THE DOO DADS—Christmas Cheer for the Poor of Dooville

In the land of Doo, the streams are frozen over and the hillsides are covered with snow. In the evening big logs of wood crackle and blaze brightly in great open fireplaces and the tiny little Doo Dads sit around the fre, gaze up the chimney and wonder what they will find in their stockings on Christmas morning.

Santa Claus never forgets the little Doo Dads. In every large city there are little boys and girls who do not have warm clothing or even a bed in which to sleep. Even in Dooville there are some, and at this time of the year Santa is so very, very busy that he must employ many helpers so that there will be none with empty stockings on Christmas Day.

Old Santa has asked Dr. Sawbones to be his helper in Dooville and here the first with his little fur-trimmed coat, his cap and his flowing white shiskers, he looks very much like Santa himself. Dattor Sawbones and fithelas Nutt have built a little house and fitted it onto Thuy's back, Doctor

Sawbones climbed up on top of the chimney, Nicholas seated himself on the peak of the roof in front (so that he can tell Tiny what to do) and away they went. They had fastened a bell onto Tiny's tail and Doctor Sawbones had a larger one, and down the streets of Dooville they went, with the bells pealing merrily.

As they move along Tiny and Nicholas and Doctor Sawbones collect money from every one. My! what a lot of smiling, happy faces they leave behind them. Tiny looks as if he had never had better fun, and just now, even old Mr. Grouch is having to put money in Tiny's poke. That pleases Tiny more than anything.

Old Sleepy Sam was wide awake a while ago. He saw them coming from the street, saw they were collecting money, crawled back on his peanut cart and went to sleep-but he will not escape so easily. Surely, with every one giving so liberally, this should be a Merry Christmas for the poor of Dooville.
