By PAUL PREP

As the Interacademic League football season closes with tomorrow's precedent calls for two mythical all-star teams. The boys placed on these elevens were chosen only after the consensus of critics, coaches, schoolboys and players is virtually assured of the title, its tenth in the same number of years. It has without a doubt the best team in the circuit. Its members are the nucleus around which the All-Interacademic team is built.

From eleven regulars on the Penn Charter squad the following five were selected for the first eleven and the others on the second. This may cause many argumentative schoolboys to rise up in indignation at having five players from one school on the team, but here they are:

M. Smith, end; Schanche, peer of all centers in the league; Clinton, Evans, tackle, and Whitney Brill, Filer, tackle, and Freeman, halfback, are listed on the second eleven.

Schanche, captain of the team, and Whitney Brill were picked last year.

End Candidates Abundant

This year's eleven is well balanced; all five teams in the circuit boasted of good end men. However, after much discussion the feeling prevails that M. Smith, of Penn Charter, and Knoblauch, of Episcopal Academy, are the best choices for the first team.

Smith was about the fastest man in the league. Getting down under punts was his greatest asset. Many times during the league games he dived the receiver of the kick in his tracks.

Knoblauch was the big nose of the Episcopal eleven. Despite the fact that the Academy boys failed to win a game, Knoblauch was in there fighting all the time and scored several touchdowns after catching forward passes. Late in the season he was shifted to quarterback where he kept up his brilliant work.

Brunner, of Haverford school, and Jones, of Germantown Academy, were overshadowed by Knoblauch's and Filer's performances.

Tackles on the first eleven are Flock, of Haverford School, and Evans, of Penn Charter. These players stood head and shoulders over the rest of the tackles with the possible exception of Filer, a running mate of Evans, who is placed on the second team.

Holes big enough for wagons to pass.

All-Scholastic Grid Candidate

GEORGE WALTON

Although out of the last two games and probably unable to play in the closing two, George Walton, the brilliant quarterback of Lansdowne High, stands a good chance of obtaining a backfield berth on the all-Suburban team.

Walton's value to the team is unchanged since he broke his collarbone in the Radnor tilt. Since that time Lansdowne has lost two games. First Lower Merion High defeated them 26 to 0, and then last week Darby handed them a 7-0 beating.

Walton has all the assets of a good backfield man. He can carry the ball through the line, around the end, throw forward passes and can punt.

His work especially stood out in the Penn Charter victory. He showed almost uncanny skill in calling the right plays at the right time and was really responsible for the win.

Walton, like the majority of the All-Scholastic candidates, is playing his last year at football. He is twenty years old and has played on the football team two years.

MT. AIRY BOASTS REAL HOME TEAM

Football Eleven is Composed of Former College and School Stars

SECTIONAL COMBINATION

The two most recent independent football teams to be organized are the Clearfield A. A., composed almost exclusively of players in the East Falls and the Manayunk district, and the Mount Airy A. A., a collection of former school and college stars, who have known each other since they "were little shavers."

The success of the Mount Airy team this season is due primarily to the fact that the players, who are from the Mount Airy section, have been friends from boyhood and bring a little sectional enthusiasm into their play.

When compared with the star line-ups of the Yellow Jackets, Conshohocken and Holmesburg Mount Airy somewhat pales. Yet it has won seven games this season and lost only one, that being to the strong Melrose A. C. of Atlantic City, 3 to 0.

Mount Airy began playing Sunday football two weeks ago. It was virtually an experiment. Morris Field, outside the city limits, was obtained for the players, and others manured and chalked off the gridiron and everybody left a helping hand.

Kennedy is Coach

The team is managed by Frank Tegan, former Villanova College player. Dan Kennedy, Holy Cross star ten years ago and later mentor at St. Joseph's College, is the coach. Then the team physician, who has volunteered to look after the physical welfare of the players, is Dr. Van Dolson. He is an ardent football enthusiast and occasionally coaches.

and as a demon tackle. J. Hochford, left tackle, is a specialist of "Disk" Rochford, former La Salle star, now at Tomie School.

Maguire, left guard, was captain-elect at P. M. C. this fall, but did not return to college. He is husky and aggressive, and the pivot of many fine shifts.

A light, but scrappy center, is Whelan, formerly of Mount St. Mary's College. He is an accurate passer and plays a roving game on the defense.

Another of the Bracken boys, Ray, holds down right tackle. Then there is Joe O'Donnell from Catholic High, whose end work spotted Clearfield's pet formations last week.

DR. BURDICK'S PLAN DRAWS DALLAS' IRE

Former A. A. U. Head Not in Favor of Proposed Plan Governing Women's Athletics

G.K.'S NATIONAL BODY

Samuel J. Dallas, former president of the A. A. U., takes exception to the plan of Dr. William Burdick, of the Playground Athletic League, of Baltimore, which would place women's and girls' sports under the direction of women and not the A. A. U. Mr. Dallas says:

"I am somewhat surprised that Dr. Burdick should publish his personal views with regard to the matter of amateur athletic union control of athletics for girls and women before any meeting of his special committee, appointed by President Prout, had been held, or before he possibly could have had any replies from the other members of his committee to the letter which he sent them under date of November 8.

