The motto of today's fashions seems to be "Treat 'em cuff." Often, in fact, the difference between a model of last season and one of this is established entirely by this detail of the sleeve.

This is true whether spoken of frocks or of wraps. The gauntlet cuff is now more in evidence than ever and, as to gloves of this type, really women seem to have forgotten these accessories were ever plain.

Today we show a charming afternoon coat of black velvet with enormous gauntlet cuffs of white ermine reaching to the elbow underneath and slightly shorter on top. Collar and band are, of course, of matching fur, and this model provides another bit of testimony to the prevalence of the draped wrap.

Adventures With a Purse OF COURSE we will all have to con-OF COURSE we will all have to concede the fact that, when washed, silk underthings lose some of their attractiveness, even when they have only been laundered once. But, at the same time, a bit of extra care will work wonders, the temperature of the water, careful dipping in water into which coloring has been added. And new straps are a help, too; they serve to freshen. Did you know that you can buy straps made of jersey silk, just the same as the silk jersey vests? They will not wear thin as ribbon does, and always take the pink dye better than ribbon. They are thirty-five cents a ribbon. They are thirty-five cents a

Perhaps you know a husband or brother, or just "some one," who dur-ing the course of his business day has ing the course of his business day has a lot of checking of papers to do, and colored pencils are much better for checking, but if the man is on the street a lot he does not want to be laden with a variety of pencils as well as a fountain pen. But you can buy for him colored refills for the metal pencils every one carries these days, refills just like the lead ones, blue or red for twenty-five cents a bex. red, for twenty-five cents a bex.

Music League Has Prepared Comprehensive Program Which Will Utilize Services of Hundreds of Volunteer Singers.

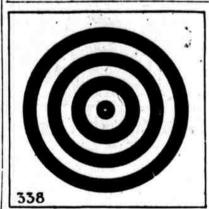

Every street and every district of the city will echo with carols this year during the hours before midnight of the eve of Christmas as a result of a comprehensive plan devloped by the Philadelphia Music League and carried on by more than 200 churches and civic organisations.

Instead of a spasmodic effort of a few groups of carol singers in widely scattered sections of the city, who heretofore have plodded the streets after midnight caroling, this year upon the flash of signal searchlights from City Hall hundreds of bands of singers will begin their rounds at 9:15 on Christmas Eve.

Not only will the ceremony com-

Not only will the ceremony com-pletely cover the city, but the plans developed by the Music League assure a return to the old-fashioned caroling of Dickens' day in England.

The carolers in each group will number from four to twenty and will sing about forty minutes. A Boy Scout holding a lantern aloof on a staff will head the singers, and there will be a Scout at each corner where a turning s made. Several community centers have
