Nancy Wynne Goes to the Yarnall and Whitney Teas. She Sees Smart New Furs Worn by Miss Helen Hope Montgomery

TWO more teas yesterday! I don't wonder a lot of the parents decided not to have any. There are so many to go to and they are all over the country.

However even if I have not a car of my own, I have got friends, and so I went to both affairs yesterday and was glad I did for they were beautiful.

The Charlton Yarnalls' tea was at their place in Devon. Agnes is their youngest daughter and the most attractive.

Mrs. Yarnall, of course, received the guests with her daughter, and I thought, looked exceedingly well in a gown of rare black lace which was fashioned over white satin.

At the Whitney tea, which was in Chestnut Hill, Mary, the debutante, was charming in a frock of white chiffon embroidered in silver.

At the Whitney tea, which was in Chestnut Hill, Mary, the debutante, was charming in a frock of white chiffon embroidered in silver. While Mrs. Whitney wore a handsome gray beaded crepe gown.

I AM curious to know what kind of fur Hope Montgomery is wearing on her black velvet suit. I saw her on Wednesday looking very chic.
