

TWO CITIES CLAIM COLUMBUS' BODY

"Devil Dogs" Visit One Tomb in Santo Domingo Cathedral. Other Is at Seville

SAY SON IS BURIED IN SPAIN

Santo Domingo, Oct. 12.—While the entire world commonly observes October 12 as Columbus Day, virtually every State among the United States maintains, whose forces are temporarily stationed here, that great delight in visiting the place of interest, possession of the Italian navigator, who first landed on these shores in 1492.

An old stone ruin is pointed out by the Dominicans as the former palace of Columbus and there is a large statue erected to his memory in the public square. An ancient tree that has withstood the storms of centuries is reverently called the "old tree" by the natives in the belief that it is the tree to which Columbus tied his vessel when he visited Santo Domingo on one of his earlier voyages.

The 24th Mason of the masons, however, is the Gothic Cathedral, where the remains of the discoverer are buried in a bronze strong box, surmounted by a monument of marble and bronze. In 1541 the bones of Christopher Columbus and his son, Diego, were brought from Spain and buried in the Cathedral.

In 1795 what were supposed to be the remains of Columbus were removed to Havana, Cuba, and subsequently to Seville, Spain. It is accepted by all except the Spanish that these remains were really those of Diego, the discoverer's son.

In 1877 workmen who were making repairs to the Cathedral here, unearthed a leaden casket that bore a Latin inscription, the English interpretation of which read: "Illustrious and Noble Man, Christopher Columbus." Inside was a smaller casket in which the remains had first been buried in Seville, bearing the legend, also in Latin: "Last part of the remains of the First Admiral, Don Christopher Columbus, Discoverer." Certain other articles found in the casket convinced the Dominicans that their discovery was authentic.

The quickest way to stir the ire of a Dominican is to hint that possibly the remains of Columbus may be resting in the beautiful cathedral at Seville, Spain. The native will immediately give valuable evidence that his country's claim to having the true remains of the discoverer is a valid one.

They do not hesitate in telling it to the natives, or any one else that the one and only last resting place of Columbus is beneath the handsome monument in their cathedral where the big bronze casket lies, and in all fairness, it must be said they have an abundance of proof to substantiate their claim.

CHINESE NATIONAL TROOPS DEFEAT REBELS UNDER HSU

Further Cabinet Snake-Up Seen as Parliament Reopens

Peking, Oct. 12.—By A. P. J. Rebellious forces of General Hsu Shun Chen, known as "Little Hsu," have been repulsed by national troops at Shinkow, thirty miles northwest of Yenching, according to a statement issued last night by the War Office. The rebels, Fukien troops, were marching on Fenchow, the capital, to support the provincial government. It was announced that the arrival of warships at the mouth of the Min River would effectively protect Fenchow and localize Hsu's insurrection.

With the re-opening of Parliament today, following a three weeks' recess, the press is filled with rumors that there is a further Cabinet shake-up impending. One of the first questions to be considered by Parliament is the ratification of the recent Cabinet appointments.

In spite of the reported intention of Wang Ching-hai to surrender the Premiership, there is authority for the statement that President Li Yuan-hung has prevailed upon him to retain his post and will submit his nomination.
