

PHILA. AMATEURS RADIO OVER OCEAN

Voices Here Are Heard in France and England, Cablegram Announces

WILL MAKE MORE TESTS

Two Philadelphia amateur radio stations participating in the second trans-Atlantic tests conducted by the Amateur Radio Relay League have been heard in England and France, according to cablegrams received from those countries at league headquarters.

The local stations are those of E. J. Eckert, 2903 North Smalley street, station 3GK, and Maxwell S. Stuber, 1531 West York street, station 2IIM.

The trans-Atlantic tests were commenced Monday. American amateurs will broadcast for ten days, after which the foreign amateurs will try to be heard in this country.

American amateurs were heard in England on the first night of the tests and thirteen were heard in France.

In addition to the two Philadelphia stations, several other stations in this section were heard, including the West-Jersey broadcasting station at Newark, N. J., F. B. Hunsinger, Phillipsburg, Pa., station 2AQD; the Pennsylvania University station at State College, Pa., station 2AM; and C. S. Healy, Atlantic City, station 2BCT.

DAMROSCH PRESENTS A BEETHOVEN PROGRAM

Precedes the Third Symphony With an Interesting Explanatory Address

Walter Damrosch made his last personal appearance at the present season in Philadelphia last evening at the concert of the New York Symphony Society in the Academy of Music, as the remaining concerts of the symphony series will be directed by Albert Coates, the British guest conductor of the organization.

There was the usual large audience present and they greeted Mr. Damrosch with the cordiality which has appeared always to greet him in this city.

He gave a Beethoven program, but there were only two numbers of the program, Overture No. 2 and the Third (C Minor) Symphony. Before the performance of the latter number Mr. Damrosch gave an explanatory address on the program. He took the symphony literally to pieces, showing how it was constructed thematically and architecturally and placing the various themes on the piano. He took the symphony literally to pieces, showing how it was constructed thematically and architecturally and placing the various themes on the piano.

Mr. Damrosch made a slight departure from the generally accepted analysis of the first movement, treating the thematic material as main theme and a subsidiary, instead of three principal themes as is usually the case. Many of the analysts have held that the second subject is too important and too long, as well as not being in any way based on the first theme to be treated as a subsidiary, although it is in the key of the first.

Mr. Damrosch's explanatory address was very clear and easily understood. He has the happy faculty of knowing exactly how to treat a technical subject so that laymen will understand it and for that matter, will understand it as a whole. It was more than ordinarily received and the applause at the close lasted for several minutes.

The performance of the symphony by the orchestra was unusually good, both as to tone quality and as to execution. The performance seemed to enter thoroughly into the musical presentation of the symphony in strict accordance with the analysis of the conductor. The rendition of the Leonore Overture was spirited and the reading authoritative.

MAENNERCHOR SINGS

Chorus Does Excellent Work at Concert in Witherspoon Hall

The Junger Maennerchor, long one of the best of the German singing societies of the East, gave a concert in Witherspoon Hall last evening before a good-sized audience, which enjoyed the excellent work of the chorus and the soloists.

The chorus, the work of which was the feature of the evening, is composed of about sixty or seventy voices, many of them very good ones. The chorus must be admitted to have set up the bar of excellence in this city, and there is the prospect of further improvement with a corresponding presentation of German songs, which will result in a really excellent chorus.

Nevertheless, the chorus did a lot of very excellent work and had a lot of customer's requests. The program of the evening was in the hands of every German singing society. The program of the evening was in the hands of every German singing society.

WOMEN DOCTORS NEEDED

Opportunity for Service in India is Explained at Meeting

Women physicians and nurses are needed in India, the Rev. Dr. William P. Schell, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, told several hundred women gathered in the Oak Lane Presbyterian Church, the subject was "Women's Union Christian Colleges in the Orient."

"In India a male physician cannot attend a woman," Dr. Schell said. "Many girls are wives and mothers before they are in their teens. A wonderful work can be done by women doctors among them. These young girls, going out among their own people as messengers of mercy, will carry the Christian religion into thousands of homes, where it never had an opportunity to enter."

ORPHEUS MIXED QUARTET

Concert Given in Ballroom of the Bellevue

The Orpheus Mixed Quartet, consisting of Edna Harwood Baugher, soprano; Marguerite Barr, contralto; Philip Warren (Coker), tenor; and F. Willard Gorman, Jr., baritone, gave an entertaining program in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford last evening, assisted by Susana Jacobinoff, violinist.

The quartet is made up of four excellent voices and they have evidently done a lot of hard work in rehearsal to sing with the accuracy and the correctness of detail which they showed in last evening's concert.

The quartet sang four times and each member sang a short group of solo numbers, all of which were well done and proved to be very enjoyable.

There were also two duets, one by Miss Baugher and Mr. Gorman and the other by Mr. Barr and Mr. Coker.

Mr. Jacobinoff played on his usual brilliant manner, giving two groups of solo compositions with a flawless technique and excellent interpretative power. Alton K. Donaghy played the accompaniments admirably.

The concert was given for the benefit of the children's dispensaries of the Samaritan Hospital and there was a good-sized audience present.

MISSIONARIES WEDDED

Son of Haddon Heights Pastor Takes Bride—Married in Syria

Miss Elsie Reckman and Stanley E. Kerr, son of the Rev. and Mrs. James R. Kerr, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Haddon Heights, and former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Dutton, were married in Beirut, Syria, according to a cablegram received from friends of the couple in Haddon Heights.

Both are missionaries, the bride being in the service of the Congregational church. Mr. Kerr left

Derby several years ago in company with his sister Marjorie and started work in the Near East.

The couple met in Aleppo on the way to posts in the interior. They went together to Antab and later to Marash, where their engagement was announced.

The wedding took place about a week ago and they are now on a honeymoon in Palestine. They expect to remain in missionary work for another year.
