools and other worthy establishments, said Mr. McSparran at the Mercer meeting, when centralization is ended and useless but costly governmental functions are wiped out.

Other departments that he said "have been centralized to a finish."

School Directors "Rubber Stamps"

"All they had in mind when they created that department," he said, "was jobs. They needed more jobs to take care of their henchmen. That is why they took our schools out of the hands of the people and turned them over to a lot of swivel-chair politicians at Harrisburg."
