THE Acorn Club was again a busy spot yesterday afternoon, for Emily Bartow and Elizabeth Howland were introduced at a tea there, and a dance for the receiving party and additional men guests was given in the evening. Emily who is named for her aunt. Miss Emily Smith, is the daughter of the late Henry B. Bartow. Her mother was Miss Alice Smith, a sister of the late Edward B. Smith of this city.

Em is dark and has soft wavy hair and brown eyes. She is slender and drasses exceedingly well. Her frock

The dinner-dance will be given by Mr. and Mrs. William Supplee for their niece, Peggy Logan, at the Philadelphia Country Club. So much for the debutantes who are as busy a little bunch as one can find. bunch as one can find.

LIVERY ONE is going this afternoon

TO GO back to the Supplees, who are giving Peggy Logan's dance tonight. Gid you know that Ellanor Longstreth Sharp is on here from Honolulu, staying with her aunt. Mrs. Supplee for a month or so? Her husband, who is in the army, is stationed out in Hawaii and will be there some time longer, so Ellanor expects to go back in a shortime. Ellanor did not bring the chiliging on with her, as it was such a trip. The youngest is only fourteen months old, you know, and she has an excellent nurse for them, so decided not to run the risks of a long journey.

was Miss Affee Smith, a sister of the late Edward B. Smith of this city, Em is dark and has soft wavy hair and brown eyes. She is slender and dresses exceedingly well. Her frock yesterday was a combination of green velvet and silver cloth. The skirt was finished in petal shape edged with silver, the girdle being a combination of silver cloth and velvet.

Liz Howland's dress was a lovely contrast to Emily's green. It was of pink and silver brocaded metal cloth and was made with a draped skirt. Caught at one side with a rhinestone buckle, and a bow was on the other hip. The bodice had the fashionable boat neck and no sleeves. Elizabeth is giving this year to things social, but next season she will go to Smith College. Mrs. Bartow received with her daughter and Elizabeth.

There was a great many people there:

Katherine Disston Porter.
