BOY WEDS SISTER AFTER SEPARATION

Lad, Seventeen, Has Strange Infatuation for Girl of Nineteen Reared in Different Home

HONEYMOON LASTS 3 DAYS

Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 14.—A modern love drama paralleled only in literature was revealed yesterday by the confession of John H. Cregier, seventeen, of Binghamton, that a week ago he married his sister, Elizabeth H. Hefner, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam J. Hefner, of New York, and lived with her three days.

Cregier told his story at the home where he has lived since he was a little boy with the parents of Elizabeth, whom he calls aunt, but who never legally adopted him and who is not related to him.

He was present when a correspondent confronted the boy with proof of his marriage. Humane Officer Samuel J. Koerber, of Binghamton, before whom the lad will be brought today, also heard his confession.

The bridegroom, a bright handsome lad, and his sister are the children of Edward B. Cregier, sixty-two, a farmer of North White Lake, Bethel, N. Y., who was born in New York.

Elizabeth was born in New York, and died when Elizabeth was six and four. Elizabeth was adopted on April 10, 1900, by Mr. and Mrs. Hefner, who lived a year after her mother's death. Mr. Hefner and Mr. Cregier are cousins.

Soon after Elizabeth's adoption, Mrs. Depey People, mother of Mrs. Margaret Peeples, of North White Lake, and fancying the little boy, John Cregier, obtained the consent of his father to take him as her son.

He only saw Elizabeth three times between her adoption and the elopement, and does not remember her as a little girl. His first meeting, he recalls, was when he was twelve years old, in New Jersey, when he and Elizabeth were told they were brother and sister.

He said he could not remember feeling any particular affection for her at this time.

Elopement Carefully Planned Last summer, however, he saw her again and the mutual infatuation commenced. Late in October with the excuse of a visit to a half-sister living in New Jersey, he came to New York and met Elizabeth again. The beautiful girl, almost twenty, appeared to him more strongly than ever and her response seems to have been the same.

An elopement was carefully planned and on November 4 they went to Binghamton, where John knew he would find a rooming house. Mrs. Peeples was away on a visit to relatives a week ago yesterday they went to Binghamton marriage bureau to obtain a marriage license.

Here Elizabeth's father seems to have faintly realized for the first time what she was doing, for her application contains several false statements. First of all, she looked up to spell her name Hefner. She said she was born in this city and gave the names of her parents as Joseph and Cora (Cook) Hefner.

He fostered Elizabeth's infatuation, which he is generally credited to Joseph. Mrs. Hefner's name is Cora J. Hefner. The girl said she lived at No. 14 Lanyon avenue, Binghamton, which is the home of her father, John Hefner, who is a shipper.

They obtained the license and on the following day they were married in a ceremony at Conklin, a suburb of Binghamton, and were married by a justice of the peace.

A Substitute for Faces

I MAKE no claims for a hypersensitive nature, but I confess I walk the streets with a growing solicitude for my eternal termination.

From time immemorial wavy fringes have been doing things for me in an effort to improve them. I might add their success is scarcely apparent.

Even in our day, on every hand, every public place, every street, every fair, anatomically speaking, I am trying to do things to their faces which will make them easier for the eye to regard.

And with what success? You tell 'em.

And with what success? You tell 'em.
