ROSIER CASE NEARS JURY AS STATE MAKES ITS LAST DEMAND FOR CONVICTION

Slayer's Lawyer Has Talesmen Weeping During Plea

DEBATE ON VERDICT WILL START TODAY

Speiser Attacks Defense of Momentary Insanity and Ridiculous Pleas

WOMEN SPECTATORS ENJOY "WONDERFUL WEEP-FEST"

Judge to Make His Charge After Noon Recess—Expect Quick Decision

Catherine Rosier's fate will be with the jury this afternoon. This became certain when John R. K. Scott, her attorney, finished his closing speech for the defense at 11:50 o'clock and Maurice J. Speiser, Assistant District Attorney, immediately began his summing up. Judge Barratt, who has presided over the fifteen days of the murder trial in Room 453, City Hall, will make his charge this afternoon and then the case will be surrendered to the jury.

The jury this afternoon will be called upon to decide whether Mrs. Rosier was irresponsible when she killed the child of Oscar Rosier, her husband, whom she shot at the same time, and an acquittal on the charge of murdering Miss Reckitt may bring in its train the dropping of the other indictment.

William T. Connor, associated with Mr. Scott in the defense, sat beside Mrs. Rosier's side while the principal was making the closing address and help the defendant should her heart give again under the stress of her emotions.

Prisoner Wan and Haggard
The young woman, haggard, emaciated, her dark eyes sunken and rimmed with black circles, her lips trembling and every word, and her eyes brimming with tears, gave full rein to her emotions.

She did the woman who jammed the courtroom with a few minutes' delay, jammed before at any trial. They enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The atmosphere of the courtroom fairly dripped with emotion. Mrs. Rosier's voice rang through all the keys of the human instrument, her tremulous step being on full most of the time.

Mr. Scott paced the floor, hung out his hands in gestures of eloquent despair, called down Heaven's pity on "this innocent child," as he stood pointing dramatically at the shaking Mrs. Rosier, who at one time, and generally gave the women in the courtroom such an exhibition of forensic oratory as they never had even dreamed of witnessing.

He bowed with his head close to the bowed head of the defendant, and called on her to "thank God for little Nick Brown," Deputy Sheriff, who deterred the wrath of the District Attorney to testify for her.

Emotional, But Logical
Though emotionalism was the eminent note of the speech, and every woman in the courtroom was sobbing in unison with his client, Mr. Scott presented a very plain line of argument.

He insisted, with a wealth of illustrations by which he sought to prove his contention, that Mrs. Rosier was insane when she shot her husband and her stenographer. He declared that an "invisible force had guided her hand" when she pressed the trigger of her automatic.

He condemned, in the barest language he knew, the "injustice" of the Commonwealth, and endeavored, by quoting numerous examples, to show that the "injustice" of the Commonwealth had conveyed a false impression to the jury by suppressing certain evidence and keeping certain witnesses from the stand, though at the same time professing that the "injustice" of the Commonwealth was not a factor in the case.

He excoriated Arthur Rosier, brother-in-law of the defendant, calling him a "snake," and blaming him for driving Mrs. Rosier insane by taunts and information that her husband was about to cast her off.

The appearance of Mrs. Rosier in the courtroom shortly before 10 o'clock was the signal for much emotional display on the part of the women. Mrs. Rosier looked a little fresher and stronger than a previous day, situated apparently by the belief that her state was nearly over and the hope that it would end with her restoration to freedom.

Mr. Scott and Mr. Connor appeared next the door of the court just before Judge Barratt arrived. They walked carefully over to the counsel table while the crowd stared, and took their places with an imposing array of law books and memoranda under their arms. Judge Barratt called the side bar continued on Page Twenty-eight, Column Five.

CHARGED WITH KILLING WIFE AND BURYING BODY

Cleveland Police Examine Clues in Death of Mentor Woman

Cleveland, O., Nov. 3.—(By A. P.)—A man's handkerchief covered with red stains, which was found near the grave of Mrs. Hazel Burns in a marsh near Mentor, O., was turned over to Sheriff Spink, of Lake County yesterday.

County authorities believe an indelible mark thought to be a laundry identification, may furnish a connecting link in the chain of circumstantial evidence against Henry Burns, who is being held on a charge of having murdered his wife and burying the body.

