Dorothy Gordon, at Insane Asylum, Threatened by Bomb Letters

EXTRA POLICE ASKED FOR

Boston, Nov. 17.—Following receipt of the threatening letters by Superintendent Packard, of the McLean Insane Asylum, Dorothy Gordon, the twenty-two-year-old heiress about whose pathetic figure one of the most sensational court cases in years is being waged, was removed yesterday from Codman House to the more inaccessible Belknap House for Women.

Packard denied that the letters threatening to blow up the asylum and rescue the heiress were responsible for the change or for the patrolling of the grounds by police and armed guards. The police, however, declare that extra officers were requested by the hospital authorities.

officers were requested by the hospital authorities.

It is generally believed that the letters were the work of harmless cranks.

Lieutenant Governor Fuller, who recently visited the asylum and talked with Miss Gordon, will be the next witness to be summoned by John D. Gardiner, uncle of the girl, who seeks to oust William F. Jardine, who took her to the asylum as guardian and administrator of her fortune.

Much mystery surrounds the apparent change in the girl's attitude within the last forty-eight hours.

Counsel for Gardiner, after visiting her with her uncle, said the girl was mormal and sane. A newspaper representative who saw her declared she wanted to be released and was being held against her will.

Lieutenant Governor Fuller, following his visit, said the girl appeared to him a fit person to be in the asylum, and had declared she wished to remain there. Jardine visited the hospital while the State Executive was there.

One of the Deputies exclaimed to another: "He reminded me of Louis XIV — 'L'etat, c'est moi'." (The state. I am the state).
