

NIGHT CLINIC OPENS TOMORROW EVENING

Primary Purpose of Health Council Is to Facilitate Early Detection of Tuberculosis

SESSIONS EVERY MONDAY

A new phase of free clinic work will be undertaken in this city tomorrow with the opening of the first night clinic for physical examination and diagnosis, under the direction of the Philadelphia Health Council and Tuberculosis Committee.

The clinic, which is the first of its kind to open here, will be held at the Kearney School, Sixth street and Fairmount avenue, every Monday evening after the official opening on Thursday.

The primary purpose of the new night clinic is to facilitate the early detection of tuberculosis and to refer patients to the proper place for treatment. No treatment is to be given at the diagnostic clinic. It is merely a "steering" clinic.

All those who are run down, who catch cold easily, or who are constantly tired, are especially invited to attend the clinic and be examined by the specialists who are to be in charge.

Dr. Spencer Director

The work will be under the personal supervision of Dr. J. Blair Spencer, director of the Health Council. He plans to invite to the clinic at various times some of the foremost specialists on tuberculosis in the city.

The clinic is operated at night so that all those who work in the daytime and are unable to seek medical advice during working hours may take advantage of the opportunity to be examined.

According to Dr. Spencer periodic physical examinations are the best means of preventing disease. A run-down condition may often be remedied before anything serious occurs. Also, the early detection of disease, especially tuberculosis, gives the patient an excellent chance for recovery.

Every Monday evening two doctors and two assistants will be on duty at the clinic which will open at 7 o'clock.

To Act in Health Play

The formal opening of the new diagnostic clinic this Thursday will be marked by speeches, a health play and moving pictures.

Albert W. Dudley, principal of the Kearney School, will preside. A play dramatizing health truths will be presented under the auspices of the Interstate Dairy Council. Dr. Samuel Singer, who will be one of the phys-

BRIDE'S JEWELS STOLEN

Thief Enters Wilkes-Barre Home During Marriage Ceremony

Wilkes-Barre, Oct. 18.—While the marriage of Miss Mary Balgo was taking place here and all the household was engrossed in the interesting details, a burglar climbed through a kitchen window, entered the bedroom, stealing whatever valuables he could find, and then reached a room where the gifts were displayed and stole the jewels intended for the bride. He escaped.