A flashlight belonging to Burns and a raincoat similar to one which Burns is said to have owned, a scrap of paper on which are several names, a shawl and an old-fashioned pistol, all stashed and containing fingerprints were brought to Cleveland yesterday by Prosecutor Ralph M. Ostrander's police.

The stains will be analyzed and the fingerprints, after being photographed, will be compared with Burns.

Prosecutor Ostrander also brought to Cleveland a small bag of material, occupied by Burns at Mentor to determine whether any clothing had been burned.

A burst of flame seared the men about the face, arms and body. When the tank exploded the second floor several girls employed ran screaming into Girard Avenue.

CUSTOMS SEEK AID IN CHECKING LIQUOR FLEET

Six Schooners With 100,000 Cases Aboard Clear From Nassau

P.)—Custom officials are planning to ask the Governors of New York and New Jersey to enlist the services of sheriffs in checking in the state of liquor which is expected to be brought on these shores with the arrival of a fleet of British schooners from the Bahamas within the next few days.

The officials are planning to have been asked to keep a sharp lookout for rum runners.

PRESIDENT SEES WORLD PEACE NEARER IN CALL FOR U. S. THANKSGIVING

Country Emerging From Shadow of Consequences of Great Conflict After Year of Trials and Complexities, He Says in Proclamation

Washington, Nov. 3.—(By Associated Press.)—Presenting that the year of our Nation's history has enabled us, in growing fraternity with other peoples, to attain so much of progress for the human race which has come to us from the progress of our soil and our industry, we owe our debt of gratitude, and with it our acknowledgment of the duty and obligation to our own people and to the world, the suffering, the distressed and the oppressed of other lands. Let us, in all humility, acknowledge how great is our debt to the Providence which has given us our life and our destiny, and give devout thanks for the blessings which have been bestowed upon us by the Father of our Country.

"In the beginning of our country the custom was established by the devout fathers of observing annually a day of thanksgiving for the bounty of our God, which Divine Providence had extended throughout the year. It has come to be perhaps the most cherished of our national observances, and the season approaches for its annual recurrence. It is fitting formally to direct attention to this ancient institution of our people, and to call upon them to unite in its appropriate celebration.

"The year which now approaches is that of our Nation's history, a year of trials and triumphs, of difficulties and achievements, which we must regard as our inevitable portion in such a epoch as this, through which all mankind is moving.

"As we survey the experience of the passing twenty months we shall find that our people have been very much justified in a Nation-wide and most sincere testimony of gratitude for the bounty which has been bestowed upon us by the Father of our Country. We have seen the hard consequences of great conflict, our country has been at peace and has been able to contribute toward the maintenance and restoration of peace in the world. We have seen the race of mankind make gratifying progress on the way to permanent peace, though

PATROLMAN KILLED BY GUNMEN HE TRAPPED IN ALLEY

Thomas Gallagher Blackjacked, Then Shot Near Garage at 24th and McKean

EXPERT MARKSMAN HAD NO CHANCE FOR LIFE

In Conscious Moment Just Before Death Young Hero Whispers of Attack

Two hours after he had kissed his young wife good-by, Patrolman Thomas F. Gallagher was blackjacked and shot to death early today by automobile thieves he trapped in an alley at Twenty-fourth and McKean streets. Gallagher heard the thieves trying to pry open the door of Samuel Simon's private garage, which is at the end of a driveway flanked by two wings of an apartment building.

The young patrolman, a noted pistol shot, buried into the driveway. A thug, lurking in the shadows, brought a blackjack down with terrific force on Gallagher's head. As he toppled under the blow the patrolman reached instinctively for his revolver.

Gallagher fell on his back, and two other thugs ran up and joined their confederate, who started to fire into the body of the prostrate man. One shot tore into the muscles of his upper arm; another entered his chest and penetrated a lung.

The patrolman died at 6 o'clock in the Methodist Hospital. There were three men in Simon's garage.

A man who lives nearby, known to the police, although his name is unlearned, heard the three shots. He ran in the direction of the sound, but the street was still when he came to the McKean street corner. In the distance he could hear the noise of running feet, however, and he caught a glimpse of three men hurrying away as fast as they could go. They soon were lost to sight in the darkness.

The citizen looked about for a possible victim of the shots. His attention was attracted by the open door of the garage, and as he approached he saw dimly a man lying on the ground. He saw the blue of the trousers, however, with their faint stripe and reasoned it was a patrolman who was the victim of the shots he had heard.

