

By Sidney Smith

The Subconscious Courtship

A modern woman's extraordinary scheme to keep control from interfering with her life is told in this fascinating novel by BERTA RUCK

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY CLOVER ELPHINSTONE... ROSEMARY MEADOWS... HARRY CARMICHAEL... JIM HOLT...

Quarrelsome Lovers After five hours' work four strides back to have his lunch... The same four strides took him back again to his reception room...

As well as hope, he had certainty. He worked with that as well... Sometimes, for health's sake, he walked up to Hampstead and took a tramp on the Heath...

Changes Clover, refusing something for which she was asked... Here were changes! Clover, in an odd, hard little voice added: "I sold the car this morning..."

But, another day, Rosemary declared, "Excellent idea these separate establishments. Men and women never were intended to live together day in, day out..."

Rosemary retorted that a fish, in scales that fitted, was at least nicer to look at than a man turned out as her admirer was at that moment.

At that Clover abruptly folded up the chart. Again she passed her hand with its still-new wedding ring over her eyes... "Auntie! And you two! Perhaps I had better tell you now..."

Continued Tomorrow

THE GUMPS—Just a Friendly Argument

SOMEBODY'S STENOG—Mrs. Smithers Pays a Visit

The Young Lady Across the Way

Aunt Eppie Hogg, the Fattest Woman in Three Counties

Ru Fontaine For

SCHOOL DAYS

PETEY—Who Told Her?

GASOLINE ALLEY—Off for Mother's

