Basketball Defense More Thorough Than Offense

Style of Teamwork Has Forced Coaches to Concentrate on Protection of Goal—National Indoor Game Has Widespread Appeal

THIS is the first of a series of articles written by Edwin J. Mather and Elmer D. Mitchell, coach and athletic director respectively of a university of Michigan, dealing with basketball in all phases of the sport.

BASKETBALL is America's national indoor game. It has the same appeal in the winter that football has in the summer; the sports being alike in their adaptability for use by any kind of group.

The rapid spread of basketball in foreign countries makes it safe to predict that the sport will in time become an international game. Already it has been popularized in China, Japan, the Philippines and the A. B. C. nations of South America.

THE reasons for the great popularity of basketball are apparent. They are found in the simplicity of the rules, which allow the spectator to understand the game quickly and in the excitement of the spectators in the playing court, so that every move of the players can be seen and followed.

THE action is fast and with the scoring often coming in flurries, there is the element of uncertainty. These, combined with the fact that the game is for both individual skill and finished teamwork, make for a game comprising all the essentials that hold the outdoor interest. Naturally, in some quantities would appeal to the player.

Much of the success of the game depends upon the officials in charge. The calling of fouls in many cases rests upon the referee's judgment, and if he is too strict and calls too many the game is apt to become slow and uninteresting, while, on the other hand, if he calls too few fouls, the play easily becomes too rough and teamwork is made impossible. It is the referee who is the one to control the game at all times.

The ideal basketball player is tall. In no other game is height such a helpful asset. While speed and strength are valuable, they are of little avail unless combined with shiftness. A slow runner, who is shifty, will develop into a basketball player more easily than the runner who is speedy in the straight-away only.

TEAMWORK is required just as much as in football or baseball. Yet the teamwork is of a different nature, being more temporary; that is, the players in basketball are not together on and off the opening.

Progress on Defense Rapid BECAUSE of the style of teamwork that basketball possesses, coaches have progressed more rapidly with the defense than with the offense. That is why the five-man defense, where every one of the team posts, has become more popular with the majority of teachers.

Only when coaches have heavy and experienced players, who can be allowed the responsibility, is the defense loosened. The coaches are constantly at work, striving to make the offense more dependent on their own idea of strategy. Advances along this line, however, will not be at the sacrifice of the individual judgment and initiative of the player, for although they may aid him in quickly locating the opponent, thus adding to the speed and despatch of the teamwork, yet there will always be the possibility of more than one course of action, with the individual player forced to make a decision as to the proper move to make when the time arises.

The next article will be on the diet of basketball players.

PHAS PLAN FOUL SHOOTING CONTEST

Competition Will Start on Thursday, Dec. 28—Manufacturers' Race is Close

CAMDEN IS AFTER TRENTON

By "BILL" DALLAS This appears to be an off year for foul shooters and many poor exhibitions have been turned in by the players from the blackboard. Even at Camden in a recent Eastern League game the Jewels edged something like seven out of twenty-seven and other instances of record have been quite common.

The South Philadelphia Hebrew Association, through its manager, Harry Passon, announces that a foul shooting contest will be held at Media on Friday, Seventh street and Snyder avenue, beginning Thursday, December 28. Unlike many other such contests this one will be different in that there will be no entrance fee and any player—male or female—can register.

It has been decided to have twenty shooters for the black mark each, ten male and ten female, and all entries must be filed with Harry Passon, 400 South Eighth street, prior to December 28.

Passon has also arranged many games for the South Philadelphia Hebrews. Tonight they play at Hightstown, meet the same team here on Thursday night at Media on Friday, Saturday the start on a trip over Christmas and return here for Thursday, December 28. None of the three teams that play in the hall at Seventh and Snyder avenue will be eligible in the foul-shooting contests.

Manufacturers' League With reverses handed Passon, Gottlieb & Black and Keystone Telephone, the complexion of the race in the Manufacturers' League has taken on a different complexion, and five of the eight teams in the race now have a chance for the first-half pennant.

Keystones, P. G. & B. and M. & H. are in three places at present with a single defeat, while Wilbur and Colonial Ice Cream have dropped two games. Keystone appears to have the best chance to top the bunting, but should the sporting goods boys win it looks like a four-copied race for the flag.

In the girls' section, Dot White's American Railway Express girls hold undisputed possession of first place. They meet a hard team on Wednesday, when they clash against Paddy Livingston's Car Service girls, and a defeat looks likely.

Colonial Ice Cream has a chance to move up into the first division by a win over Steel Healdie tonight. In the other game Overbrook Carpet meets Metal Edge and the tie for last place will be broken when they clash. On Wednesday Wilbur meets Modosovitz & Herbach and Keystone opposes Passon, Gottlieb & Black.

Sherris Trail Buffers The team of bowlers has a fine chance of breaching into first place in the Eastern League during the week, but even at that the reign at the top of the heap was probably only by a narrow margin. The Jerseyans traveled to Contesseville tonight, and while the Lincoln highway club has been exceptionally successful at home the Skeets are

They want to show the fans that they are better than even the Celts or Potters and are prepared for a great fight. The Jerseyans will place them in a tie with Trenton and then will come the big test on Wednesday with Trenton. On that occasion standing room in the arena will be at a premium and yet the last two weeks only a handful turned out to witness a championship.

The Camden owners, Dr. Helm and former Sheriff Carson, are not in the least pleased with the treatment of the fans and they are not getting a square deal. The Camden fans are the longest-headed expense of any in the circuit and there should be at least enough fans to turn out and pay expenses.

