Nancy Wynne Talks of Various Happenings on Saturday-Entertainments Given for Commander Griffin and Other Navy and Army Officers

CERTAINLY was exciting on Saturday, not only out at the game, but in town as well. Everywhere you wered you met Army men or Navy men and girls in wraps and furs wearing wenderful gold and blue and gray and black ribbons streaming from bouquets of chrysauthemums, violets and ether flawers of Army or Navy color, where flawers of Army or Navy color. Then the pennants, were they not won-derful to see? I do hope we'll have the game here something about it that's different from any other game in the world, so far as I am concerned, and I think seat of us feel the same way.

THE Ralph Karles gave a delightfut THE Raiph Earles gave a delightful dance for Barbara Clayton on Saturday night out at the Whitemarsh Valley, Hunt Club. Barbara is Mrs. Earle's younger sister, and made her debut at a ten in October. It was the sweetest thing to see the two sisters on Saturday night, both drassed exactly alike, in frocks of red velvet trimmed with rhimsetones. The bodices were tight and the skirts full, and they carsisd red roses to match.

Both Mrs. Earle and Barbara are Both Mrs. Earle and Barbara are tark, and very pretty, the debutante being tailer than her sister, who is quite petite. There were several dinners before the party. Mr. and Mrs. William Marshall Darlington entertained, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Holden and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Mather also gave dinners, most of them for debutantes and the party was a dandy affair. Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Earle's and Barbara's mother looked handsome in a gown of black velvet.

CEVERAL entertainments were given Several entertainments were given Saturday and yesterday for Commander and Mrs. Griffin, who came up here from Annapolia for the Army and Navy game. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Worthing Lewis gave a tea for them and several other Navy men and their wives on Saturday afternoon, and last night Mr. and Mrs. J. Bertram Lippincott gave a supper in their honor, at their home, 1712 Spruce street.

THE latest fad of the post-debutantes seems to be raising dogs, and now the conversation at bridge parties and luncheons is all about whether pink or black noses are most desirable and what hind of puppy biscuits are best. Styles in desirable about in dogs change as in everything else, and now the most fashionable seem to be police dogs and wire-haired fox ter-

Mrs. Muscoe Garnett, who was Miss Caroline Barelay, was most successful raising the latter kind last spring. Her father, Mr. William Lyttleton Barclay. is an expert on dogs.

Miss Katherine King, who spends most of the year with her parents.

Land Carellan Valentine who with tante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reed A. fox terriers, too.

Miss Carolyn Valentine, who, with her mother, Mrs. Abram Valentine, re-turned in September from Europe, where they spent a year, brought with her three little dogs from England. Unfortunately one of them died on the way over, but the other two are very opry and are cute little fellows.

The George Eurles, 3d, have raised dogs, two, I hear. If I am not mistaken they specialize in police dogs.

T SAW Mary Falck and her mother at the Belevue-Stratford the other day. Mary I suppose, was on her way to the rehearsal for the Charity Ball. (She's going to dance in it, you know, and there was a rehearsal that afterand there was a rehearsal that afternoon). Be that as it may, she looked very attractive in a frock of dark blue tricotine, embroidered in Bulgarian braid at the neck and half way up the skirt. The sleeves were full, bell shaped with undersleeves of light tan finished off with a band of Bulgarian braid

Her hat was a mushroom shape of black velvet trimmed at the left side with a large bow of grosgrain ribbon. and she was carrying her fur coat of raccoon and tan pony skin over her arm.
Mrs. Falck looked smart in a suit of black duvetyne with a deep collar of lynx fur, which fur was also used to trim the edge of the coat and the cuffs. Her hat was a turban of blackclipped beaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Falck will give a ball

The guests who will attend the din-ner which Mrs. Peter Boyd, of 155 South Eighteenth street, will give to-morrow evening at the Bellevine-Strat-ford in honor of Miss Verner Peterson. Mr. and Mrs. Falck will give a ball for Mary tomorrow evening at the Bellevie-Stratford, and from the number of dinners and theatre parties to be given before it. I should say it will be a very "peppy" affair. As Mrs. Falck in mourning, Mrs. John B. Large will receive with Mr. Falck and Mary. The Falcks, you know, are not Philadelphians. They moved to Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Palner Lloyd, Mr. James Mrs. Spottswood Mehl, Miss Mary Carrell Rollin, Mr. Palner Lloyd, Mr. James S. McVey, Mr. Grenville Toegood and Mrs. Charles C. Knight. The galests who will attend the luncheon and theatre parties to be discovered to the story of the Reading Railroad. And Mary has made so many friends, she has been asked to all the bud parties and is a general favorite.

I hear she has a lovely voice and plays her own accompaniments very well, which is some accomplishment, believe Mrs. William L. Moorhouse, of Langelle Austin, Miss Ellen H. Brock and Miss Elleabeth Casanave.
