Mr. Pinchot bases his opinion on the result of conferences held in the western city yesterday and last night, in which he was assured by his advisers that the county would give him a majority of at least 40,000.

Mr. Pinchot began the round of con-ferences at 8:30 o'clock in the Alle-gheny County Pinchot personal head-quarters, in the William Penn Hotel. Senator William Flinn and his daugh-ter, Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, were among the earliest arrivals. Candidates for the Legislature from various dis-tricts came to assure him of their sup-port.

Among them were Senator C. M. Barr and Representatives J. W. Vickerman and Nelson McVickar, of the Sharpsburg district. Two big public engagements were the dinner in the William Penn of the Roosevelt Commemo-ration Association, at which 550 gath-ered, and Carnegie Hall, on the North Side, which was crowded to the doors.

See Harding Aged and Disillusioned

4, 1921, though Mr. Harding has done more to break down the restrictions which hedged about kings and presidents than have any of his predecessors, slipping away for a few hours among boon companions.

Needs a Genuine Vacation But a President really gets no rest unless he can go somewhere into the country, where there are the fewest possible reminders that he is the head of a nation.

For recreation Mr. Harding has only the sport to which Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson turned, namely golf. But even this he feels must be hedged about with a certain secrecy. Although now firmly established as the presidential exercise, the President thinks it is not well for the people to know how often he plays. Evidently he believes that the public is a hard taskmaster, who begrudges him a few hours a week on the links.

Life is not the enrefree thing it was when he was in the Senate. On the links he is not Warren Harding with a few friends. He is the President, surrounded with secret service men and anxious about publicity.

It is difficult to unbend to the level of the old Marion Club familiarity. Perhaps that is the reason why President Wilson took his plensures chiefly with members of his family. Among them at least he was merely the man, not the office.

President Is Disillusioned

Mr. Harding looks distillusioned, and Mr. Harding looks disliusioned, and rumors of conversations with intimates suggest he IS disliusioned. The game may not seem always worth the candle. Friends, when you are in office, may not seem so disinterested as they did when you were not. Some of the institutions in which he believed, such institutions in which he believed, such as government by parties, have proved weak. He may not feel so sure of himself as he did when he was elected. Out of all this spring the stories that he is tired of office and will not seek a second term. Many men who talked with him, especially during the strikes, have spread this impression. One story comes from a Senator with whom he is intimate. And then, another story from Michigan, where it is credited to Congressman Fordney.

But Presidents are not free to con But Presidents are not free to con-sult their inclinations about re-nominations. When the report was published the other day that Mr. Harding would retire to his farm at the end of this term, up jumped Mr. Ned McLean's newspaper and in a couple of columns double-leaded brevier showed how it was necessary that Mr. Harding should be reportinged and has been found. He is J. Emmett Buckley, an Oklaboma City atterney.

Buckley admitted it yesterday. He was testifying as witness in disbarment proceedings against Ross N. Lillard. State Senator, and J. W. Burns, an atterney. I neither smoke, chew, drink nor swear, Buckley testified. "I never have broken a moral law or a law of food. I went into partnership with home here where Henry Burns fold.

REPUBLICANS URGED TO BACK HARDING

Butler, of West Chester, both pleaded with the citizens of Lancaster County last night to support the Harding Ad-ministration by voting the straight Re-publican ticket November 7. They ad-dressed a Republican rally in the Fulton Opera House.

"The Harding Administration has reduced the taxes for each family in the United States from $250 to $155." declared Senator Reed. "It still can do better and reduce taxes still more but better and reduce taxes still it is up to the voters to back Mr. Harding."

Representative Butler took the occa-sion to assail McSparran for his tactics sion to assail McSparran for his tactics in campaigning for the governorship. "Mr. Pinchot has set up his ideals and he can attain them if the citizens of Pennsylvania don't lose their party lines." declared Mr. Butler. "Mr. Pinchot has a big job before him if elected, it is the financial condition of Pennsylvania. But he can remedy it if the people will send Republicans along with him to the State Legislature to back up his ideals."
