

MARJORIE BARKER AGAIN LOSES CASE

Court Rules Bryn Mawr College Within Rights in Expelling Girl From Institution

EXCEPTIONS ARE DISMISSED

Judge Miller, of Norristown, has again decided against Miss Marjorie Barker, of Michigan City, Ind., in her action to be reinstated as a student at Bryn Mawr College. Yesterday the dismissed sixty-three exceptions to his former decision, in which he was held that Bryn Mawr, being a private institution, had a right to say who should and who should not be accepted as students.

The college authorities had dismissed Miss Barker on the grounds that she was an "undesirable student." That action was taken after there had been petty thefts in one of the dormitories of the college. She was taken before the dean and confronted with certain evidence, and, while she was home, during the holidays, she was informed that she might not return as a student.

In dismissing the exceptions, Judge Miller says: "It is rarely that we find displayed in the presentation of a case the zeal, skill and industry which on both sides of the table have characterized this one. We therefore quite naturally gave to the mature consideration which is due the importance required and each presentation invited."

"The decision, which was filed on February 28, 1922, concerned a plea that it was based upon 'open' main conclusions: "That even where a student has been rightfully expelled from a private, incorporated institution of learning, mandamus will not lie to compel the corporation to reinstate him or in other words, the Court was without jurisdiction in the premises."

"That under the evidence the petitioner was, however, not wrongfully expelled."

"That, even conceding the fact of the jurisdiction under all the circumstances disclosed by the evidence the Court was without power either to interfere with or control the exercise by the president of the college of the official discretion vested in her to strike or set aside the decision which followed to exercise by her."

"After further consideration, we remain of the opinion that all these and these conclusions have a secure foundation in the facts and the law applicable to them."

"Still being of the view, the decision must remain unchanged."

JULES MASTBAUM AGAIN HEADS JEWISH CHARITIES

Loan Association Has Annual Dinner and Raises Special Fund

A total of $18,250 was subscribed last night as additional working capital for the Federated Loan Association by leading Jewish citizens at the association's second anniversary dinner in the Mercantile Club.

Gimbel Brothers subscribed $5,000 in memory of Jacob Gimbel, Samuel D. L. $1,250, and a further $1,000, Philip Rosenthal, J. Walter Rosen, Jacob L. Albert, Fleisher, Jules Mastbaum, Albert M. Greenfield and Alexander Talebman, $1,000 each, and Albert Marks, $200.

The association, with headquarters at 243 South Sixth street, lends money at low rates of interest to needy persons, and in two years has aided more than 17,000 families. The capital stock is to be increased to $2,000,000 from $1,000,000.

Speakers at the dinner included Judge Bruce Saxon, Jules H. Mastbaum, president of the organization, Joseph Billikopf, director of the Federation of Jewish Charities, and William Hirsch, manager of the association.

Lansdowne Boy Is Member of Brown University Team

Joseph K. Chambers, of Lansdowne, will be a member of the Brown University debating team that will meet Wednesday at Middletown, Conn., tonight. He will take the negative side of the question, "Resolved: That government ownership of coal mines would be desirable, constitutionally granted."

Chambers, a sophomore, will have as his opponents Walter E. Wilson, 22, of Englewood, N. J., and James C. Callahan, of Newport, R. I. His lecturer, William H. Chambers, also a sophomore, represented Brown against Lansdowne in a preliminary case of the question Saturday.
