But I think perhaps one little mistake men who were in charge of affairs during the transitional period, although comparatively young, have shown wonderful constructive ability.

This is the anniversary of the signing of the Anglo-Irish Treaty, and it is recalled that not a single signatory remains a member of the Saorstat government. Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins are dead. Robert C. Barton has joined De Valera, George Cavan Duffey and Emmon J. Duggan have retired, Erskine Childers has been executed. The only man whose name was we should strive hard to fight the temp-tation to let ourselves be intoxicated by the purely individual personality. That intoxication will rob us of good judgment.
