ROSIER TRIAL BAN ON MORBID WOMEN

"Not a Hippodrome," Says Judge, Who Will Bar All Not in Courtroom on Business

WOMEN JURORS A PUZZLE

Persons with political influence are trying to have themselves summoned as witnesses in the trial of Mrs. Catherine Rosier, charged with the murder of her husband, Oscar Rosier, an advertising man and his stenographer, Mildred G. Reckitt, in order to be sure of obtaining entrance to Judge Barratt's court when the trial commences Wednesday.

Arrangements Are Completed

Arrangements for the trial were completed today at a conference between Assistant District Attorney Speiser and Judge Barratt, Attorney Rosier will press for a first-degree murder verdict.

There is considerable speculation as to whether there will be an attempt by either the prosecution or the defense to keep women off the jury. Mrs. Rosier will be the first woman to be placed on trial for the slaying of her husband because of alleged infidelity since women have been made eligible for jury service.

Sensational surprises are hinted by both the State and the defense. While Mr. Speiser refused to indicate the Commonwealth's case, it is said that much important evidence bearing upon the double killing has been gathered by County Detective James J. McGettigan, Jr. since the arrest of the woman. McGettigan has been in charge of the investigation made by the District Attorney's office.

Four Faces Four Indictments

There are four indictments against Mrs. Rosier. Two of them charge murder. The other two bills contain two counts each. One of the counts charges voluntary manslaughter and the other involuntary manslaughter.

Mrs. Rosier's trial was originally fixed for February 27 last.

Several postponements, however, were obtained by John R. K. Scott, who, with William J. Connor, represents her.

Considerable interest has been manifested by lawyers as to the defense in the case. One of the most persistent of the reports is that an effort will be made to liberate her by attempting to show that she killed Rosier and Miss Reckitt after being driven tempestuously insane by her husband's alleged infidelity.

Mrs. Rosier has been confined to Moyamensing Prison since the slaying.

Recently there have been reports that her health is failing.

At the time she killed her husband Mrs. Rosier was twenty-one years old.

Her husband, who was the head of an advertising agency bearing his name, was thirty-eight, while Miss Reckitt was twenty-four.

After the killing Mrs. Rosier asserted that she shot her husband when she found him and his stenographer in a compromising position.

She also asserted that it was for the sake of her baby, now one year old, that she acted as she did.

After the shooting Mrs. Rosier and Miss Reckitt were removed to the Jefferson Hospital, where they both died.

Before his death Rosier is said to have signed a will disinheriting both his widow and the infant.

Mrs. Rosier used a .25-caliber automatic pistol in the double killing.

After the shooting Mrs. Rosier became hysterical. Questioned as to the killing, she said:

When I was in the hospital three months ago having my baby they began running together. Today I caught them.

The last woman to go on a trial in Philadelphia for a double murder was Mrs. Mary Kelly, who was convicted in 1865 of second-degree murder for the deaths of Joseph Sides and his brother, Isaac.

Other wills probated today were:

Mary A. Collins, 2525 Coral street, $7,400; Laura Lorraine, 2216 Cedar street, $7,500; Hannah A. Smith, 2020 North Broad street, $24,000; Edward S. Carlin, 214 North Third street, $54,000; James Spencer, 6942 Keystone street, $84,250; Olive V. Hughes, 1501 South Fifty-third street, $24,000.