He ran to the station house and gasped: "There has been a shooting at Twenty-fourth and McKean—I think it's one of our boys."

The patrol, with a detail of men who dashed hastily out of the station house, rushed around to the garage. They found Gallagher where he had fallen. He was groaning slightly, but unconscious. He was carried to the hospital on a stretcher and rushed with him to the Methodist Hospital, most of the patrolmen in the detail remaining to search the garage and the neighborhood.

No Clue to Slayers
Though persons living nearby had come out of their houses when they heard the bell of the patrol, there was no one who could give the police any information about the men who had shot Gallagher. In fact, it was not until he provided a moment at the hospital, before lapsing again into the unconsciousness that preceded death, that the police knew who had shot him or the circumstances.

City Hall was notified of the shooting and members of the murder squad have been sent to the district to assist in locating the slayers.

TWO BEGIN NON-STOP FLIGHT ACROSS U. S.

Army Aviators Expect to Pass Over Harrisburg Tomorrow

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 3.—(By A. P.)—Lieutenants John A. MacReady and Oakley Kelly, army aviators, took off at Rockwell Field at 5:50 A. M. today in an attempt to cross the continent from San Diego to New York without stop in the great non-stop plane T-2.

The plane was loaded last night with 735 gallons of gasoline, thirty-five gallons of lubricating oil, twenty-five gallons of water. It was estimated this would be more than enough fuel for the voyage, which was expected to be made in from twenty-five to thirty hours.

On October 5 the two aviators took off here on the same attempt and when forced postponement of the transcontinental trip they remained aloft over San Diego more than thirty hours, breaking all endurance records for a flying machine heavier than air.

MacReady and Kelly tossed a coin to determine which would pilot the take-off. Kelly was selected.

The aviators said their route would take them to Tucson, Ariz. From there the airway is to Mineola Field, N. Y., by way of Johnston, Harrisburg, Pa., and Trenton, N. J.

ACCUSED POLICE FACE PUNISHMENT

Cortelyou, Tempest and Mills Promise Prosecution of Guilty in Drug Traffic

WILL INVESTIGATE CHARGES

United action to dismiss and prosecute patrolmen and former patrolmen found guilty of dealing with drug traffickers was promised today by Director Cortelyou, Assistant Director Tempest and Police Superintendent Mills.

The patrolmen were accused by Joseph Bollona and Joseph Santoro of conniving with them in the traffic of drugs. Following a statement to this effect made by Judge McDevitt, the Department of Public Safety got into action immediately.

Bollona and Santoro were recently sentenced to eight years imprisonment for dealing in narcotics. They were charged against the men and, if found guilty, they will be punished. I will get at the bottom of this affair if it's the least thing I do while in the department.

Mr. Cortelyou then conferred with Mr. Tempest and Superintendent Mills. Several police lieutenants were sent for and they will be questioned.

FRESH QUIZ OF ALL EXCEPT MRS. HALL PLANNED BY MOTT

Recalled by Prosecutor to Check Up Evidence for Grand Jury, Is Belief

WIDOW'S PUBLIC STATEMENT SAVES HER FROM GRILL

New Eyewitness to Murder Said to Bear Out Mrs. Gibson's Story

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 3.—(By A. P.)—All persons who have been questioned in the Hull-Mills murder case, except Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain actor, were summoned to the courthouse here today by Deputy Attorney General Mott.

Every possible scrap of evidence bearing on the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor H. Mills, choir singer, on the night of September 15 will be gone over by the special prosecutor.

Mr. Mott's action led to the belief he plans to prepare his evidence for the Grand Jury. Complied with it was the fact that his aides have found a new witness, said to corroborate the sworn statements of Mrs. Jane Gibson, who said she saw two persons, whom she has named, as the double crime was committed.

The official investigators, it is understood, intend questioning all those summoned in the order in which they have been named.

SULTAN DEPOSED; ASSEMBLY TO RULE NEW TURK STATE

Law of Succession Abolished by Angora as Sovereign Rights Are Assumed

CALIPHS TO BE ELECTED BUT ARE SHORN OF POWER

Collapse of Old Ottoman Empire—Treaties Made Since March, 1920, Abrogated

London, Nov. 3.—(By A. P.)—A report that the Turkish Nationalist Assembly at Angora has passed a law suppressing the sultanate of Turkey and the law of succession to the throne is contained in a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from its Constantinople correspondent, who quotes dispatches from Angora.

