URGE AIRPORTS FOR PHILADELPHIA

Members of Engineer and Aero Clubs Stress Needs of Landing Facilities Here

TO FORM A COMMITTEE

Tentative plans for forming an organization to urge airports for Philadelphia were made last night at a joint meeting of the Aero Club of Philadelphia and the Engineers' Club.

Officials of the National Aeronautics Association and others of national fame in aeronautic circles were among the speakers. Archibald Black, of Garden City, N. Y., chairman of the national association's committee on a safety code for the maintenance and equipment of airplanes, addressed the meeting on landing fields, illustrating his lecture with slides.

The need of being located on the airways is stressed to be a serious matter to every large city," he said. "No method of transportation which offers nearly three times the speed of the fastest railroad train with safety and but slightly greater cost can long remain so little used as the airplane of today."

Describes Landing Fields

Arthur Halstead, of the Bureau of Standards, Washington, spoke of landing fields for all types of machines. Captain Burdette S. Wright, of the Army Air Service, showed the new motion picture, "The Model Airway."

Tentative arrangements were made for the formation of a Philadelphia bureau of the National Aeronautics Association to be made up of representatives of the Board of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce, the Engineers' Club, the Manufacturers' Club, the Aero Club of Pennsylvania and the City Government.

The organization will urge the establishment of an airport in Philadelphia to accommodate land and sea planes and provide mooring mast facilities for all lighter-than-air craft.

Officials of the National Aeronautics Association who attended the meeting included B. H. Mulvihill, first vice president in charge of the organization; Conway W. Cooke and C. T. Ludington, all of whom made the trip from Logan Field, Baltimore. Joseph A. Steinmetz, president of the Aero Club of Philadelphia, presided.

Lakehurst Visited

The meeting was preceded by an all-day trip to the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., where thirty-five members of the Aero Club and the Society of Automotive Engineers were entertained by Commander R. D. Weverback. The visitors inspected the hangar, which is the largest in the world; the mooring mast and the ZR-1, now under construction.

The ZR-1 is the sister dirigible of the ill-fated ZR-3, built in England for the United States Navy, which collapsed on its trial trip a year ago near the River Humber. The former craft, 380 feet long, is slightly smaller than the ZR-2, which was more than 600 feet in length, but is sturdier in construction. Six 300-horsepower Packard motors, representing the latest in airship engines, are being installed in the ZR-1.

FLAGSHIP CREW TO AWARD XMAS GIFTS TO ORPHANS

Christmas Dinner Will Be Served on U. S. S. Wright Deck

Fifty orphaned children will be made happy on Christmas Day by the officers and men of the newly commissioned flagship of the Atlantic aviation fleet, the U. S. S. Wright, now at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. A Christmas dinner with toys, clothing and an entertainment will be provided for the youngsters.

Men of the crew, under Captain W. R. Gherardi, made arrangements to entertain twenty-five children from the Southern Home, at Broad and Morris streets, and a similar number named by the Catholic Bureau, at Seventeenth and Vine streets.

Christmas morning they will be formed in a group and taken to the deck of the Wright. Dinner will be served in full navy style, with turkey in everything, at 1 o'clock.

The men of the crew gave $350 to provide toys and clothing for Christmas gifts for their little guests. A friend from New Jersey sent over a big supply of evergreens and holly for the decorations, and part of the band from the U. S. S. Relief will spend the afternoon aboard the Wright to furnish the musical end of the entertainment.

MANTELL IN "HAMLET"

Shakespearean Star Seen in Familiar Role at Broad

Broad—As the second performance of his engagement of Shakespearean and classic repertoire, Robert B. Mantell last night presented his familiar characterization of "Hamlet." The distinctive thing about this star's portrayal of the Melancholy Dane is his sonorous and expressive reading of the lines. Time and repetition have not dulled the artistry of Mantell's performances nor the quality of his elocution.

The best performance of the supporting cast was the Laertes of John Alexander which reached a fine climax in the scene at Ophelia's grave. Guy Lindsey is now playing Horatio and his performance is one of suave and pleasing smoothness. "Austrian Diering" in an excellent King and Henry Buckler endows the role of that meddling old rascal Polonius with a good leaven of comedy which helps make it real. Genevieve Hamper's Ophelia is a thing of frail beauty and Agnes Elliott Scott, as the Queen, rises to her big scene with Hamlet in commendable fashion.

HOLIDAY RUM CARGO SEIZED

Liquor Captured Off Sandy Hook Valued at $500,000

New York, Dec. 20.—An ocean-going barge, laden with 4000 cases of holiday whisky, valued by prohibition officials at $500,000, was captured inside Sandy Hook last night by former submarine chaser Hanson, of the prohibition navy.

The prize was said by Zone Chief Appleby to have been one of a fleet of rum-smuggling craft which left Nassau, Bahamas, three weeks ago and has been off the coast outside the three-mile limit waiting a chance to run the Christmas blockade.

The seized vessel was towed to quarantine, where customs guards took charge, and the Hanson headed back to the Hook in expectancy of being off other rum-runners in the waiting fleet.

NEW ELECTION CALLED TO SETTLE PENNA. TIE VOTE

Barnett and Sprowls Expected to Run for Senate Again

Harrisburg, Dec. 20.—A writ for a special election was issued yesterday by E. E. Reidenman, Lieutenant Governor, as president pro tem of the Senate, for the Forty-sixth Senatorial District, comprising Washington and Green Counties. The election will be held January 18 and it is expected the candidates will be those who had a tie vote at the November election, James E. Barnett, Republican and Prohibition candidate, and George B. Sprowls, Democratic candidate.

This will be the first special election ordered because of a tie vote.

In the Washington-Green district, the Barnett-Sprowls vote was a tie, but the Allegheny residents of a portion of a combination school district, located in Washington and Allegheny Counties, also were permitted to vote in the Forty-sixth district contest and they gave Barnett eight and Sprowls nine votes.

It was believed several days after election that Sprowls had won by one vote, but the matter was carried to the Washington county Court, which held that, while that portion of Allegheny County in the school district was a part of Washington County so far as school and borough taxation is concerned, it was not a part of Washington County nor of the senatorial district. That decision created the tie.

Will your family be independent?

THE establishment of family independence is no more a problem of making money than of keeping it. The past months have taken from many a man wealth that, placed in trust, would have endowed his wife and assured the education and comfort of his children.

An irrevocable trust is a means whereby you can place money and property beyond the reach of your personal business fortunes, and safeguard the future of those who look to you for protection.

Under this arrangement, you would set aside with this Company, as trustee, sufficient securities to protect your family. We would undertake to maintain your principal according to whatever instructions you gave. We would invest and reinvest your funds according to your expressed wishes. We would pay out the income, and ultimately disburse the principal, in any way and to any person you directed.

We shall welcome an opportunity to discuss this matter with you. Come to see us, or let us call on you—at your convenience.
