RADIO WEEK PROVES BIG HIT WITH FANS

Results Thus Far Are Away Beyond Expectations of Promoters

UNUSUAL PROGRAM TODAY

National Radio Week, which began with Christmas Day, is resulting in a more widespread popular interest in this latest scientific hobby than even the promoters of the week anticipated.

There is every evidence that the radio craze today is more widespread than it was even in the hectic first rush of a year or more ago.

The big broadcasting stations, too, have found the movement and have put out especially attractive programs for the week.

CHINESE GIRL AGAIN EVADES MARRIAGE

Mildred Wenn Disappears Second Time While Her Bridegroom Waits

NUM LEE ALSO IN HIDING

Washington, Dec. 27.—Mildred Wenn, the hobbed-hair Chinese "Bopper," has disappeared again.

For the second time in five days the little belle of Washington's Chinatown rebelled against the Oriental custom of parent-arranged marriages and vanished seven hours before the time set for her marriage to George Num Lee, New York college student, son of the wealthy president of the Chinese Merchants' Association of America.

Everything was in readiness for the delayed wedding, which was to have taken place with gorgeous Oriental ceremony in New York Christmas Day.

Mildred had given her consent to carry out the wishes of her father, Wing Ling Wenn, rich Chinese cafe owner. Her uncle had obtained a marriage license.

Her fiancé was on a train speeding to Washington. Then Mildred disappeared again.

The little Oriental girl with American ideas planned her escape carefully. She has been closely guarded since her return home Monday, after being "kidnaped" by a clover policeman.

While her uncle went to the court-house for the marriage license, she fled to go to a "house" in the hope that the missing bride would be found.

As the two girls entered the theatre, Mildred eluded her cousin in the crowd and darkness of the theatre and fled to a new hiding place.

The police, her parents and friends scoured the city for her to have her at the altar at the appointed hour, but to trace of the missing girl has been found at midnight.

Meanwhile, young Lee arrived only to learn that he had been jilted for a second time. He went into hiding to await word from his capricious bride-to-be.

Employees of Wenn's cafe admitted he had arrived but refused to reveal his hiding place.

The Rev. Dr. A. Freeman Anderson, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, where President Harding attended services, awaited at the church until after 10 o'clock, the hour set for the wedding, in the hope that the missing bride would be found.

He was frankly vexed over the delay.

The police were worried over the girl's second disappearance, fearing she might do herself injury in her desperation. Police officers who have known the girl and her parents for years advised the Wen family to either abandon their plan of having Mildred marry Lee or to have the wedding postponed for a long time.

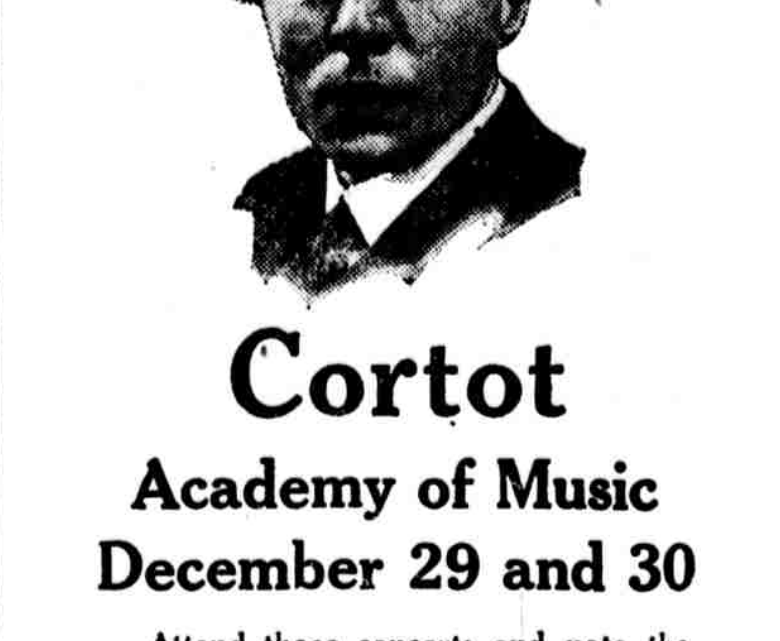

If that became known to the girl, they believe she would come home again of her own volition.
