Throwing Back in Sparkles the Christmas Lights

The Late Lord Strathcona, of London and Canada

who honored the writer by seating him at his dinner table with the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria, was the most noble benefactor of Canada in his time in the building of its railroads and the development of its great enterprises.

He was a wise, energetic man and a tremendously hard worker.

He had a fine business mind. His own words that follow will give to our young fellows a fair idea of a most successful, useful man:

"Be content with your lot, but always be fitting yourself for something better. Cheerful perseverance will bring you to a better position. Grumbling won't help you."

[Signed] John Wanamaker

November 20, 1922.

If the Queen of Sheba Came Today to Wanamaker's

we could serve Her Barbare Majesty with all the glittering gems, of both ancient and modern prestige, and all the cunningly fashioned ornaments of fine silver and gold, that she could possibly require to creditably confront King Solomon in all his glory.

And we'll warrant you that she would look more gorgeous, and would bring the mighty King nearer to the weakening point than ever!

The Romance and Splendor of Jewels and Precious Metals are something to which every normal human being thrills responsive. No man ever examined a fine gold watch, or a handsome ring or scarfpin, with a wan smile, or with the thought in his secret heart: "Well, of all things to send to a he-male!" No young girl ever pouted and said, "I've far too many pretty rings and bracelets." A service of beautiful silverware is rarely duplicated on the Christmas gift-table. Enough said!

PEARLS AND DIAMONDS

Genuine Oriental Pearl Necklace $240 to $6000

From the most remote ages, the lustrous pearl, with its mysterious quivering lights, has been esteemed one of Nature's most precious gifts. There are few forms of jewelry that a woman prizes as much as a fine necklace of Oriental pearls. Unlike the more brilliant gems, pearls may be worn at almost any time of the day and with almost any color. Moreover, they are almost invariably becoming to any wearer.

The Diamond, the Glorious Diamond—Empress of Jewels!

"SEEK-NO-FURTHER" the old-fashioned name of the apple believed to be the finest grown, applies to this stone, the most splendid, most durable and most highly valued of all the glittering treasures that Man has forced Dame Nature to give up from her deep, dark, long underground pocket. The diamond is the seek-no-further among jewels. If you can give a diamond for a Christmas present, give it. Nothing else will be more appreciated, nothing else approaches its worth as an investment, since diamonds never depreciate in value.

Timepieces That Keep the Time and the Peace

After his cook, a good watch is a man's most valuable servant, while the cook is helpless (at least she claims so), without a shining, reliable alarm clock, and the whole household might run down the road to nowhere, without the horologium, accurate and trustworthy tick of the friendly family clock to rely on. Our timepieces are fitted with movements from the leading American factories; Elgin, Waltham and others, whose products have become bywords for trustworthiness.

QUALITY is the supreme thing to look to in choosing jewels, silverware and the like, as the simplest mind knows.

A timepiece whose fair face cannot be trusted, a precious stone or metal that is only near-precious, or is less precious than the deceived purchaser believes, or which falls below standard in any way, is only a near-valuable. Scarcely worth locking up! Do not buy jewels or silverware in a store of whose principles and reputation you know nothing, or in one which quotes you "confidential" or sliding prices. The unimpeachable qualities, the protection of the Wanamaker guarantees, stand firm as a rock behind all the pomp and glitter of these superb stocks of jewels and silverware, and have built for them a repute that reaches far and reaches wide. "It's an investment!" say the shrewd ones, when such purchases are discussed. "And nowhere safer than in Wanamaker's."