"As I understand it, President Prout appointed a committee, consisting of Dr. Burdick, chairman, of Baltimore; J. Benedict, of New Orleans; William A. Shedd, and George V. Mitchell, of Philadelphia; Roy Moore, of New York; Seward Simons, of San Francisco; L. S. Hill, of Albany; Dr. A. W. Howe, of Boston; Mrs. E. Fullard Lee, of Honolulu; Paul R. Jordan, of Indianapolis; George B. Wendell, of Omaha, and William S. Haddock, of Pittsburgh, to investigate and report at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union to be held in New York City November 20 and 21, as to whether or not the Amateur Athletic Union should at this time take over the control of girls and women in athletics.

"From the tone of Dr. Burdick's statement he is very sincerely in favor of athletics for girls and women, from his experience in the past year, but he states that he is convinced that the task should be handled by women. He practically asks the other members of the committee to agree with him in this decision.

"Personally, I hope they will not, the delegates from the Middle Atlantic Association, at their meeting held Monday evening last, were instructed to vote in favor of A. A. U. control of girls and women in athletics. I do hope other associations follow along the same line.

"Another good argument why the A. A. U. should control girls and women in athletics is that if they had been in control during the last year the team of girls and women who represented the United States in the international competition would never have been sent. They were not representative, and at the time the selection was made we were not prepared for competition of this character. True, there were some well-class and capable athletes on the team, but it was not truly representative.

A. A. U. Should Have Control

"It was a long, hard fight to get the Amateur Athletic Union to finally see the necessity for taking control of athletics in swimming, and today it is one of the most popular and thriving sports in the world.

Burdick says, sports for women should be controlled by women, will the A. A. U. be willing to turn this branch of their non-controlled sports over to any new organization? If they do, I feel that this would be a direct step backward.

"Many organizations are now seeking control of girls and women in athletics, but no organization, I am sure, is better fitted for this task than the Amateur Athletic Union. There is no reason under the sun why there should not be women representatives on the Board of Governors to look after the interests of the girls and women. Women are quite successful, together with the men, in politics and other civic movements, and why not in athletics?

Will Work for A. A. U.

"Now is the time for the Amateur Athletic Union to take control of this situation, and I sincerely hope at the coming meeting that that end will be passed. I for one intend to work for it.

"The Amateur Athletic Union is in a position to:

"Prevent exploitation of women in athletics.

"Maintain the amateur spirit throughout all competitions and sports.

"Protect the girls and women are always under trained direction and under the immediate supervision and encouragement of a woman.

"Conduct efficient and proper medical examinations as made.

"That they do not compete when physically unfit.

"See that proper clothing is worn in all competitions.

"Restrict the number and type of events to enter in any one set of games."

Scraps About Scappers

Stanley Willis has been keeping himself in the shape of a champion by training at the business Danny Gordon in the top floor box in the place of Tommy Golden. The fight will be Jack Davis vs. George Russell, Freddie Young, Young Mulligan, Johnny Morrison, Joe Davis vs. Johnny Dugan, and Kid Acker vs. Jimmy Huberts.

Joe Desmond, Port Arthur, Tex., lightweight, who has been the ring champion for two years, with a total of twenty-two wins, out of thirty-two bouts, is in Philadelphia. He is being handled by Miller and is in training at the uptown gymnasium.

Joe Lynch leaves New York tomorrow for the West. He has two bouts booked out there. The champion will meet Eddie Daly at Cincinnati, and Frankie Daly at Indianapolis November 30.

Marty Sanders, who was booked for bouts at Reading, Trenton and Atlantic City, is in Philadelphia. He is suffering from a heavy cold and will be out of commission for several weeks.

Hugh Shannon writes that Jack Perry fell out of the ring in his recent bout with Dave Smith and he is in the hospital. Shannon says that he was unable to continue.

The Tommy Wilson who was knocked out last week in Allentown by Bobbi Williams was not Tommy Wilson of Philadelphia, according to Dr. F. J. Ziegler. The fight was open for any of the 100-pounders in this city.

Bill Doyle has been matched to meet Frankie Nova at Lancaster next Monday night.

Marty Harris, bantam southpaw, is training daily at Teddy Brodie's gym and he is in shape to fight any of the 115-pound boxers around these districts.

Tiny Trinkle, of Shenandoah, will take on Bobby Burke, of Reading, in the star 125-130 pounder fight at Lancaster tomorrow night. Trinkle also has been offered a date here with Mattings Murray November 24.

Jackie Redmond, New York City welterweight, is making his home in Shenandoah and is being handled by James L. Redmond. Redmond wants to meet Danny Gordon.

Joe News, of Trenton, has resumed training and is hot on the trail of Jimmy Hanson. A local promoter will try to catch a fight between the two as well as other fights in the state to be.