Such action by the National Assembly would mean, of course, that the Sultan is deposed. In the future, according to the dispatches, the only caliph in Turkey will be periodically elected without government prerogative, all power being in the hands of the National Assembly.

Constantinople, Nov. 3.—(By A. P.)—The Angora Assembly last night decided unanimously that it is invested with sovereign rights and that the Turkish Nationalist Government is the keystone of the Caliphate and today the newspapers carry these headlines: "Ottoman Empire collapsed. In its place there has arisen new national Turkish state—sultanate abolished." The decision of the Assembly was announced by a salute of 101 guns. Immediately the soldiers and civilians began to celebrate the fall of military bombs and the bright glare of torchbearers.

Two resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Assembly. The first said that by virtue of organic statute and representation, sovereign rights had been vested in an inalienable and indivisible manner in the moral person of the Angora Assembly, which was the only organ of the nation. The second resolution declared the Caliphate was vested in the imperial family of the Osman dynasty, but that the Turkish Government remains the keystone of the Caliphate.

Assembly to Pick Caliph
The selection of the Caliph is to be made by the Grand National Assembly of Turkey, which will elect that member of the Imperial family, the resolution provides, who is the best instructed, the best educated, the most honest and the wisest.

After these resolutions had been unanimously accepted amidst applause, Premier Roubi Bey ascended the tribune and proposed the proclamation of a national holiday on the anniversary of the founding of this democratic government.

The decision of the Angora Assembly was made known in the following terms:

"The palace of the Sultane Porte, having through corrupt ignorance for several centuries provoked numerous ills for the country, has passed into the domain of history.

"Recently the Turkish nation, the real mistress of its destinies, the founders of the Ottoman empire, revolted against its foreign enemies in Anatolia and undertook a struggle against the tyrannical, oppressive and unjust yoke of the Sultanate, which took sides with its enemies and against the nation and to that end it constituted the Grand National Assembly of Turkey, its Government, and its army, which are now struggling against the enemies from without and against the palace of the Sultane Porte.

Own Organic State
"Today the era of liberation has at last entered into its dawn. The Turkish nation, in view of the treason in the palace of the Sultane Porte, has proclaimed its own organic state.

"Article I of this statute stipulated that the sovereignty of the Sultan is assumed by the nation.

"The Angora Assembly, by its action, has taken upon the nation the duty of the Sultan.

"Article VII assigns the body of the nation with sovereign rights, such as the right to make laws and conclude treaties of the Sultan.

"Since then the Ottoman empire had collapsed and in its place the new national Turkish state has arisen.

"However, since the abolition of the Sultanate, the Grand National Assembly of Turkey has taken its place, that is to say, the Government of the Turkish Republic, which is the only organ of the nation.

"The Angora Assembly, by its action, has taken upon the nation the duty of the Sultan.

"The various organizations, supported by the Sultan, were in a state of anarchy, and since the abolition of the Sultanate, the Grand National Assembly of Turkey has taken its place, that is to say, the Government of the Turkish Republic, which is the only organ of the nation.

"The various organizations, supported by the Sultan, were in a state of anarchy, and since the abolition of the Sultanate, the Grand National Assembly of Turkey has taken its place, that is to say, the Government of the Turkish Republic, which is the only organ of the nation.

STOLEN MAIL RECOVERED

Wittensberg, Mo., Nov. 3.—Jack Kennedy, veteran Missouri train robber, known as the "Grand Hunter," and Harry Logan, a former railroad employee, were shot and killed early today by postoffice inspectors after they had taken a mail car on a night train from St. Louis and St. Paul.

The stolen mail, about $100,000, was recovered.

Six postoffice inspectors, three railroad special agents and two deputy sheriffs were waiting near the scene of the robbery, which had been anticipated through knowledge of Kennedy's previous movements.

Kennedy and Logan were making for their automobile with the stolen mail when the officers opened fire on them. Inspector Bob Ward, of St. Louis, who was in charge of the officers, said the bodies of the two robbers were found with revolvers protruding from their pockets.

A coroner's jury held an inquest before daylight and returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.