The Jerseyans continue to hit the skids and the Jewels will not have to travel far to oust Reading from the cellar. There is no hope for the uptowners this half and already the sign "wait until the second half" has been ordered.

Forty mares sent over from the French breeding farm of A. K. Macomber were sold in New York for $140,000, or an average of $3500 a head, which is tribute to the interest in this country in breeding. The bulk of the lot went to Kentucky breeders, Miss Elizabeth Bangerfield purchased the largest number, the top price paid by her being $6000 for Palestra, a daughter of Prince Palatine and Adama. The highest price paid at the sale was by J. D. Keene, also of Kentucky, who gave $12,000 for Sandblast, a ten-year-old daughter of Maintence. Keene also paid $11,500 for War Love, by Prince Palatine. Edward Gehring, of California, was purchaser of some of the best of the lot, which were knocked down at good prices, the top being $2000 for Scramble, a daughter of L. M. Mellor, former Senator of Camden. Samuel Hildreth and A. B. Hancock were among the unsuccessful bidders.

Jackey Ensor has been ruled off for the balance of the meeting at Jefferson Park. It was hoped Ensor had reformed. He is one of the best jockeys in America and has never been accused of dishonesty in the saddle, but let his weakness again get the better of him. The turf needs Ensor.

Many of the Eastern stables are at New Orleans this winter and the Crescent City is holding the center of interest in the turf world just now. Havana seems to have gone back somewhat. The Goldblatt-Whitney and the Baker stables are sadly missed at the Cuban track. New Orleans has drawn from Havana some of its best horses of other years.

CAR-SERVICE GIRLS SEEK NEW HONORS

Holders of P. R. R. Cage Title Will Strive for Championship of Eastern District

BETTY SCHENKEL IS STAR

Superintendent of Car Service girls are once more coming into the limelight in basketball, and from early indications will again be a strong contender for the championship of this district. Holding the Pennsylvania Railroad title and the only team to defeat the Daughters of Columbus, the Car Service five is out for further honors.

When the Green Sox team found the Philadelphia Girls' League was not to their liking, and dropped out, the Car Service maids stepped into the breach and assumed the standing of the Green Sox. Fortunately, the league had just got under way and the railroaders found themselves in possession of one victory and no defeats.

The railroad lassies played their first game in the league last Wednesday evening and defeated Steel-Healdie, 27 to 0. This leaves the five one game behind the American Railway Express team, leaders of the circuit.

Spectators who jammed Yonah Hall for the game last Wednesday were impressed by the work of the Car Service five. Quick passes, splendid teamwork, and above all excellent guarding featured.

Four games have been played in the Railroad League and all resulted in easy victories for the railroaders. Unless something unforeseen occurs the local maids seem destined to go through to the Eastern District Railroad title again.

In addition to holding their honors in the Railroad League the squad is anxious to win the cup in the Girls' League being conducted in conjunction with the Manufacturers' League. The game with the American Railway Express team Wednesday night will go a long way towards deciding this move.

Betty Schenkel, all-around athlete, is one of the regulars on the team and holds down a guard position. Miss Schenkel is one of the best guards in this section and a dead shot to the basket as well as an expert dribbler.

Playing in the back court with Miss Schenkel is Miss Eleanor Eyre. With these two stars in the back court the Car Service five is well able to hold its own with any girls team in the section.

Charlotte Walton, center, is playing an even better game than last year. Capable of getting the tap-off on the majority of opponents and being good at passing and dribbling this fair maid makes an ideal pivot player.

The forwards are two of the best in the district and Miss Edith Bright was the individual star of the recent game with the Steel-Healdie having six field goals. Her running mate is Miss Kitty Lentz. The team is coached by Paddy Livingston and the team is rapidly learning the fine points necessary to smooth off the rough edges and with a little more work and a few more games, the team should be on a par with the best in the country.

W. AND J. TO PLAY DETROIT Will Meet Month Earlier Than Usual in 1923

Washington, Pa., Dec. 18.—Washington and Jefferson will meet Detroit University in football next fall, the date agreed upon in the contract just signed being October 27. This is one month

Penn and Middies May Not Meet Next Year

According to an authoritative source, the University of Pennsylvania and the Naval Academy will not meet on the gridiron next season. As the Midshipmen are allowed but one game away from home each year they will probably be unable to come to Franklin Field.

The Middies will play Penn State on Beaver Field next fall and Princeton in Baltimore, which means that they have listed one away-from-home contest and a big game for their own vicinity. It is said that either Lafayette or Dartmouth will replace the Navy on the list and Blue schedule. Centre College has virtually agreed to come to this city in 1923, it is also said.

Earlier than the game of last fall, when the Michigan eleven was by 20 to 9. Unwillingness to burden the November schedule with too many hard games, Pitt and West Virginia having already been scheduled for that month, prompted the change to October.

The game will be played in Detroit, where the Presidents have appeared for two successive seasons and where the game has been a feature. In both its performances there, Washington and Jefferson drew record throngs and the game is one of the most lucrative that either team plays during the year.

Coach Tice has been drilling the squad daily. A few practice games that have been held between different sections of the squad have indicated that the players are ready to go. "Snake" Norris is the only player back from last year's championship quintet. Prominent candidates for the forward berths are "Bud" Hunt, Lewis, "Dutch" Stewart and Peterson.

The schedule comprises a list of eighteen games. The opening encounter, with Penn State at home tomorrow night, will be played at home tomorrow night.
